

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

The Rudolph Indexer Book.

(Patented in the United States and all Foreign Countries.)

Method of Indexing is the same as that employed in the Rudolph Continuous Indexer.

The RUDOLPH INDEXER BOOK consists of a number of card-holders of heavy cardboard with one or two columns on both sides. On the back edge of each card-holder are two double hinges by which means other card-holders may be flexibly connected or disconnected.

Independent book-covers are furnished, and a book may thus be formed of one card-holder and later increased as desired. If the book becomes too bulky it may be separated and by adding covers two or more independent books formed.

The Rudolph Indexer Case.

(Patented in the United States and all Foreign Countries.)

Method of Indexing is the same as that employed in the Rudolph Continuous Indexer.

The RUDOLPH INDEXER CASE consists of a series of card-holders placed on their edges in a drawer, and they may be turned as the pages of a book, exhibiting at each view only single-line entries.

We furnish the INDEXER CASE in one, two, four, six and eight drawers.

The capacity of each drawer is thirty card-holders. As both sides of the card-holders are used it is equal to 840 single-line entries.

The Rudolph Card Cutter.

(Patent Pending.)

This invention is for the purpose of cutting the entries or cards for insertion in the card-holders, but can also be used for many other purposes.

It is very important that all the slips to be inserted in the card-holders be cut at perfect right angles, in order that each entry will fit exactly to the others.

An unnecessary margin of only 1-32d of an inch on the top and 1-32d of an inch on the bottom of each entry will amount to 3/16th inches of waste space on each card-holder.

The cutter will cut cardboard where spacing between the printed or written lines is 1-64th of an inch.

THE RUDOLPH CONTINUOUS INDEXER.

(FRONT VIEW, SHOWING GLASS LID RAISED.)

(REAR VIEW, SHOWING DOOR OPEN.)

THE LIBRARIAN'S DESIDERATUM. THE MOST PERFECT INDEXER.

The RUDOLPH INDEXER SYSTEM possesses many advantages which recommend it to Publishers and Booksellers—in fact, to any one who has occasion to use lists of books, names or samples of goods, photographs, etc.

It is entirely flexible, allowing any number of entries to be placed in the INDEXER at any point.

It presents to the eye at one time as many entries as six pages of the American Catalogue.

Entries are protected from being soiled by exposure or handling.

Economy of space and economy of expenditure of both time and money.

The INDEXER stands 42 inches high and is 20 inches wide by 30 inches broad.

We shall be pleased to give further information and list of testimonials from leading librarians.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE SCHULTE PUBLISHING CO., 334 Dearborn St., Chicago, will publish in a handsome illustrated volume the papers read before the recent International Congress of Anthropology. The first edition will be limited to 500 copies. The price of the volume will be raised after publication.

GINN & Co. will publish next month in their International Modern Language Series an edition of Molière's "L'Avare" (the miser), edited with introduction, notes, and vocabulary by Théodore Henckels, of Harvard University. A bibliography of Molière, literary appreciations, a fullness of explanatory notes on the same page with the text, and a very complete vocabulary will make this edition most complete and serviceable. They will publish in March an "Examination Manual in Plane Geometry," prepared by G. A. Wentworth and G. A. Hill.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just ready Prof. George B. Adams' work on "Civilization During the Middle Ages, especially in relation to modern civilization," covering the period from 476 to 1520 A.D. They have also just issued the first volume of a "Philosophy of History," by Dr. Robert Flint, professor of divinity in the University of Edinburgh, whose great work contemplates in its entirety a history of the intellectual development of France, Germany, Italy, and England. The first of the three volumes just ready contains an analysis and discussion of historical philosophy in France and French Belgium.

MACMILLAN & Co. have nearly ready Mrs. J. R. Green's "Town Life in the Fifteenth Century," which deals with the times when towns were independent communities and centres of political life; also, a new book on "The Dawn of Astronomy," by J. Norman Lockyer, in which the author tells of the days when wonder and worship formed the prevailing feature in any consideration of the heavenly bodies, and traces in Egypt and Babylonia, in China and India, the beginnings of the scientific treatment of the subject. They have in preparation a biography of Joseph Jefferson, by William Winter, who has long been one of the actor's warm personal friends. It will be published in uniform style with Winter's volume on Booth, which is just entering upon its third edition.

THOMAS NELSON & SONS have just ready a genuine surprise to the book world in an illustrated edition of their "'Oxford' Teachers' Bible." It seemed hardly possible that anything further could be added either to the literary or typographical excellence of these fine editions, but the feat has been accomplished, and that in the consummate manner characteristic of this firm. The illustrations comprise sixty-four full-page plates, reproducing in fac-simile authentic documents, monuments, pictures, and portraits, illustrating the history of the Old and New Testaments. The "Helps," too, including a new series of maps, and frequent references to the Revised Version, are new in this edition, having been revised throughout by the soundest Biblical authorities, in accordance with the most recent investigations.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have sold their New Review to William Heinemann, of London, who will make changes in its character by the introduction of stories and illustrations. One of the papers soon to appear is Walter Crane's account of his American impressions, to which he will contribute illustrations.

THE various children's magazines published by D. Lothrop Co. have begun the new year with excellent literary material and a wealth of illustrations. Babyland for January shows a frontispiece in eight colors of "The Christ-Child," and is full of stories with pretty pictures tempting to baby brains and eyes; Our Little Men and Women appeals to larger children, and its interesting contributions are of a more instructive order; while The Pansy takes still another step ahead, and for January treats of the Odyssey, the Christian Endeavor movement, and contains an article by Margaret Sidney on the life and work of John B. Gough.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 6, 1894.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

RETROSPECT AND PROSPECT.

It is one of the regular duties of the newspaper profession to toll the passing bell for the old year and to ring joy bells for the new, and in accordance with that wholesome custom we bid our readers a Happy New Year. The year which is closed has not been altogether a happy one to the business community at large, but it is to be said that the publishing and bookselling trades have probably suffered less in comparison than most callings. While trade was dull enough, as travellers reported, for the months succeeding the financial crisis of the summer, it seems to be the general report that the holiday season was not unsatisfactory to the book trade, although not as money-making a season as it might well have been. "It is an ill wind that blows nobody good," and the book trade has in a measure profited by the general economy that has moved buyers to purchase books in place of more expensive presents—possibly not to the harm of the recipients, for a good book is after all much better than most of the holiday gewgaws which cost vastly more.

There have, to be sure, been a number of failures during the past year, but many of these have been simply the result of reckless, or worse, publishing methods, and the immediate effect of some of them is likely to be to clear the way for more sound morale in the trade in the future. Some of these failures have been at the cost of members of the trade who have put more or less faith in the concerns which have gone under because they have repeated that process and "bobbed up serenely" so many times before. In one or two cases the failure of the past year has been really the third or fourth of the same concern, or the same individual under successive aliases. There was considerable fear at the time of the discussion of the affairs of the United States Book Company that the trade would suffer in case it were not "reorganized" at the expense of its creditors, because of the demoralization that would ensue from putting its great quantities of stock on the market. That evil has come and gone; and while it has had its effect on the trade, the results have probably not been as disastrous as were feared by many. One of the prominent dry-goods houses of New York advertised the stock of this and the affiliated concerns as low as nine cents a volume for cloth-bound (?) stock, and doubtless large sales were made at these low figures. It is unnecessary to remark in these columns that that price, however great a benefaction to the buyer, was an outrage upon the manufacturing community. Nevertheless its results upon the retail bookselling trade were probably felt comparatively little. It is, in fact, a question whether such sales, lamentable as they are in demoralizing production, are not useful in starting the distribution of books among a class of people not generally bookbuyers, and who are led from one class of bookbuying to another. We should not like to see this episode frequently repeated, but it is worth reminding the trade that the results have not been as direful as was feared.

The outlook for 1894 is undoubtedly brighter. The feeling in commercial circles is one of expectancy—not of an immediate "boom," but, on the whole, of increasing prosperity. Many of the unsettled questions in the field of politics and business will be behind us when mid-year comes, and while it is not expected that the spring will show definite revival of trade, there is a belief—apparently with fair justification—that the latter part of the year will witness the beginning of a period of prosperity, perhaps better grounded and more real than the "booms" of past years.

It is to be hoped that the book trade in the year to come will contribute its part toward this happy achievement. The great evil connected with our trade has been the fictitious system of prices, which has invited the "boom" method on the part of houses which have come into the book business from the dry-goods and other sides, and have been regarded as a menace to the regular bookseller. Their advantage has been largely in the system of prices still adopted by publishers. Some of them come into the field for a little time at the holiday season or on special occasions; others have come to stay, and have developed into bookselling establishments of essentially sound methods. It is a pity that the regular trade, so-called, should be put at disadvantage by the system of prices still in operation, and it is to be hoped that one of the results of the general tumbling to pieces of card houses during the crisis of last year may be a sounder basis for the business of bookselling as well as for other businesses.

THE SECOND ANNUAL SCRIBNER DINNER.

THIRTY-FIVE gentlemen sat down to the second annual Scribner dinner at the St. Denis Hotel on the evening of December 27. The firm was represented by Arthur H. Scribner, and the others present were: John H. Dingman, Samuel W. Marvin, Henry L. Smith, W. C. Brownell, Edwin W. Morse, William D. Moffat, John H. Offord, Robert G. Welsh, Josiah N. Wing, Frank Marling, Rudolph C. Stolle, Charles May, Ernest D. North, R. J. Safford, Charles Walton, E. T. S. Lord, Francis Gilman, J. A. Tyson, E. E. Ling, Arthur M. Barnes, Edward L. Burlingame, F. N. Doubleday, Robert Bridges, O. H. Perry, H. M. Steele, J. M. Mann, J. B. Carrington, F. S. Coffin, J. R. Mix, William Bayley, Lewis Hatch, L. P. Starr, T. P. Kilgore, and W. A. Kay.

When the coffee had been served and the cigars lighted, the following toasts were responded to, Mr. Marvin, the toastmaster, introducing each speaker with a few felicitous words:

Starting Points S. W. Marvin

"A glass is good, and a lass is good,
And a pipe to smoke in cold weather;
The world is good, and the people are good,
And we're all good fellows together."
—O'Keefe.

A Model Publisher, his aims and successes

J. H. Dingman

"When a book raises your spirit, and inspires you with noble and manly thoughts, seek for no other test of its excellence. It is good, and made by a good workman."—La Bruyère.

The Scribner Staff, as seen by one of them.

Frank Marling

"Their cause I plead—plead it in heart and mind;
A fellow-feeling makes one wondrous kind."
—Garrick.

Looking North H. L. Smith

"We are always looking to the future; the present does not satisfy us. Our ideal, whatever it

More "Yarns from the Lookout" . . . E. D. North

"We must laugh before we are happy, lest we should die without having laughed."—La Bruyère.

Christmas in the Quarters J. N. Wing

"At Christmas play and make good cheer, For Christmas comes but once a year."
—Tusser.

Our Old Home, by our poet-laureate

Robert Gilbert Welsh

"Far as the breeze can bear, the billows foam, Survey our empire, and behold our home!"

—Byron.

The Dummy Robert Bridges

"Of woes unnumbered, heavenly goddess sing!"

—Pope.

Curiosities of Advertising . . . F. N. Doubleday

"Double, double, toil and trouble; Fire burn, and cauldron bubble."

—Shakespeare.

A Song E. W. Morse

"Here we will sit and let the sounds of music creep in our ears."—Shakespeare.

Mr. Marvin struck the key-note of the evening in speaking of the spirit of unity and good-fellowship which had brought together so many men from the different departments of a single publishing house. Mr. Dingman gave some interesting reminiscences of the late Charles Scribner, the founder of the house, illustrating his high character both as a man and as a publisher. Mr. Marling made many humorous allusions to his fellow-workers and ended in a serious vein. Mr. Smith, with the aid of an elevation plan, described the new building which the firm is erecting on Fifth Avenue, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second Streets. Mr. North told some good stories, and Mr. Wing gave an account of Christmas among the darkies. Mr. Welsh's thoughtful verses were a tribute to the pleasant memories connected with the building which the firm has occupied for nineteen years and which is to be vacated next spring. Mr. Bridges gave a witty description of the magazine "dummy" and its characteristics. Mr. Doubleday availed himself of the art of the caricaturist to give point to his amusing sallies. Finally Mr. Morse gave a song, all joining in the chorus.

Early in the dinner a despatch of compliments and good wishes had been sent to Charles Scribner, who was enjoying a holiday in Washington, and midway in the toasts a reply of thanks and congratulations was received from him and read. Thereupon Arthur Scribner spoke briefly. Mr. Burlingame and Mr. Perry also said a few words, and the evening ended with singing. The enjoyment of the occasion was largely due to the admirable arrangements which had been made for the dinner by the committee, Messrs. Stolle, Moffat, and Safford. The bill of fare was adorned with the reproductions of eight photographs of different interior views of the present building.

BROTHERHOOD OF COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS.

NINTH ANNUAL BANQUET.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS were favored, as usual, by fine weather on the evening of December 28, when their annual banquet was held at the Marlborough Hotel, Thirty-sixth Street and Broadway, New York.

In point of numbers it was the most successful of any yet held by the Brotherhood, while in other respects the entertainment was fully equal to its predecessors.

Covers were laid for 110 guests, and very few failed to put in an appearance. The Committee of Arrangements, composed of Jonas Langfeld, George Vallerman, A. D. MacMullen, Will Jarchow, John H. Bacon, Dwight Terry, A. E. Turner, and H. S. Ridings had provided amply and in the most satisfactory manner for the members and their friends, and in this they were ably seconded by the Reception Committee, the members of which were Col. John H. Ammon, C. W. Cook, H. M. Caldwell, Desmond Fitzgerald, Henry J. Epping, and W. S. Craig.

The menu, the sentiments for which were again composed in most happy style by J. C. Harvey, was enclosed in a serviceable sealskin wallet, the gift of Jonas Langfeld. The music was furnished by the Imperial Hungarian Gypsy Band, under the management of Guido Yaulas.

After the cloth had been removed, President John H. Black introduced the comedian J. W. Kelly, who favored the company with a recitation full of fun; Mr. J. C. Harvey read a humorous poem relating the career of a museum freak, in which book and stationery trade terms were used with happy effect; and William A. Powers then sang a couple of dialect songs.

The souvenir committee—W. J. Kelly, Frank O. Evans, and J. Frank Hitchcock—through Mr. Kelly next presented to the president the souvenir of the B. C. T., an ivory gavel suspended from a watered silk ribbon. Mr. Hitchcock presented to the president-elect, John Hovendon, as a recognition of his long and faithful services as secretary, a handsomely gilt eagle's quill; while to Samuel Eckstein, the treasurer, was presented a huge gilt key. Both key and pen are to be worn as a mark of honor by the recipients at future banquets.

Among the entertainers of the party were Will Carleton, who recited his "Elder Lamb's Donation;" B. Russell Throckmorton read Joaquin Miller's "Columbus," and "Salvator Won the Race;" John L. Shepherd, president of the Jewellers' Association, told some brand-new "lies"; P. Daly, the comedian whose aim it is always to "be a gentleman, let it be ever so painful," was so overcome by his reception that he called upon his manager to speak for him. Letters were received from Mayor Gilroy and others expressing regret. Among the list was one from Lillian Russell, who thanked the Brotherhood cordially for voting her to be the most popular woman on the American stage, and said that she would have been glad to have been at the dinner had not a previous engagement prevented.

SLOPPY EDITIONS.

"MANY second-hand book-shops in New York," says a writer in a recent issue of the New York Sun, "are now selling by hundreds brand-new books made in a style of the art strange to most book-lovers. These books include many standard works. They are bound in cloth and sometimes illustrated. Binding, paper, and printing are all of the meanest and cheapest character, and the illustrations are of a piece with the physical characteristics of the books. Such books are manufactured by wholesale, as other cheap things are, to meet a special demand. They are seldom sold at all outside the second-hand shops save at a few dry-goods stores. They are sold by agents who deal upon commission, and who get what price they can for their wares so long as it is not below the cost of production. That is said to be as low as three and one-half cents per volume. The worst of these books are mean beyond anything that the dealer in cheap books usually has to sell. Some of them are designed to retail in the West at one dollar per volume; others at 50 cents, and others as low as 25 cents. They are sometimes sold in dry-goods stores in New York at eight cents per volume, and the price out West is all the way from that to what is called the publisher's retail price. They wholesale in the West at rates varying from six cents to sixteen or eighteen cents per volume.

"The recent tightness of money has brought many of these books to the shelves of local dealers in second-hand works. One dealer, who displays a great many, paid $35 per 1000 for the meanest of them, part of a lot held by a binder who could get paid for his work in no other way. These books were intended to retail at 25 cents. The second-hand dealer first displayed them at 10 cents per volume, and when the demand at that price slackened he reduced them to 7½ cents, and at length to 5 cents per volume. They are still selling, and the dealer has already begun to realize a profit on his purchase. He is selling with success at 25 cents per volume a lot of new cheap books of a somewhat better character. They are of the kind that country booksellers in the West sell at $1 per volume. Their paper is heavier and their type clearer and larger than those of the cheaper books."

POETS WHO PUBLISH THEIR POEMS.

THE pathos or really tear-starting part of the copyright records, according to the Librarian of Congress, relates to poetry. There are more books of poems in the National Library than the most careful and diligent student of American literature can imagine, and the sad thing about it is that by all odds the greatest number of these books are published by the authors themselves. In every other class of literature the copyrighted publications are mostly by large publishing houses, and the writers appear to have more or less the support of the reading public; but the poor poet, who appears to be the most persistent of all producers, appears to have to feed upon his own fancies and pay his own bills. Be the publishers as discriminating as they may, the copyright law has no favorites, and permits all who produce to claim the right of exclusive publication, and in the Congressional Library the volumes of the poetasters stand proudly by the side of the works of genius. Thousands of volumes of "Poems, published by the author," stand upon the shelves, and it is a revelation how many men and women, who would not attempt to write in prose, think that their wild fancies in a regular rhyme and stilted metre are worth preserving in print for posterity. In this class is found the very poorest example of literary effort. The number of productions of truly good poetry in this country is, however, increasing with considerable rapidity.

OBITUARY NOTES.

HENRY VIZETELLY, the well-known publisher, died in Farnham, Eng., on the 1st inst., at the age of seventy-four. He was born in London. In early life he was a wood-engraver, and was one of the first artists of the Illustrated London News. He became a publisher for the avowed purpose of introducing the works of Edgar Allan Poe and Harriet Beecher Stowe to the English people. He also published "Evangeline" and "Hyperion," with illustrations by Sir John Gilbert and Birket Foster, which have retained their charms and their artistic value. During the Franco-Prussian War he acted as the correspondent at the seat of war for the Illustrated London News. He remained in Paris for some time after the war, becoming intimately acquainted with the literature of France, and in 1880 decided to publish it in England. Then, to quote the New York Times, "came a series of books which were a revelation of the delicate art of the French vignettists of the eighteenth century, in such works as Dorat's 'Les Baisers' and Montesquieu's 'Temple de Guide'; of the luxuriant art of the romanticists, in such works as Théophile Gautier's 'Mademoiselle de Maupin'; of the admirably objective art of the realists, in such works as Gustave Flaubert's 'Salammbô.' His translations were almost perfect. There had never been as faithful transcriptions of stories from one language into another; there had never been as truly artistic renderings of French art into English literary form, and Vizetelly was encouraged by the praise which his work commanded for its technical skill to attempt to anglicize Zola's 'Rougon-Macquart.'" After the publication of "L'Assommoir" he was warned that he would be prosecuted if he continued. But he continued, and in July, 1889, despite the protests of influential people, was condemned, at the instigation of a society for the suppression of obscene literature, to imprisonment for three months. Pinero, Walter Besant, Lynn Lynton, Henry Irving, Edmund Yates, Archibald Forbes, and George Augustus Sala signed in vain a monster petition for Vizetelly's pardon. His books were confiscated, his business was ruined, and since then he was a broken and despondent man, to whom death came as a relief.

WILLIAM D. BANCKER, general superintendent of the American News Company, was found dead in bed at his home, No. 430 Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., on the morning of December 29. Mr. Bancker's death is attributed to neuralgia of the heart. Although he had been suffering from a pain in the region of the heart on Thursday, he retired that night in apparently good health. He was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., about 59 years ago, and began business with the publishing firm of Dick & Fitzgerald. He went into business a few years later on his own account, and his business was afterward bought out by the New York News Company, and Mr. Bancker was made manager. This position he held until 1879, when he was made secretary of the American News Company, and in 1885 he was made its general manager. Mr. Bancker was a member of the Montauk, Union League, Oxford, Germania, and Crescent clubs. He leaves a widow, four sons, and one daughter.

SIR SAMUEL W. BAKER, the distinguished African explorer and author, died December 30, aged 72 years. He was a prolific writer. Among his books are: "The Rifle and the Hound in Ceylon," 1854; "Eight Years' Wanderings in Ceylon," 1855; "The Albert Nyanza, Great Basin of the Nile, and Explorations of the Nile Sources," 1866; "The Nile Tributaries of Abyssinia and the Sword-Hunters of the Hamram Arabs," 1867; "Cast Up by the Sea," a story, 1869; "Ismailia: a narrative of the expedition to Central Africa for the suppression of the slave trade; arranged by Ismail, Khedive of Egypt," 1874; "Cyprus as I Saw It in 1879;" "My Tales for My Grandsons," 1883, and "Wild Beasts and Their Ways," 1890.

THE Indian mails that reached London on the 28th ult. announce the death of Charlotte Tucker, known best by the initials of "A. L. O. E." (A Lady of England). For the last eighteen years Mrs. Tucker has been engaged in missionary work in India, where the proceeds of her pen have been used to benefit the missions, and it is understood that all money earned by her works after death is also to be placed at the disposal of the Indian missions.

WILLIAM CHILVER, for a number of years commercial traveller for McLoughlin Brothers, died at his home in Jersey City, on the 2d inst., aged 40 years. Mr. Chilver early in the '80's was connected with Chas. T. Dillingham, whom he left to represent Porter & Coates. About eight years ago he became connected with McLoughlin Brothers. He leaves a wife and four children.

EUSEBIO GUITERAS, a widely known author of Spanish and French works, and for many years a resident of West Philadelphia, Pa., was buried on the 29th of December, from his home, No. 3720 Chestnut Street.

ERNEST LAMBERT, assistant editor of The Forum, died at Southern Pines, N. C., on the 30th ult., aged thirty.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOSTON, MASS.—The third meeting of the creditors of Winkley, Dresser & Co. will be held at a court of insolvency in Boston on February 9, at 10 A.M., to prove their claims.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Henry Thorpe, for twenty-three years in the English and American second-hand book business with J. Sabin & Sons, A. L. & S. B. Luyster, will do business on his own account from 449 14th Street, Brooklyn, N. Y. He will undertake cataloguing, appraising, arranging, and classifying libraries, and other literary work. Second-hand book catalogues will be welcomed.

CAMDEN, ME.—Fred Lewis, bookseller, has opened his new store in the Masonic Block.

MADISON, KAN.—John Gilman has sold his book and stationery store.

NEW YORK CITY.—J. Selwin Tait & Sons have removed from Union Square to more convenient quarters at 65 Fifth Avenue, one door below Charles Webster & Co.'s, and almost opposite Macmillan & Co.'s. This firm has a large number of interesting books in course of preparation, of which announcement will be made in due time.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—A. E. Eddy, dealer in old books and magazines, has removed to 100 Gallop Street.

RICO, COLO.—J. F. Kelly, bookseller, is closing out his business.

ST. CLOUD, MINN.—W. L. Rosenberger & Co., booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—The main office of the American Magazine Exchange, of Schoharie, N. Y. (Geo. L. Taylor and Charles Feeck, Jr., proprietors), beginning with the 1st of this year, will be at 1217 Olive Street, and the Chicago agency with F. M. Morris of "The Book Shop," 113-115 State Street. The Eastern agency will remain as before at Schoharie, N. Y.

WALLA WALLA, WASH.—W. H. Kimball, bookseller, has sold out.

WINDSOR, MO.—C. F. Mitchell, bookseller, has removed from Windsor.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

HENRY S. MORRIS, No. 546 North Fifth Street, Philadelphia, is about to issue to subscribers "The Jews of Philadelphia: their history from the earliest settlements to the present time."

JAMES O'NEIL, Washington, D. C., has just sold for $50 his curious edition of Shakespeare's poems (with the Blot and Madan title-page) to J. Aug. Ferreira Da Costa, Brazilian minister to Russia.

THE BLAKELY PRINTING CO., Chicago, has just published "Events of the Week," a series of cartoons by "H. R. H.," originally printed in the Sunday issues of the Chicago Tribune from July, 1892, to November, 1893.

F. W. HELMICK, 265 Sixth Avenue, New York, has issued a religious song by Mrs. Julia A. Carnev, entitled "Deal Gently with the Erring," that has been set to music by Charles Baker. The song has been copyrighted, and retails at forty cents.

It is reported that a leading Bostonian and a lover of solid literature has only with difficulty been prevailed upon to omit from his will a clause prohibiting his first heir from inheriting the bulk of his property if the said heir "habitually reads newspapers."

THE man who was said to be the original of Charles Dickens' Barnaby Rudge lately died in Chatham, England. His name was Walter de Brisac, and he was a packman by profession. He was educated far in advance of his class, and was a clever talker. Dickens, while living at Gad's Hill, often strolled into Chatham and held many conversations with the man. One of the things that made De Brisac conspicuous was that he was always dressed in the costume of the Georgian period.

GEORGE P. HUMPHREY, 25 Exchange Street, Rochester, N. Y., to commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of the founding and settlement of the town of Bath, Steuben County, N. Y., will publish early in July, for subscribers only, three hundred signed and numbered copies of the "History of the Settlement of Steuben County," including notices of the old pioneer settlers and their adventures, by G. H. McMaster, Bath, 1853. It will be a fac-simile from the now scarce original.

THE annual meeting of the stockholders of the Stationers' Board of Trade was held at the office of the board, No. 99 Nassau Street, on the 1st inst. The following were elected trustees for the year 1894: Alexander Agar, James C. Alken, Daniel S. Appleton, Henry C. Bainbridge, Charles T. Dillingham, Eberhard Faber, A. J. C. Foye, Walter M. Jackson, Samuel I. Knight, J. Val Koch, Amos M. Lyon, William H. Malis, Charles McLoughlin, George L. Pease, Arthur Scribner, Emil Strobel, Frank Squier, and Frank W. Wood.

PICK-UPS.

TO LARRY HUTTON.

From The Bookbuyer.

You may write it LAURENCE, all you please,
Your name to Fame to marry;
But you're only whistling down the breeze,
For folks will call you LARRY.
And if the reason you inquire,
I'll tell you all I know:
Why is Joseph Jefferson, Esquire, Called JO?

You may spell your LAURENCE with a U,
Till it's Scotch as a green gleagarry,
But other folks are nam'ng, too;
And your name they say is LARRY.
And if you're curious in the least
To know what that comes from:
Why was T. Bowling, late deceased,
Called TOM? H. C. BUNNER.

NUTLEY, N. J., Oct. 19, 1893.

WANTED THE EARTH.—Lady Customer: I'd like to get a pen.—Bookseller: Yes, ma'am, here is a nice smooth writing one.—Lady Customer: Have yees one with a handle to it? (Paralysis ensued.) Actual occurrence in a Western bookstore. E. M. W.

ITS MAIN DEFECT.—Scriblet: I don't see what is the matter with this story. I have sent it to a dozen magazines and they all refused it.—Wright: Lemme see. You laid the improbable plot of it about a hundred years ahead, didn't you?—Scriblet: Yes.—Wright: Well, that's what's the matter with it. That would be about the time they would wish to print it if it were accepted.—Indianapolis Journal.

Now Ready!!! The New Illustrated Edition
OF THE
GENUINE "OXFORD" TEACHERS' BIBLE,
WITH NEW HELPS AND A MAGNIFICENT NEW SERIES OF MAPS.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS

comprise sixty-four full-page plates reproducing in fac-simile authentic documents, monuments, pictures, and portraits, illustrating the History of the Old and New Testaments, and present a novel and valuable departure, never before attempted in works of this description on a scale so full and complete. They have been selected and described by E. MAUNDE THOMPSON, D.C.L., LL.D., Principal Librarian of the British Museum; A. S. MURRAY, LL.D., F.S.A., Keeper of Greek and Roman Antiquities, British Museum; and E. A. WALLIS BUDGE, Litt.D., F.S.A., Acting Assistant-Keeper of Egyptian and Assyrian Antiquities British Museum.

In every division of the work frequent reference has been made to the Revised Version, a competent knowledge of which is universally regarded as invaluable and indispensable to Bible students.

This New Edition is also supplied without the Illustrations.

BOOKS OF THE DAY.

SIDE POCKET SERIES.

We have just issued the following numbers of these beautiful books:

A GUIDE TO PALMISTRY. By Mrs. ELIZA EASTER-HENDERSON. One of the most interesting and charming books of the year. The hand is a perfect indicator of character. This book gives you the key. Handsomely illustrated. Bound in silver and white. Cloth, postpaid, 75 cents.

THE OPEN SECRET. By A. PRIEST. A message from Mars. A unique and intensely interesting book. Illustrated with head and tail pieces. Bound in linen, stamped in photographic brown. Cloth, postpaid, 75 cents.

DR. JOHN SAWYER. By Mrs. ELVINA J. BARTLETT. A story of two worlds. Thirty original designs for chapter ornaments. Cloth, postpaid, 75 cents.

ONE DAY. By ELBERT HUBBARD. A Book of Striking Originality. Chapters: I. Morning; II. Noon; III. Afternoon; IV. Night. * Cloth, postpaid, 75 cents.

JUST OUT:

ZENIA THE VESTAL. By MARGARET B. PEEKE, author of "Born of Flames," etc. Pages 355, handsome cloth, postpaid, $2.00.

"The 'Arabian Nights' of occultism! Intermixed with charming narrative, its words of wisdom sparkle and gleam like diamonds."—Wade's Fibre and Fabric.

ALBERT BRISBANE. One handsome volume. 365 pages, cloth, postpaid, $2.00.

Mr. Brisbane's unique experience as a student, a traveller and a philosophic observer, together with his rare power of original thought, invests with peculiar interest every subject touched upon—prominent among which is a vivid picture of the social movement from the days of St. Simon down to the present.

UNVEILING A PARALLEL. By TWO WOMEN OF THE WEST. Paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.25.

A brilliant and thrilling story. The hero gives a most interesting account of his visit to a neighboring planet where women occupy the same position, relatively, as men do on the earth.

IT IS POSSIBLE. By HELEN VAN-ANDERSON. Postpaid, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.25.

A clean and wholesome metaphysical romance. The author shows wonderful insight into child-life, and the story is delightful.

NOW READY.

Civilization During the Middle Ages,
Especially in Relation to Modern Civilization.
By GEORGE B. ADAMS, Professor of History in Yale University. 8vo, $2.50.

Prof. Adams is a recognized authority on mediæval history and civilization, and has produced a brilliant picture as well as a suggestive account of the conditions and characteristics of the Middle Ages and their gradual evolution. The period covered is from 476 to 1500, A.D., and the method employed considers tendencies mainly and assumes a knowledge of the general facts.

Philosophy of History—France.

By ROBERT FLINT, D.D., LL.D., Professor of Divinity in the University of Edinburgh. 8vo, $4.00.

Dr. Flint's great work, the fruit of many years of study and research, contemplates in its entirety a history of the intellectual development of France, Germany, Italy, and England. The first of the three volumes contains an analysis and discussion of Historical Philosophy in France and in French Belgium.

JUST PUBLISHED.

REMBRANDT.

His Life, His Work, and His Time. By ÉMILE MICHEL. Edited and prefaced by Frederick Wedmore. Richly illustrated with reproductions from Rembrandt's works. 2 vols., royal 8vo, $15.00.

"The best specimen of art literature published in years, and probably the completest and most satisfactory commentary on the work of any single artist."—Hail and Express.

"The volumes contain sixty-seven full-page plates and 350 illustrations in the text. The best French processes have been used in the making of these illustrations, and they are of invaluable service in vivifying the text. An elaborate catalogue completes the work, which is, without question, the best life of Rembrandt available for English students."—New York Tribune.

The Governors of Virginia.

A Brief Review of the Discovery of the Continent of North America, with a History of the Executives of the Colony and of the Commonwealth of Virginia. By MARGARET VOWELL SMITH. 8vo, cloth, illustrated, 457 pages, $2.50, postpaid.

The purpose of this book is to lay before the public, in a convenient form, a review of the Governors of Virginia from the establishment of the Colony to the present day.

Various rare and explanatory State Papers are embodied in this volume, and the personal sketches are gathered from the most authentic sources.

Biography of the English Language.

By ARTHUR MACARTHUR, LL.D., Associate Justice Supreme Court of District of Columbia, retired; author of "Education in Its Relation to Manual Industry," Essays, Addresses, etc. 12mo, cloth, 417 pages, $1.50, postpaid.

The subject of this work is the English Language, and the object is to furnish an account of its rise and progress from the earliest periods of its history. This naturally reaches back to the primeval races from whom the English people sprang, and relates to the manner in which their varied dialects finally merged into our present form of speech.

NOTES IN SEASON.

HUNT & EATON have just brought out a new illustrated edition of "No!", Rose Terry Cooke's excellent story for young people, first published a number of years ago. They have also issued a new edition of Mrs. S. S. Robbins' Rock Cove Series in six volumes, and "The Gillettes," in six volumes, by the same writer.

ROBERTS BROTHERS will publish at once "Public Libraries in America," by W. I. Fletcher, librarian of Amherst Library and the compiler of "Poole's Index to Periodical Literature," the "A. L. A." and "Annual Literary" indexes. The work, which has been delayed for the addition of considerable statistical and other matter in the form of appendixes, will have a number of full-page illustrations, and, of course, an ample index.

McLOUGHLIN BROTHERS will publish, by arrangement with the Deutsche Verlags-Anstalt, a new illustrated edition of "Grimm's Fairy Tales." The German publishing firm has furnished duplicates of the original 180 wood-cuts, so that the McLoughlin edition will in every respect be equal to the German. McLoughlin Brothers also call attention to their full lines of valentines, which range from the inexpensive ordinary comics to the more expensive souvenirs of the season. Among the latter, their new lace valentines are revelations in the way of dainty elegance and beauty.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just ready "The Romance of an Empress," in which the remarkable career of Catherine II. of Russia is set forth in the light of new historical discoveries, by K. Waliszewski; an important new work on "Germany and the Germans," by W. Harbutt Dawson, who has made a remarkably close and discriminating study of German life and institutions of the present day; also, a new story in their Town and Country Library, entitled "Earls court: a story of provincial life," by Alexander Allardyce, one of the rising English writers. They also announce a new novel by Maarten Maartens, entitled "The Greater Glory."

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just ready the third volume of "The Writings and Correspondence of Thomas Jefferson," edited by Paul Leicester Ford; also, the first volume of "The Writings of Thomas Paine," edited by Moncure D. Conway, and issued uniform in style with Mr. Conway's "Life of Paine." The "Writings" of Paine will be comprised in four volumes and will be also issued in a limited edition of one hundred and fifty copies, uniform with the limited editions of the "Writings" of Washington, Jefferson, etc. They have also published "The Religion of a Literary Man," by Richard Le Gallienne, characterized by the Academy as "probably the sunniest book on religion ever published;" and "The Story of Japan," by David Murray, a new volume in the Story of the Nations Series.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish on the 20th the long-expected "Life and Correspondence of Dean Stanley," the ripe results of the long and careful labor of R. E. Prothero, recently chosen editor of the Quarterly Review; also, a new book by Dr. James McCosh, entitled "The Philosophy of Reality," which will consist of two parts, the first discussing "Reality: what place it should hold in Philosophy;" the second, "The Prevailing Types of Philosophy: can they logically reach Reality?" The Scribners will publish shortly Augustine Birrell's new volume of essays, "Men, Women, and Books," which covers a variety of interesting topics treated in the author's well-known brilliant, original manner; a new work by Prof. George T. Ladd, of Yale University, entitled "Psychology, Descriptive and Explanatory," a treatise on the phenomena and development of human mental life; and a handy "Chess Pocket Manual," by the well-known authority, C. H. D. Gossip, which is not merely a guide to the openings of chess, but directs beginners safely into the labyrinths of the game, with diagrams of exceptional and instructive positions, and a collection of carefully selected illustrated games by acknowledged celebrities.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (16mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (same: 15 cm.); Tt. (same: 12½ cm.); Po. (4mo: 20 cm.). Sq., ob., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Adams, G: Burton. Civilization during the middle ages, especially in relation to modern civilization. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 7+483 p. O. cl., $2.50. [54]

Author is professor of history in Yale University. The object of his book is "to show how the foundations of our civilization were laid in the past, and how its chief elements were introduced, and to depict its progressive development until it had assumed its most characteristic modern features." In other words, it is to present as clear a view as possible of what is the most important thing for all introductory study at least, and for the permanent intellectual furniture of most—the orderly and organic growth of our civilization.

- Busbey, T. A., ed. and comp. The biographical directory of the railway officials of America. Ed. of 1893. Chic., The Railway Age and Northwestern Railroader, 1893 [1894.] 418 p. O. cl., $3. [73]
Gives concisely in alphabetical order the important facts in the careers of four thousand railway officials.
- Chaplin, Stewart. Lecture notes on the New York law of wills, for use in connection with Chaplin on wills. N. Y., Baker, Voorhis & Co., 1894. c. 64 p. O. pap., $1. [73]
- Chaunoy, Shelton, (pseud.) The Greek Madonna. N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1894. c. '93. 4-815 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c. [74]
The scene is laid in New York City. The hero, whose name is "Shelton Chaunoy," is first a student of Trinity Theological Seminary, and afterwards a chaplain in one of the hospitals on the city's islands. The story is a rambling narrative of his affection for two women, his courtship taking place mostly on the elevated roads. His special religious ideas, which seem to run to high churchism, he symbolizes under the figure of the Greek Madonna. Names of fashionable New Yorkers are freely mentioned, and incidents of local history drawn in regardless of chronology.
- Onthall, Edith E. Only a guard-room dog. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1894.] c. 6+223 p. il. D. cl., $1.35. [75]
Tangle, a little sky-terror, makes friends with Pat O'Flanagan, of the Loyal Dumbartonshire Regiment, while the latter is on guard, and is soon adopted as guard-room dog. His clever tricks in the barracks and his bravery in both England and the Soudan are fully recorded in a pathetic story.
- Donkin, Bryan, jr. Text-book on gas, oil, and air engines, or internal combustion motors without boiler. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1894. 30+419 p. il. O. cl., $5.50. [76]
- Dryden, J. The satires of Dryden; ed. with memoir, introd., and notes, by J. Churton Collins. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 137 p. 16°, (Macmillan's English classics.) cl., net, 40 c. [77]
- Du Croquet, C. P. College preparatory French grammar. N. Y., W. R. Jenkins, 1893 [1894.] c. '93. 264 p. D. hf. leath., $1.25. [78]
The object of this book is to make the study of the French easier and more concise in order that more time may be given to literature and conversation. Its arrangement is quite new and will materially aid the pupils in remembering what has once been studied. The rules concerning a subject have been carefully arranged in one lesson and can easily be learned in a few minutes.
- Duke, E. T., M.D. Handbook on disinfection and methods for the prevention of contagious diseases. Cumberland, Md., Harry K. Duke & Co., 1894. c. 2+56 p. T. flex. cl., 25 c. [79]
- Eddy, R., D.D., ed. The Universalist register: giving statistics of the Universalist church and other denominational information, etc., for 1894; no. 59. Bost., Universalist Pub. House, 1894. 112 p. D. net, pap., 25 c. [80]
- Edwards, Emilie. A royal heiress; or, a youthful error. Chic., E. A. Weeks & Co., [1894.] c. 3+316 p. por. il. D. (The Lucile ser., no. 2.) pap., 50 c. [81]
An American love-tale.
- Federal reporter, v. 56. Cases argued and determined in the circuit courts of appeals and circuit and district courts of the U. S. Permanent ed. July-Oct., 1893. With tables of federal reporter cases published in v. 3, C. C. A. reports; 4, U. S. appeals reports. A table of statutes cited and construed is given in the index. St. Paul, West Pub. Co., 1894. c. 88+1096 p. O. shp., $5. [82]
- Flint, Rob. Historical philosophy in France and French Belgium and Switzerland. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 27+706 p. O. cl., $4. [83]
The first volume of a great work, the fruit of many years of study and research, which contemplates in its entirety a history of the intellectual development of France, Germany, Italy, and England under the general title of "History of the philosophy of history." It contains an analysis and discussion of historical philosophy in France and French-Belgium and Switzerland. It is a contribution also to some extent to the history of France. Montaigne, Turgot, Voltaire, Rousseau, the Ultramontanist and liberal Catholic schools, the socialistic schools, the "spiritualistic movement," naturalism and positivism all form subjects of chapters. Dr. Flint is professor of divinity in the University of Edinburgh.
- General digest of the decisions of the principal courts in the United States, England, and Canada. Refers to all reports off. and unoff. first published during the year ending Sept., 1893, incl. the L. - Rickett, J. Compton. The quickening of Caliban: a modern story of evolution. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1894.] c. '93. 2+253 p. D. cl., $1. [116]
The Caliban of the story is a Zulu, exhibited in London as a man-ape or "the missing link." He excites the sympathy both of a young girl, the daughter of an African missionary, whose mother was a half-caste, and a learned Cambridge professor. Whether "the quickening of Caliban" comes from love or knowledge is left to the reader to decide.
- Ross, Albert, [pseud. for Linn Boyd Porter.] Young Miss Giddy. N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1893 [1894.] c. '93. 4+343 p. D. (The Albatross novels.) pap., 50 c. [117]
"Young Miss Giddy" gives the author an opportunity to describe a pleasant journey through Florida, New Orleans at Mardi Gras time, Texas and Mexico. It also enables him to answer a woman writer who, in a Boston newspaper, recently expressed the belief that young girls inclined to misbehave would do so in spite of chaperonage. One of the heroines of the story is the daughter of a millionaire, the other of a carpenter. The story opens in New York City.
- Russell, W. Clark. The emigrant ship. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1894.] c. '93. 3+348 p. D. cl., $1. [118]
Charles Morgan becomes the mate of a merchant ship sailing from Bristol ostensibly for Cape Town; he discovers that it has no cargo, and that the captain and owner are a pair of scoundrels who intend to scuttle the ship for the insurance; he shows them that he knows their plans and he is quickly put ashore on a desert island. After being rescued and having many adventures, he falls in with a ship which by a series of mishaps has lost its officers and has no one to navigate it, and takes command of it. It is an emigrant ship with one hundred girls aboard bound for Australia, and the crew had decided to land on an uninhabited island and form a colony, having persuaded some of the girls to join them. Here begins again a series of wonderful adventures.
- Sells, Mrs. Harriet A. de. New things to eat, and how to cook them: fancy dishes and relishes not to be found in ordinary cook-books. N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1894. 3-64 p. D. cl., 50 c. [119] Savory dishes at the present time being so fashionable, and novelties in them being so much inquired for, the author has been persuaded to publish this small book of recipes, many of which are new, and a few original.
- Salt, H. S. Richard Jefferies: a study. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 3+128 p. por. S. cl., 90 c. [120] Considers, in a series of chapters, Richard Jefferies as man, as naturalist, as poet-naturalist, as thinker, and as writer. The work is the substance of articles contributed by Mr. Salt to Temple Bar, Pull Mill Gazette, etc. A bibliographical appendix of eight pages gives the work of Jefferies, criticism, biography, etc., and portraits of him.
- Sanderson, Edgar. History of England and the British empire: a record of constitutional, naval, military, political, and literary events from B.C. 55 to A.D. 1890, with maps and tables of genealogy. N. Y., F. Warne & Co., 1893 [1894.] 35+1008 p. O. cl., $3. [121]
A record based upon the best authorities and written in an interesting narrative style for general readers and young students of British history. A series of original maps serve to show the great territorial changes that have occurred since earlier times and the gradual progress of the formation of the British empire in later days.
- Schwatka, F. In the land of cave and cliff dwellers. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1894.] c. '93. 9+385 p. il. D. cl., $1.25. [122]
Records in a popular way the adventures, researches, and other doings of two expeditions sent into northern Mexico in the years 1889 and 1890, the patron of the first being America and of the other The Herald, both Chicago publications. The story is told, however, as if it were a continuous undertaking, to make it more succinct and interesting. Information is given of the cave and cliff dwellers still to be found in Mexico.
- Seavy, Manson. Practical business book-keeping by double entry for grammar, high, and commercial schools, academies, and for self-instruction. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1893 [1894.] c. '93. 8+298 p. il. O. hf. leath., $1.55. [123]
- *Smith, Margaret Vowell. The governors of Virginia: a brief review of the discovery of the continent of North America, with a history of the executives of the colony and of the commonwealth of Virginia. Wash., D. C., W. H. Lowdermilk & Co., 1894. 457 p. il. 8°, cl., $2.50. [124]
- *Squire, J. E. The hygienic prevention of consumption. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1893 [1894.] 13+194 p. D. cl., $2. [125]
- Taylor, H. C. Chatfield. An American peeress. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1894. c. '93. 3-293 p. D. cl., $1. [126]
A young Englishman, after working for six years in a wholesale boot and shoe house in Chicago, thinks himself very fortunate to be in receipt of a salary of three thousand dollars and to have won the love of the daughter of the head of the firm. On the eve of his marriage he reads in an English paper of the sudden death of three relatives, which makes him heir to a peerage. The story deals with his wife's advent in London society, the admiration she excites, an estrangement that comes between them, and her method of winning back her husband's love.
- *Thudichum, J. L. W., M.D. Treatise on wines, their origin, nature, and varieties; with practical directions for viticulture and vinification. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 387 p. il. 8°, cl., $1.75. [127]
- *Walford, Mrs. L. B. The one good guest. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1894. 8+390 p. 12°, (Longmans' pap. lib., no. 2.) pap., 50 c. [128]
- Waliszewski, R. The romance of an empress, Catharine II. of Russia; from the French. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. 4+458 p. por. O. cl., $1. [129]
This romance is founded strictly on history. Documents published by the Russian Imperial Society and other materials scattered in obscure Russian periodicals are the main foundations for the author's work. The life of Queen Catharine embraced the years from 1729 to 1794, one of the most interesting historical periods of the world. The author is fearless and gives most interesting details of Russian life. The book has been forbidden in Russia.
- *Wawn, W. T. The South Sea Islanders and the Queensland labour trade: a record of voyages and experiences in the western Pacific, from 1875 to 1891; il. by the author. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 440 p. 8°, cl., $4. [130]

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

GEORG EBERS has nearly ready a new novel entitled "Cleopatra."

GEORGE MOORE has written a study of the life and works of Zola, which appears in the January number of the English Illustrated Magazine. "Esther Waters" is to appear in January. Mr. Moore has largely rewritten that part of "Esther Waters" which has already been given to the public.

"PRINCESS" JOHNSON, of the Mohawk tribe of Canada, has taken Boston by storm with recitals of her poems. "She is," so says the New York Sun, "perhaps the most unique figure in the literary world of this country. She is a Mohawk, the daughter of Owanonsyshon ('the man with a big house'), the well-known chief of the Six Nations. Her father was a cultivated man, and her mother came from an English family."

FRANCIS PARKMAN, the historian, left in the keeping of the Massachusetts Historical Society a brief autobiography, which will be included in the biography of Parkman which is to be prepared by Dr. Ellis. Mr. Parkman left an estate valued at $195,950. This does not include a summer estate at New Castle, N. H., copyrights, stereotype plates, and contracts, these being of uncertain value. The real estate is valued at $55,000, and the personal property at $140,950.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 13, 1894.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

A NOTE IN SEASON.

IN reading the reports of the various trades, the closing of mills and factories, the stagnation in new undertakings, and retrenchment generally during the past year, we realize that the book trade has reason to congratulate itself upon its undiminished activity. Amid all the discouraging surroundings and commercial disaster it has accomplished a year's work as a producer, at least, that surpasses all its previous records. The American publishers have issued more books during 1893 than in any previous year, the books recorded by us being over two hundred more than in 1892, and the titles recorded by the Librarian of Congress exceeding the record of the previous year by over 3000. Detailed statistics of the activity of the book trade will be given as usual in our Annual Summary Number, which will be published in the last week of this month.

This issue, by the way, has come to be regarded by the bookseller and librarian as one of the most important published by our office. It contains, as we need not remind those acquainted with the previous issues of the number, not only a complete list of the books recorded by us during the past year, by author, title, and subject, but a comprehensive summary of the leading books in every department as well as statistics of the book production of England and France, and the lists of the leading publishers. A more complete and compact working tool for the book trade we venture to say is not published in any other country. We need therefore hardly ~~mention~~ the advantages to the publishers—especially known—to be represented by full lists of their books of 1893 in its advertising pages. Every book represented in our lists should also have its place, accompanied if possible by a concise descriptive note, in our advertising pages. Such amplification of the hint given by our list and summary would prove useful to the bookseller in looking up or ordering the book, and must redound to the profit of the publisher concerned. The larger houses do not need this reminder, and the smaller ones will also be able to dispense with it when once they have recognized the force of our suggestion.

To make the measure of misery of the foreign exhibitors at Chicago complete came the disastrous fire on the 8th inst., destroying the Liberal Arts Building, in which were stored, among others, a large part of the French book exhibit, the German University exhibits, and others, nearly all of which are probably ruined, if not by fire, by water. Fortunately the more expensive and valuable books and exhibits had long ago been removed. Yet the loss undoubtedly will still be a serious one, and the disagreeable impression on the minds of the foreign exhibitors will be lasting. It is to be deplored, under the circumstances, that a more liberal policy should not have been adopted by the customs authorities at Chicago, so that our guests from abroad, who so generously contributed to the success of the Exposition, might have packed up or disposed of their exhibits, and returned to their homes within a month after the fair closed. As it was, many of the foreign exhibitors experienced considerably more annoyance in placing the gifts made to a government department or public institution than they should have had in disposing of goods sold during the exhibition.

THE D. LOTHROP CO. FAILURE.

THE D. LOTHROP Co. failed on January 5, with estimated liabilities of about $225,000. The obligations are considerably over $200,000, and may amount to $250,000. The assignment was voluntary, for the benefit of creditors, Louis D. Brandeis being the assignee. While the failure was unexpected, it did not come as a great surprise to the book trade of Boston, as it has for some time been an open secret that the house was having an uphill fight. Soon after Mr. Lothrop's death two years ago the retail business was discontinued and the large store on Washington Street, opposite Bromfield, was sold out. Then Wide Awake, the most popular and successful of their children's magazines, was disposed of to the Century Co., and consolidated with St. Nicholas. Recently the affairs of the company are said to have reached a point where it was necessary either to make an assignment or to borrow money with which to continue the business. Several large notes falling due at this time, and the inability of the company to meet them, was the immediate cause of the failure. Mr. Brandeis, through his law-partner, G. H. Nutter, stated that the assignment was not forced in the slightest respect; probably an extension could have been secured from creditors and the crisis tided over for a time, but the assignment would have had to come ultimately, and it was thought better to make it now than later.

The assignment is attributed to two causes—the death of Daniel Lothrop, the head of the house, in 1892, since which time the affairs of the concern have not had the same efficient management, and the existing business depression, which seriously affected the firm. The liabilities are definitely stated as between $200,000 and $250,000; but no specific estimate has so far been made as to the assets. The stock is large and includes, besides books on hand, plates, presses, etc., but its value is somewhat problematical.

The corporation of the D. Lothrop Company was organized by D. Lothrop & Co., and was controlled by the late Daniel Lothrop and his brothers John and James. Since Mr. Lothrop's death, his widow, who as "Margaret Sidney" is well known as a writer of children's stories, has been practically at the head of affairs. It is understood that D. Lothrop & Co. control the popular "Pansy" books and some other of the more important publications. The house has for about thirty years been prominently identified with American juvenile literature. It had its beginning in 1850, when Mr. Lothrop bought the stock of books held by Elijah Wadleigh at Dover, N. H., enlarged the business, and developed it successfully; but it was not fairly launched in the trade until the close of the war, when Mr. Lothrop established himself in Boston, and gradually built up a large and thriving publishing business. Later he issued Wide Awake, a magazine for young people, which soon attained a very large circulation; then came Babyland, Our Little Men and Women, and The Pansy.

It is probable that the magazines Pansy, Babyland, and the other serials will not be interrupted in their publication, but will be continued under the authority of the assignee. There has as yet been no definite statement as to whether there will ultimately be insolvency proceedings or whether the business will be reorganized and continued, though the latter is more than probable.

EXHIBIT OF AMERICAN WOOD-CUTS IN BERLIN.

MR. H. C. JOES, president of the Art Department of the Chicago's World's Fair, has co-operated with Regierungs-Rath Lippmann, the director of the Royal Copperplate Museum, to bring about an exhibition of the work of the Society of American Wood-Engravers in the German capital. Mr. J. P. Davis, the president of the society, has undertaken to have the wood-engravings that were on exhibition at the fair, which include some of the finest work of recent years, shipped to Germany, where they will be placed in one of the rooms of the National Gallery at Berlin, and made free to the public. There will also be included some of the reproductions of paintings in other forms of the reproductive arts, which will add to the interest of the exhibit of the wood-engravings, an art in which America has reached almost perfection.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

MAYNARD, MERRILL & CO. VS. WILLIAM BEVERLEY HARISON.

MAYNARD, MERRILL & Co. on Jan. 4 began suit in the U. S. Circuit Court, New York, against William Beverley Harison, of 59 Fifth Avenue, for violation of the copyright law. The violation of copyright charged is as remarkable as it is novel, and the case certainly deserves to be recorded among the curiosities of copyright. Maynard, Merrill & Co. claim that on July 23, 1891, Alonzo Reed copyrighted a work on the elementary study of the English language, the exclusive right to publish and sell the same being vested in Effingham Maynard & Co. The latter firm was soon after succeeded by Maynard, Merrill & Co., to whom the right was transferred. In the spring of 1893 Maynard, Merrill & Co. state that they began the printing of the book and delivered the sheets, covers, etc., to George W. Alexander, of 108 W. 18th Street, for binding. On June 21 Mr. Alexander's bindery was destroyed by fire and its contents badly damaged. It is alleged that the debris was passed upon as worthless by the insurance adjusters, and Mr. Alexander thereupon engaged some Italian junkmen to remove it. The latter, it is claimed by the plaintiffs, collected some of the sheets of Mr. Reed's books and some of the bound copies, the impaired and soiled sheets being bound into volumes much like the originals. In conclusion Maynard, Merrill & Co. say that since June, 1893, W. B. Harison has sold and exposed for sale a number of copies of the book, made up from damaged and soiled sheets, in violation of the original copyright, and they ask that Mr. Harison be required to appear and testify as to how many books he may have sold, or may have on hand; whether he has put the printed leaves in book form; whether he has any of the sheets now on hand; and upon a number of other points.

The defendant denies that he has taken sheets and bound them into volumes much like the original, and claims that he simply took the damaged bound books, that were on the market through the connivance of the plaintiffs, and had them repaired. We understand that the defendant advised the complainants at once, upon receipt of notice that they considered their rights infringed upon, that he was willing to adjust matters satisfactorily if he were in the wrong, and that he was willing to submit the matter to a referee and abide by the latter's decision.

THE LIABILITY OF A PUBLIC LIBRARY FOR CIRCULATING LIBELS.

A RATHER curious libel action against the authorities of the British Museum Reading-Room will shortly be tried in London, in which very eminent counsel have been engaged. A pamphlet was printed in America which contained an alleged libel upon a well-known American lady, who has taken a very prominent part in political matters and in social reform. The authorities of the British Museum obtained a copy of this pamphlet, and added it, we understand, to the library, so that it was accessible to the public which uses the museum's reading-room. The plaintiff considers that in doing so the authorities have made themselves liable for uttering or circulating the alleged libel, and it is upon these grounds that she is bringing her action.

COMMUNICATIONS.

EXTENSION OF THE SATURDAY HALF HOLIDAY.

New York, January 8, 1894.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: The extension of the Saturday half holiday is of vital importance to those engaged in the book and stationery trade.

It is the prevailing opinion of the employers and those holding responsible positions in our large houses that the Saturday half holiday might be extended from March to November.

Such houses as Macmillan & Co., and Longmans, Green & Co. extend fully that time, and such houses as Charles Scribner's Sons, Dodd, Mead & Co., and the house I am with, G. P. Putnam's Sons, grant from May and June to September inclusive, and might be easily induced to make the extension provided other houses could be brought into line.

Will you kindly take up the question by securing the views of those in the trade and have granted this great boon for recreation and consumption of literature? P. N. JOHNSTON.

IN RE THE PUBLICATION OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE PARLIAMENT OF RELIGIONS.

New York City, Jan. 4, 1893.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: Referring to your notice of the various editions of the Proceedings of the Parliament of Religions in the issue of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY for December 23, 1893, we desire to explain that the work edited by Rev. Dr. John Henry Barrows is the only one officially authorized by the Columbian Exposition. The addresses published in the two volumes are, with only a few exceptions, from the original mss. and not from stenographic reports. Of the 165 speakers, 149 have declared that no person is authorized to publish their papers except the Parliament Publishing Co. Dr. Barrows gave very nearly three years of his time to the promotion of the Parliament of Religions and is in possession of many facts not known to any one else. Such facts referred to are letters of acceptance, letters of objection to the Parliament of Religions, and other correspondence that came to him personally as chairman of the Religious Congress. Very few of these were made public, and, of course, are published only in Dr. Barrows' work. Therefore we do not think it is far from the truth to say that Dr. Barrows' work is the most reliable, the most authentic, and the authorized edition of the World's Parliament of Religions. We do not claim that no one else has a right to issue an account of the proceedings of the World's Parliament of Religions, but we believe it just to the public that they know the above facts.

It is not our object to do any other publisher an injustice.

J. A. HILL & Co.,
Eastern Agents of the Parliament Pub. Co.

OBITUARY.

EDWARD SPENCER MEAD

EDWARD SPENCER MEAD, of the firm of Dodd, Mead & Co., died on the 10th inst., at his home in Southampton, Long Island. Ten days ago he was seized with the grippe, and that, with Bright's disease, caused his death. Mr. Mead was born in New York City forty-seven years ago. His father died when the son was in his infancy, and he was brought up in the family of his uncle, Robert Hoe, the printing-press manufacturer.

After obtaining his early education in New York, he entered Yale University, from which institution he was graduated in the class of '69. Soon afterward he married the daughter of John S. C. Abbott, the historian. In 1870 he and Mr. Frank H. Dodd bought out the publishing business of M. W. Dodd, the latter's father. Mr. Mead had charge of the larger part of the literary department while Mr. Dodd looked after the manufacturing end. In addition to his other duties, Mr. Mead found time to write several books, and also translated some works of French authors. Mr. Mead belonged to the University Century, and Tuxedo clubs, the Yale Alumni Association, and was a trustee of the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Formerly he belonged to the Players' Club. In Southampton he belonged to the Meadow and Golf clubs. He was a member of the Episcopal church at Southampton. His wife survives him. There are no children.

OBITUARY NOTES.

W. W. HUTCHINSON, formerly a bookseller in Appleton, Wis., died at Riverside, Ill., last month.

ANTON WITTER, of the firm of C. Witter, established in St. Louis, Mo., in 1850, and one of the best known among the Western German booksellers, died on the 20th ult.

JOHN PARKER, one of the oldest booksellers of St. Louis, Mo., died recently at St. Luke's Hospital in that city. He was eighty-two years old and went to St. Louis from Cecil County, Maryland, where he was born.

FRANCIS B. MOHUN for many years a business man in Washington, D. C., died suddenly on the 18th ult. Mr. Mohun with his brother opened a book-store on Brentano's corner in 1879, and continued in business there until 1883. He then organized the Riggs Fire Insurance Co. He was secretary of the company at the time of his death.

FRANÇOIS BOUSSOD.—A few months ago we regretted to announce the death of Goupil, the founder of the celebrated business now known as Bousod & Valadon. M. François Bousod, for forty years M. Goupil's untiring fellow-worker, has now also died, after a long and painful illness, at the age of sixty-seven. One of M. Bousod's sons married a daughter of the painter Gérôme, who himself had married a daughter of Goupil, so that the families were closely related by marriage. M. René Valadon, the surviving member of the firm, is also a son-in-law of M. Bousod. At the time of M. Goupil's death we gave the history of the house.

ELIZABETH P. PEABODY died on the 3d inst., at her home in Jamaica Plain, Mass., in her 94th year. She was one of the advanced educators of the century. Miss Peabody succeeded Margaret Fuller as teacher of history in Mr. Alcott's school in Boston. She was prominent among the agitators for the abolition of slavery and for the higher education of women. At the age of 60 she learned the Polish language because of her interest in the struggles of Poland for liberty. Her literary productions include "Æsthetic Papers," "Crimes of the House of Austria," "The Polish-American System of Chronology," "Reminiscences of Dr. Channing," etc. Elizabeth's sister Sophia married Nathaniel Hawthorne, the novelist, and another sister, Mary, became the wife of Horace Mann, who founded the school for deaf and dumb.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ATHENS, TENN.—Walter Bell has been succeeded in books and stationery by Miss Mamie Chessnutt.

BOSTON, MASS.—D. Lothrop Co. have made an assignment. Particulars are given elsewhere in this issue.

BOSTON, MASS.—It is likely that Ticknor & Co. will retire from the publishing business for the present. They have already disposed of The Architect, and are making arrangements to dispose of their other books.

CHICAGO, ILL.—C. M. Barnes is endeavoring to form the C. M. Barnes Company to publish school-books. The capital will be $100,000. The office will be at 75 Wabash Avenue.

DES MOINES, IA.—Redhead, Norton, Lathrop & Co., who since 1852 as Redhead, Wellslager, and other modifications of the firm-name, have been doing a large and prosperous book and stationery business, have made an assignment. The assets are said to be about $100,000; the liabilities are not known. The firm filed a mortgage of $27,000 before the assignment, making Mr. Norton assignee. The preferred creditors are the Des Moines National Bank, $20,000, and Anna S. Redhead, $7000.

FRAMINGHAM, MASS.—The Lake View Publishing Company, of South Framingham, Mass., has made a voluntary assignment. Charles J. McPherson, editor of the South Framingham Tribune, is the treasurer of the company. E. M. McPherson, of 53 State Street, has been appointed trustee.

FULTON, KY.—Hall & Norman, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

HAILEY, IND.—Stewart Brothers, booksellers, have sold out.

LINCOLN, NEB.—Clason & Fletcher are to be succeeded in the book and stationery business by W. E. Burlingame, of Omaha.

MACON, GA.—J. W. Barke & Co., who in 1865 succeeded Barke, Boykin & Co., who established themselves in 1860, have made an assignment. They were well and favorably known as publishers and booksellers, and their misfortunes will be heard with regret by many of their friends in the trade.

MEMPHIS, TENN.—Isaacs & Co., booksellers, have made an assignment.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—F. D. Van Valkenburgh, bookseller and stationer, formerly of 106 Camp Street, is now at 9 Chartres street, near Canal.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Geo. F. Wharton, having found his store on Carondelet Street too small for the accommodation of his customers, has opened a branch on Canal Street, where he has a fine display of toys and fancy articles in celluloid and aluminium.

NEW YORK CITY.—Baker & Taylor Co. will remove this month to 5 and 7 East 16th Street, to the quarters until recently occupied by the United States Book Co.

NEW YORK CITY.—The directors of the Diossy Law-Book Company, of 231 Broadway, have applied to the Supreme Court for a dissolution of the company, and the order to show cause has been set down for April 19. The company was incorporated three years ago, with a capital stock of $50,000, all but seventy-five shares of the stock being held by Charlotte M. Diossy. It was stated on the application that the company had discontinued business, disposed of its assets, and settled with the creditors. The business will be continued as a partnership.

NEW YORK CITY.—The assignee of the late firm of Saalfeld & Fitch is offering to compromise at 50 cents on the dollar. First two payments to be made in cash Feb. 1, 1894 and April 1, 1894, balance payable in two notes due Oct. 1, 1894 and Jan. 1, 1895.

NEW YORK CITY.—Julia A. Sadlier has retired from the publishing and bookselling firm of D. & J. Sadlier & Co.

RIVERSIDE, CAL.—A receiver has been appointed for J. M. Johnson, bookseller.

ST. JOSEPH, MO.—Henry C. Kiefer has opened a book and stationery store.

SANDUSKY, O.—H. W. Curth, bookseller, is dead.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—S. B. Fisher, bookseller, had his stock badly damaged by fire and water. Insured.

WASHINGTON, IA.—J. D. Glasgow & Lytle have purchased the book and stationery business of A. A. Rodman.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

F. W. FARNELL, 238 Fourth Avenue, N. Y., has published a copyrighted comical song and dance, entitled "We Are Never Young But Once," the words being by Frank Lee Farnell, the music by Virginia R. Cox.

GINN & Co. will publish in April "The Gate to the Anabasis," by Clarence W. Gleason, of the Roxbury Latin School, Boston, which is intended to do for beginners in Greek what "The Gate to Caesar" has done for beginners in Latin.

A. D. WELD-FRENCH, of Boston, purposes issuing in an edition of 300 copies his "Notes on the Surnames of Francus, Francels, French, etc., in Scotland," with an account of the Frenchies of Thorndykes and a discussion of the family connection with the Stuart kings.

ROBERTS BROTHERS will publish soon "Memoirs of Two Young Married Women," by Balzac, translated by Miss Wormeley; "The Aim of Life: plain talks to young men and women," by the Rev. Philip Stafford Moxom; and "Alle-gretto," a volume of poems by Gertrude Hall.

LEE & SHEPARD are about to publish a new book by Henry Wood under the title of "The Political Economy of Natural Law." Its purpose is to outline a political economy which is practical and natural rather than theoretical and artificial, being a study of inherent laws and principles.

JOEL MUNSELL'S SONS, Albany, N. Y., announce "The Pioneers of New France in New England, or the French Incitement of the Indians against the English settlements, with documentary French evidence and illustrations," by James Phinney Baxter, president of the Maine Historical Society.

THOMAS WHITTAKER will publish this week two books of more than ordinary interest, the one being entitled "The Ascent of Faith, or, grounds of certainty in science and religion," by Alexander J. Harrison, who is widely known in this field of thought; the other, the Bishop of Ripon's (Dr. W. Boyd Carpenter) studies on the influence of Christ in character under the title of "The Son of Man Among the Sons of Men."

WM. GEORGE BRUCE, Milwaukee, Wis., will publish presently a unique work entitled "Great Educational Exhibits." The illustrations for the book are from sketches made by a special artist at the Liberal Arts department last summer and will be practically complete. When it is considered that the exhibits represent in reality the labor of ten million children, as well as the present educational status of the United States, it may be said that the volume will prove an interesting one.

THE son of Henry Vizetelly, the engraver, war correspondent, and English translator of French novels, whose death at Farnham, England, was announced last week, now lives in New York and is an editorial assistant on the Standard Dictionary, which Funk & Wagnalls Co. publish. Mr. Frank H. Vizetelly says that his father was abandoned by his counsel, and had no other alternative than to plead guilty at the trial, which resulted in his imprisonment for three months for having translated the works of Zola.

THE UNIVERSITY PRESS at Cambridge has undertaken to publish a complete translation of the Pali Játaka or "Buddha Birth-stories," which are supposed to be the oldest collection of folk-lore stories in existence. The first volume is now in the press, and has been prepared by Mr. R. Chalmers, late of Oriel College, Oxford, a former pupil of Prof. Rhys Davids. It will contain the forty stories given in Prof. Rhys Davids' discontinued translation, but will also give the remainder of the first volume of Prof. Fausbøll's edition of the Pali text.

THE general financial depression does not seem to affect materially the sales of new books by popular authors. Mrs. Burnett's late book, "The One I Knew the Best of All," published by the Scribners during November, is already in its 11th thousand. Mrs. Earle's "Customs and Fashions in Old New England," issued by the same firm, has reached its third edition within three months, while Robert Grant's "Opinions of a Philosopher" and Robert Louis Stevenson's "David Balfour," both recently published, have obtained a sale of six and eight thousand copies respectively.

AT the meeting of the trustees of the Stationers' Board of Trade, held on the 9th inst., the following officers were elected: President, Charles T. Dillingham; first vice-president, Henry C. Bainbridge; second vice-president, Charles McLoughlin; treasurer, Alexander Agar; and secretary, Wm. W. Davis. We believe this is the first time in years that a bookseller has been chosen president of the Board, and we therefore congratulate our fellow-tradesman on his unanimous election. It is an honor justly conferred, because few men in the Board have worked more faithfully and disinterestedly in its behalf, in committee and as first vice-president, than Mr. Dillingham. The late president, Mr. Frank Squier, has been honored by an appointment as park commissioner by Mayor Schieren, of Brooklyn.

FUNK & WAGNALLS CO. have just ready in their series of Columbian Historical Novels "Humbled Pride: a story of the Mexican War," by John R. Musick, with illustrations by F. A. Carter. This volume supplies a readable and interesting account of historical events pertaining to the administration of Presidents John Quincy Adams, Andrew Jackson, Martin Van Buren, William H. Harrison, John Tyler, Jas. K. Polk, Zachary Taylor, Millard Fillmore, and Franklin Pierce. They have also just ready "Our New Hymnal, for general use and special services," by Philip Phillips and his son Philip. The hymnal is designed for use in every Christian congregation, and has a concordance index whereby any pastor or leader can find and select, at a glance, the right subject or sentiments needed for any religious occasion.

BUXTON & SKINNER, St. Louis, Mo., issued for the holidays a limited edition of an original, in fact unique book, entitled "The Documents in Evidence." The story was told by Henry M. Blossom, Jr., in a series of clippings from the Harvard Graduate's Magazine, Town Topics, St. Louis Life, and letters from the three characters in the story. The clippings were pasted in the centre of the page marked with red or blue pencil; the letters are excellent fac-similes of those supposed to have been written on office paper with printed letter-heading, club paper with device of flag, and fashionable papeterie with monogram. These were carefully pasted in, and the whole bound in a stiff cover with a design consisting of addressed envelopes in which not even the detail of a bona-fide cancelled stamp was overlooked, bills of florist and confectionery, etc. The whole idea was cleverly and most artistically carried out and reflected great credit on author and printer.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish on the 24th inst. Bret Harte's new volume, entitled "A Protégée of Jack Hamlin's, and other stories;" "The Rousing of Mrs. Potter, and other stories," in which the author, Miss Gertrude Smith, collects several of the bright short stories which she has printed in The Century and other periodicals; "A Symphony of the Spirit," a selection of some three-score poems of faith and uplifting thought from the works of Wordsworth, Tennyson, Emerson, Browning, Longfellow, Lowell, and others, for the consolation of those who have lost dear friends, edited by George S. Merriam; new editions of "Jones on Chattel Mortgages," "Jones on Liens," and "Jones' Forms in Conveyancing;" the second edition of "Lloyd on Building;" and Gov. Bell's work on "The Bench and Bar of New Hampshire," already noted. They have just ready in the Riverside Paper Series Bret Harte's "A Sappho of Green Springs, and other stories."

MACMILLAN & Co. have just ready Prof. H. H. Boyesen's long-promised commentary on Ibsen's plays. They announce for early publication a new work by Lewis Carroll. It will be a continuation of "Sylvie and Bruno"—a book which, although it may never hope to rival his immortal "Alice" in the popular favor, appeals even more, perhaps, to older people, as it rambles along in its own engaging fashion, mingling the most charming of nonsense-verses and the profoundest of metaphysics, without even a pretence at consistency or continuity. Diana Clifford Kimber will soon publish through Macmillan & Co. a text-book on "Anatomy and Physiology for Nurses," in connection with Louise Darche. Miss Kimber's experience as assistant superintendent in both the New York City and the Illinois Training School for Nurses has led her to feel the need of such a manual and to undertake the work. It is designed to fill a middle place between the text-book written for medical students and that for use of children in schools. The subject is presented in a scientific manner, but the technicalities which discourage the average student have been, so far as possible, avoided.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

IN PRESS:

The Annual Literary Index,

INCLUDING PERIODICALS, AMERICAN AND ENGLISH, ESSAYS, BOOK-CHAPTERS, ETC., SPECIAL BIBLIOGRAPHIES AND NECROLOGY OF AUTHORS.

EDITED BY W. I. FLETCHER and R. R. BOWKER,

With the co-operation of members of the American Library Association and of the Library Journal staff.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1893 complements the "Annual American Catalogue" of books published in 1893 by indexing (1) articles in periodicals published in 1893; (2) essays and book-chapters in composite books of 1893; (3) authors of periodical articles and essays; (4) special bibliographies of 1893; (5) authors deceased in 1893. The two volumes together make a complete record of the literary product of the

The volume includes also the features of the "Co-operative Index to Periodicals," originally a monthly supplement to the Library Journal, then extended into a quarterly in an enlarged form, and later issued as an annual volume.

One vol., paper, $3; hf. mor., $3.50.

ORDER EARLY:

Annual Catalogues, 1893.

The Annual American Catalogue for 1893 is nearly ready for press. It will contain:

- (1) Directory of American Publishers issuing books in 1893.
- (2) Full-title Record, with descriptive notes, in author-alphabet, of all books recorded in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, 1893.
- (3) Author-, title-, and subject-index to same, in one alphabet.
- (4) Publishers' annual lists for 1893.

The edition is limited, and to secure copies orders should be sent at once. The price is $3.50 half leather, $3.00 in sheets; if ordered, and paid for, before publication, the price will be $3.00 half leather, $2.50 in sheets.

The Annual Catalogue for 1886 and 1887 is now out of print. But few copies of the Annual Catalogue for 1888, 1889, 1890 and 1891 are on hand.

We also supply the English Catalogue for 1893 as soon as ready, price $1.50, paper; the Annual American and English Catalogues, 1893, can be had in one volume, half leather, $5.00.

Early orders for both Catalogues are solicited.

IN PREPARATION:

A New Illustrated Edition

GRIMM'S FAIRY TALES.

This will be the American issue of the edition just published in Germany by the Deutsche Verlags Anstalt. By exclusive arrangement with the German publishers, the illustrations, 180 in number, will be printed from electrotypes taken directly from the original wood-cuts, and will be equal in every respect to those in the German edition. They are by two of the best German artists, and the engraving is of the highest quality. The work is not only the best edition of Grimm, but one of the finest illustrated books published in some time. It will be sold at a popular price.

New Books Just from the Press.

The Governors of Virginia.

A Brief Review of the Discovery of the Continent of North America, with a History of the Executives of the Colony and of the Commonwealth of Virginia. By MARGARET VOWELL SMITH. 8vo, cloth, illustrated, 457 pages, $2.50, postpaid.

The purpose of this book is to lay before the public, in a convenient form, a review of the Governors of Virginia from the establishment of the Colony to the present day.

Various rare and explanatory State Papers are embodied in this volume, and the personal sketches are gathered from the most authentic sources.

Biography of the English Language.

By ARTHUR MACARTHUR, LL.D., Associate Justice Supreme Court of District of Columbia, retired; author of "Education in Its Relation to Manual Industry," Essays, Addresses, etc. 12mo, cloth, 417 pages, $1.50, postpaid.

The subject of this work is the English Language, and the object is to furnish an account of its rise and progress from the earliest periods of its history. This naturally reaches back to the primeval races from whom the English people sprang, and relates to the manner in which their varied dialects finally merged into our present form of speech.

W. H. LOWDERMILK & CO.,

PUBLISHERS,

Washington, D. C.

A Gentleman of France.

Being the Memoirs of Gaston de Bonne, Sieur de Marsac.

By STANLEY J. WEYMAN, author of "The House of the Wolf," etc. With frontispiece and vignette by H. J. Ford. 12mo, cloth, ornamental, $1.25.

"Even the unenthusiastic may feel enthusiasm over this book. As a historical novel, bold, strong, dashing, and thoroughly clean, it is one of the best we have read for many years. We sat down for a cursory perusal, and ended by reading it delightedly through. . . . We very cordially recommend this book to the jaded novel-reader who cares for many action more than for morbid introspection."—Churchman, N. Y.

"One of the best novels since 'Lorna Doone.' It will be read and then re-read for the mere pleasure its reading gives. The subtle charm of it is not in merely transporting the nineteenth-century reader to the sixteenth that he may see life as it was then, but in transforming him into a sixteenth-century man, thinking its thoughts and living its life in perfect touch and sympathy . . . it carries the reader out of his present life, giving him a new and totally different existence that rests and refreshes him."—N. Y. World.

"No novelist outside of France has displayed a more definite comprehension of the very essence of mediæval French life, and no one, certainly, has been able to set forth a depiction of it in colors so vivid and so entirely in consonance with the truth. . . . The characters in the tale are admirably drawn, and the narrative is nothing less than fascinating in its fine flavor of adventure."—Boston Beacon.

"We hardly know whether to call this latest work of Stanley J. Weyman a historical romance or a story of adventure. It has all the interesting, fascinating, and thrilling characteristics of both. It is a romance which will rank among the masterpieces of historic fiction."—Boston Advertiser.

"A romance after the style of Dumas the elder, and well worthy of being read by those who can enjoy stirring adventures told in true romantic fashion. . . . The great personages of the time—Henry III. of Valois, Henry IV., Rosny, Rambouillet, Turenne—are brought in skilfully, and the tragic and varied history of the time forms a splendid frame in which to set the picture of Marsac's love and courage . . . the troublous days are well described and the interest is genuine and lasting, for up to the very end the author manages effects which impels the reader to go on with renewed curiosity."—Nation, N. Y.

By WILLIAM HARBUTT DAWSON, author of "German Socialism and Ferdinand Lassalle," "Prince Bismarck and State Socialism," etc. 2 vols., 8vo, cloth, $6.00.

"This excellent work—a literary monument of intelligent and conscientious labor—deals with every phase and aspect of state and political activity, public and private, in the Fatherland. . . . Teems with entertaining anecdotes and introspective aperçus of character."—London Telegraph.

"With Mr. Dawson's two volumes before him, the ordinary reader may well dispense with the perusal of previous authorities. . . . His work, on the whole, is comprehensive, conscientious, and eminently fair."—London Chronicle.

The Story of the Sun.

By Sir ROBERT S. BALL, F.R.S., author of "An Atlas of Astronomy," "The Cause of an Ice Age," etc. 8vo, cloth, $5.00.

Prof. Ball's entertaining style is known to so large a number of readers of his popular astronomical works that this volume, which brings together the results of all the latest investigations concerning the sun, will find a ready welcome.

The Greater Glory.

A Story of High Life. By MAARTEN MAARTENS, author of "God's Fool," "Joost Avelingh," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

Press comments on "God's Fool."

"Maarten Maartens is a great novelist and a remarkable man. . . . Few books since the best days of Dickens and Thackeray contain such quiet humor and depict human nature with such an unerring touch."—Cleveland World.

"Maarten Maartens has secured a firm footing in the eddies of current literature. . . . Pathos deepens into tragedy in the thrilling story of 'God's Fool.'"—Philadelphia Ledger.

"One of the greatest successes of the year."—New York Tribune.

General Scott.

By General MARCUS J. WRIGHT. A new volume in the Great Commanders Series, edited by Gen. JAMES GRANT WILSON. With portrait and maps. 12mo, cloth, gilt top, $1.50.

General Wright's book is a work of popular interest. The subject is one of the most picturesque and impressive to be found in our military history, and the author, in availing himself of the latest authorities, has produced a book which seems likely to be accepted as a standard work in its class.

How to Study and Teach History,

With Particular Reference to the History of the United States. By B. A. HINSDALE, Ph.D., LL.D., Professor of the Science and the Art of Teaching in the University of Michigan, author of "Schools and Studies," etc. Vol. 25, International Education Series. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

The aim of this book is practical, and it was written with particular reference to the needs of elementary and secondary teachers, although it will be found of interest and value to teachers and students of all grades. It is one of the most important and valuable volumes in the series.

Life and Correspondence of Dean Stanley

By R. E. PROTHERO

With the co-operation of DEAN BRADLEY. With Portraits. 2 vols., 8vo, $8.00.

The striking personality of Dean Stanley and his pre-eminence in the ecclesiastical, literary, and social history of his time, give to this biography a special value and importance. Based upon Dean Stanley's voluminous correspondence, the work is complete, thorough, and authoritative.

"The book in every way fulfils the anticipations that were aroused by the announcement of it, and is one of the great biographies of the day."—Chicago Tribune.

From the N. Y. Tribune:

"Mr. Prothero has done his part of the work well; with discretion, insight, good taste, and, so far as it is critical, with more fairness and equanimity than the biographer is wont to show. The portrait he gives is adequate and life-like."

From the Philadelphia Telegraph:

"One of the most important of recent books. It is certainly one of the most valuable biographies of late years, and it will not be surprising to see it take rank as a standard book. The interest in it will be deep and sincere."

NOTES IN SEASON.

STONE & KIMBALL, Cambridge, Mass., and Chicago, Ill., have in preparation a volume of poems by Gilbert Parker, entitled "A Lover's Diary;" Maurice Thompson's Harvard's Phi Beta Kappa poem of last year, entitled "Lincoln's Grave;" and books of verse by Grant Allen, Hugh McCulloch, Jr., Arthur O'Shaughnessy—and, by the way, his poems are to be edited by Mrs. Louise Chandler Moulton—the "Tom Hall" whom we have so often noted in Life, and other periodicals.

S. C. GRIGGS & Co., Chicago, will publish on February 10 a work entitled "The Union Pacific Railway," a study in railway politics, history, and economics, by John P. Davis. This volume gives the complete history of the Union Pacific Railway, beginning with its inception in 1832—shows how localism and sectionalism defeated Congressional action from 1845 to 1860—the action of Congress from 1861 to 1864, when the charter acts were signed by Lincoln—the building of the road, completed in 1869—the history of the Credit Mobilier—the action of the Treasury Department—the proceedings in the United States Courts, under the Thurman Act—and a discussion of the various plans proposed for the settlement of the question. Maps showing the various routes proposed and their terminals, and official statistics accompany the work. The author has made the subject a special study, and has had unusual facilities for examining the data of the work.

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish early in February the second volume of George William Curtis' works, edited by Prof. Norton; a new volume in the Odd Number Series, "Parisian Points of View," from the French of Ludovic Halévy, by Edith V. B. Matthews; "In Direct Peril," a new story by David Christie Murray; "The Mystery of Abel Forefinger," by William Drysdale, in Harper's Young People Series; "A Child's History of Spain," by John Bonner, author of similar works on Greece and Rome; "The Science of the Earth," by Sir J. William Dawson; and "Dodge's Practical Biology," by Prof. Charles Wright Dodge, a laboratory guide for high-school and college students. They have in preparation for publication during the same month "The Jewish Question," "Our English Cousins," by Richard Harding Davis, "Memoirs of Sherlock Holmes," by A. Conan Doyle, and Constance Fenimore Woolson's latest novel, "Horace Chase." They are about to publish in their Franklin Square Library "The Swing of the Pendulum," a novel by Mary Frances Peard, which will delight especially the summer tourist who is familiar with the picturesque coast of Norway.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS announce "The Life and Correspondence of Rufus Klog," by his grandson, Dr. Charles R. King, based upon letters and official papers covering the years from 1784 to 1825; the first volume of "A History of Social Life in England," edited by H. D. Traill, which will be completed in about six volumes; "Oliver Cromwell," by Samuel H. Church, and "Studies in Mediæval Life and Literature," by the late Prof. E. T. McLaughlin, of Yale University. The next volumes in The Story of the Nations series will be "The Christian Recovery of Spain," by H. E. Watts; "The Story of the Crusades," by T. A. Archer, and "The Story of Australasia," by Greville Tregarthen; and the contributions to The Heroes of the Nations series will be "Cicero, and the Fall of the Roman Republic," by J. L. Strachan-Davidson; "Henry the Navigator," by C. Raymond Beazley, and a reissue of Noah Brooks' "Life of Abraham Lincoln." Later will be issued a third and cheaper edition of Leslie Stephen's "Hours in a Library;" "Secularism, Its Progress and Morals," by John M. Bonham; "Tennyson, His Art and His Relation to Modern Life," by Rev. Stopford A. Brooke; "Art in Theory," by George L. Raymond; "Piers Plowman—1363-1399," by J. J. Jusserand; "American Song," by A. B. Simmonds; and a new edition up to the end of 1893 of W. Swan Sonnenschein's "Best Recent Books."

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ad.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: P. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (same: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (same: 15 cm.); TV. (same: 10½ cm.); Ps. (same: 10 cm.). Sq., oblong, designates square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Given in plain, untechnical language the essential facts in regard to the means by which electricity is employed as an agent for the transformation and transmission of power, and its application to the operation of machinery. These facts comprehend the construction and principles of the electric motor, and its relations to the dynamo, and through it to the steam-engine, water-wheel, or other source of power. The selections of motors as examples of the different kinds of construction have been made from those which have stood the test of practical use and embody the leading principles of the best construction.

[Anon.] N. Y., The Baker & Taylor Co., 1893 [1894.] c. '93. 3+183 p. il. D. cl., $1.50; silk, $1.75; mor., $2.50; cf., $3. [178]
Contains selections from over sixty authors, among whom are the following: Dante, Petrarch, Chaucer, Wordsworth, Longfellow, Harte, Rossetti, Byron, John Hay, Faber, St. Amedas, Nicephorus Callistus, Goethe, Milton, Poe, Scott, Adelaide, Anne Procter, Harriett McEwen Kimball; with many full-page illustrations of the Madonnas; and original designs by the compiler.
- La Rame, Louise de, ["Ouida," pseud.] Two offenders. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1894. c. '93. 2-265 p. D. cl., $1. [179]
Two stories—"An ingrate" and "An assassin." The hero of the first is an old Frenchman, who had once been a famous artist, who preferred liberty and starvation to the restraints of an "institution," where his wants were generously attended to but his independence taken from him. The second story has its scene among the peasants of Italy, and is a tale of sin and sorrow, ending with the killing of the hero, who richly deserves his fate.
- Ladd, G: Trumbull. Psychology, descriptive and explanatory: a treatise of the phenomena, laws, and development of human mental life. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 11+676 p. O. cl., $4.50. [180]
Prof. Ladd, professor of philosophy in Yale University, says in his preface: "Briefly characterized, this book designs to give a clear, accurate, and comprehensive picture of the mental life of the individual man; and also to explain this life as it appears in the light of all the resources of modern psychological science, and with the idea of 'development,' as essentially characteristic of this, as it is of all life, constantly kept in mind."
- Le Gallienne, R: The religion of a literary man; (Religio scriptoris.) N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1893 [1894.] 11+119 p. D. cl., $1. [181]
The interesting reflections on spiritual matters of a man of culture, addressed to "average humanity." He discusses many subjects, such as What is sin? What is pain? Free-will, The hereafter, Essential Christianity, Dogma and symbolism and the religious senses, in answer to the question "Is Christianity really so obsolete to-day as its opponents assume?"
- Lewis, Angelo J; ["Professor Hoffmann," pseud.] Puzzles—old and new; containing over 400 puzzles, mechanical, arithmetical, and curious, of every conceivable variety; il. with over 500 diagrams, etc., and a key and index, by Professor Hoffmann (the conjurer.) N. Y., F: Warne & Co., 1894. 396 p. 8°, cl., $1.50. [182]

Penelope, the grand-daughter of Dean Sidney, is the heroine. The story tells of her quiet life in the quaint old deanery, of the advent of the Allingtons in St. Christopher's Close, of the sad episode in Penelope's life, which necessitated her making her home at Overcombe, and finally gives the interesting details of an old-fashioned love-affair.

Traces the story of Japan from its beginnings to the establishment of constitutional government. "It would be impossible," the author says, "to state in detail the sources from which I have derived the material for this work. I place first and as most important a residence of several years in Japan, during which I became familiar with the character of the Japanese people and with the traditions and events of their history." The numerous works treating of Japan, he had occasion to consult, are mentioned in the narrative.
- Musick, J: R. Humbled pride: a story of the Mexican war; il. by F. A. Carter. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls Co., 1893 [1894.] c. '93. 11+462 p. il. D. (Columbian historical novels, no. 11.) cl., $1.50. [190]
This volume supplies a readable and interesting account of historical events pertaining to the administration of Presidents John Quincy Adams, Andrew Jackson, Martin Van Buren, William H. Harrison, John Tyler, Jas. K. Polk, Zachary Taylor, Millard Fillmore, and Franklin Pierce. The slavery question forms a large part of the narrative; the rise of Mormonism, the building of the Erie canal, and the acquisition by the United States of nearly one-fourth of its present territory are also subjects dealt with. The romance between the Stevens and the Estevan family continues, connecting the volume with the former ones of the series.

The plan of a congress of all the religions of the world during the Exposition, suggested by President Charles C. Bonney, met with an unusual response and excited a warm interest. Representatives were sent to it not only from all Christian denominations, but from the Hebrews and various Oriental religions. They were brought together not only to promote and deepen the spirit of human brotherhood among religious men of diverse faiths, but to set forth, by those most competent to speak, what are deemed the most important distinctive truths held and taught by such religion, thus showing how many beliefs are held and taught in common. Light was also sought from all on the great social problems of the present age. The addresses and papers embraced in these volumes finely illustrate the idea which brought these great and world renowned men together, they are full of wisdom and instruction upon many timely points. This work will be in two volumes, and is claimed to be the authorized edition, containing a number of letters and correspondence which only the present editor could possess. Finely illustrated with portraits, etc.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

WILL CHEAPENING PAY?

SWEEPING "cuts" in the prices of several well-known and presumably well-established magazines have been among the surprises of the last twelve months. Periodicals of apparently assured prosperity, reaching a wide circle of readers, suddenly reduced their subscription rates one-half or more, and it has been predicted that the new year will see a general collapse in the prices of magazines of even the highest grade. A desire to increase advertising was, probably, the first cause of these reductions; it was no doubt thought a bold financial stroke to be able by this means to show advertisers a mammoth subscription list, and thus secure an enormous amount of advertising, that would more than make up the loss sustained by the reduction. The element of competition must also be considered: A reduces the price of his magazine from twenty-five to fifteen cents; B "goes one better," and cuts his rates from twenty-five cents to ten cents. Yet it is certainly worth while to consider whether in the long run this cheapening of magazines will pay. Naturally, people are thoroughly willing to pay ten, fifteen, or twenty-five cents where they once paid twenty-five, thirty-five, or fifty; and probably many would be tempted by the lower rates; but it is a popular axiom that the cheapest things are the dearest, and the cheapening in the price of a magazine will no doubt in time be accompanied by a depreciation of its value in the minds of its readers, who will regard the reduction as a tacit confession of weakness or unworthiness. The whole business of this wholesale cut in rates smacks too strongly of the "tremendous sacrifices" and "slaughter of prices" in which the big "department stores" delight; and we agree fully with Mr. Chrisholm's opinion as expressed in a recent issue of The Journalist, "that it is a deliberate sacrifice of literature to commercialism, and in the end it will be found as disastrous as it was unnecessary."

A sudden reduction in the price of a really first-class magazine must mean a corresponding decline in its literary quality; it is impossible that a paper or magazine made simply "to sell cheap" can equal one that stands on its own merits and is pecuniarily able to maintain a high standard of literary worth. The one method by which the cheap magazine can keep up a certain amount of pseudo-literary attraction is found in the eagerness of "prominent" persons to see themselves in print. Articles from the pens of "leading" public men, popular Congressmen, or sensational "reformers" will take the place of the contributions of authors of real standing in literature, and should the ten-cent magazine become the magazine of the future, writers whose work is really worthy will be forced to accept lower prices or to see themselves crowded out by the throng of "notables" eager to swell the ranks of literature. There is little occasion to fear this result, however. The magazines of the highest grade, those that have always maintained an honorable and foremost place in American periodical literature, will hardly succumb to this pernicious cheapening tendency; they have so far pursued unmoved the "even tenor of their way," and unless all signs fail they will continue so to do, while their smaller brethren rush upon an untimely fate.

So far as books are concerned, we think all are agreed that cheapening has not been found profitable. If there has been any doubt on the subject, last year's experience will probably suffice to allay it. It has been estimated that in 1893 over five million books were sold at figures that did not meet the cost of manufacture. Sixteen houses that tried this experiment went down; others are falling now, and more will undoubtedly follow. Half of those who failed will probably never be heard from again; the others will wait for more favorable times to re-enter the field. Cheapening means skimping or loss. If the publisher skimps he may still command a constituency, but it will be an inferior one, and in that case he will be obliged to do a greater amount of work for less return, besides working on a lower plane. For these reasons as well as for many others, cheapening certainly does not pay.

THE restriction upon the free admission of books, engravings, photographs, bound or unbound etchings, maps or charts, that they shall not have been printed or bound within the twenty years next preceding the date of importation, has been stricken out of the Wilson bill, now under discussion. It was also decided to admit hydrographic charts for the use of mariners free of duty. The bill now provides for their admission for the use of the United States government and the Library of Congress only.

EASTER comes quite early in the season this year, and an early Easter is said to be good for spring trade. St. Valentine's Day, Lenten season, and Easter give the booksellers a fairly good opportunity for business. Now is the time to look over the field and prepare for it.

FIRST CENTURY OF GERMAN PRINTING AND BOOKSELLING IN AMERICA.*

SCHAEFER & KORADI, Philadelphia, have published for the German Pioneer-Verein, of Philadelphia, a valuable bibliography of early German printing in America, by Professor Oswald Seidensticker, of the University of Pennsylvania. It is entitled "The First Century of German Printing in America," covering the period 1738-1830, and is dedicated to Abraham H. Cassel, the celebrated Pennsylvania German antiquary, of Harleysville, and collector of the Cassel Library, now divided between the Pennsylvania Historical Society and a Dunkard college in Kansas. Professor Seidensticker's bibliography is a surprising revelation of the extent and activity of the German press in Colonial America, and his introduction is a most interesting résumé of the history and tendencies of these early publications. During the period covered, German printing was carried on at thirty-one places in Pennsylvania, three in Maryland, four in Ohio, five in Virginia, one in Massachusetts, one in New York, one in New Jersey, and one in Nova Scotia. It is possible that an arrangement of the publications under places of issue would have demonstrated more forcibly how unexpectedly large was the total publication in any one of these localities; but the chronological arrangement which has been adopted is better and easier for ordinary reference use. The first entry in the bibliography is Conrad Beissel's "Das Büchlein vom Sabbath," published in Philadelphia in 1728, presumably by Andrew Bradford. Although both Bradford and Franklin printed German books in English type, German printing really began with Christopher Sauer, the first to use German type, in 1738. In his earliest publications Sauer varied the spelling of his name, but after 1740, in his German publications, he uniformly printed his name Christoph Sauer, and in his English publications (which are quite numerous) he printed his name Christopher Sower, a form which his descendants have since maintained. The "Weyrauchshügel," a large hymn-book, printed by Sauer for the Ephrata Brethren in 1739, was the first American book printed in German type. He also published in German three editions of the Bible and Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," before either had been published in America in English; he likewise published the first German newspaper. The early publications were largely religious, written by or published for the many German mystical sects, Inspirationists, Dunkards, Ephrata, etc. The mystical hymns of the "Kleine Davidische Psalterpiel" were favorites among the Mennonites, Dunkards, and other sects, and in Pennsylvania ten editions of this hymn-book were printed up to 1830. The largest book printed in Pennsylvania up to 1817 was the splendid folio edition of the German Bible, printed in that year by Johann Bär, at Lancaster, as Braght's "Martyrer-Spiegel," printed at Ephrata in 1748, was the largest book of the Colonial period. Among the later publications the religious tone predominated, but there were also works of a miscellaneous nature. Among these were some of Franklin's political treatises, the writings of Anthony Bonzet against slavery,

* Seidensticker, Oswald. The first century of German printing in America, 1728-1830, preceded by a notice of the literary work of P. D. Pastorius. (Published by the German Pioneer-Verein, of Philadelphia.) Phila., Schaefer & Koradi, 1893. 104+254 p. O. pap., $1.

published by the younger Sauer, in 1759; an edition of "The Vicar of Wakefield," published in Philadelphia in 1772; and the first German dictionary published in America, issued by William Rapp, at Lancaster, in 1812. The bibliography is preceded by a list of the printed writings of Franz Daniel Pastorius, embracing six titles and including "Pastorius' Primer," published in Philadelphia in 1700, and supposed to be the first Pennsylvania school-book. A list of the printers and publishers of German books from 1728 to 1830 is also given. Professor Seidensticker has made use of all available sources of information in preparing his work, and has had the assistance of members of most of the chief historical and antiquarian societies of Pennsylvania. In order to give fully the printing record of the older printers, their English publications have been included; but special care has been taken to exclude books published abroad with a false Pennsylvania imprint. In the case of older and rarer books the libraries where they may be found have been indicated. A photographic reproduction of the title of the first German print by Benjamin Franklin is given as a frontispiece to the volume.

THE LOTHROP FAILURE—STATEMENT OF LIABILITIES AND ASSETS.

A MEETING of the creditors of the Lothrop Company was held Monday, January 15, George M. Hobbs acting as chairman and Edmund H. Pennell as secretary.

A committee of five was appointed to make an investigation, consisting of Mortimer B. Mason, William A. Chaplin, Gardner A. Churchill, James A. Hearn, and C. A. Pinkham.

SOME INTERESTING FIRST EDITIONS.

From the Westminster Gazette.

In 1751 Thomas Gray published, at the modest price of sixpence per copy, "An Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard." One of these original sixpenny pamphlets, uncut, was recently sold by Messrs. Sotheby for £74. A first edition of "The Vicar of Wakefield" fetched £54, and "Grimm's German Stories" £331 10s. A copy of "Tennyson's Poems," issued as the joint production of the laureate and Hallam, which it seems probable belonged to the latter, realized £16 10s; Coverdale's Bible, £31, and another more imperfect copy £20 10s.; "Report of the Challenger Expedition," £48; first edition of Wordsworth's "Descriptive Sketches in Verse," £26; two proof-sheets of "St. Ronan's Well," with corrections and additions by the author, £21; and the original autograph of Burns' "Queen Mary's Lament," £35 10s.

TYPOTHETÆ'S CELEBRATION OF FRANKLIN'S BIRTHDAY.

THE TYPOTHETÆ of New York held its annual dinner at the Hotel Brunswick on Wednesday, January 17. Theodore L. De Vinne presided, and made a happy address when the coffee was served. The address of the evening was on Benjamin Franklin, by Rev. Dr. Newland Maynard. Among the special delights of a most delightful evening was a speech by Will Carleton, in which he produced the following astonishing "Facts and Statistics on Poetry," which he claims to have derived from an impartial Englishman:

"I find that there have been written during the poetical year ending December 31, 1893 in the State of Maine, 8557 poems; in Vermont, 5234 poems; in Massachusetts, 8999, exclusive of Suffolk County; inclusive of Suffolk County, 89,682. In New York, 49,837; in Rhode Island, where the poetry area is small, there have been written only 5652 pieces. New Jersey was not estimated by the Englishman whom I employed, some one having been deceiving him as to whether that State came within his scope of investigation, erroneously informing him that it was a somewhat poetical nation of itself. The sum total for the whole country is finally ascertained to have been 2888,954 poems. The following subjects have been treated and mistreated during the rhythmical year the following number of times: 'Hope,' 864; 'Despair,' 99,371; 'Remorse,' 6; 'Discontent,' 10864; 'Spring,' 254,321; 'My Soul and I,' 121,321; 'Your Soul and You,' 8; 'Your Duty,' 354; 'My Duty,' 1."

Mr. Paul B. Du Chaillu also spoke, after which, with music and song, the assemblage scattered.

OBITUARY NOTES.

MRS. THACKERAY, the widow of William Makepeace Thackeray, died January 11, at Leigh, Essex Co., England. Mrs. Thackeray's mind became affected during her early married life, and she has passed most of her days in seclusion.

MISS ELLA WEED, who died January 10 in New York City, had devoted her whole life to the advancement of woman's education. She was born in Newburg, N. Y. Barnard College owed to her its systematic organization and high standard of scholarship. She wrote "A Foolish Virgin," the story of a Vassar girl, which was published by the Harpers in 1883.

FRANK BOLLES, secretary of Harvard University, died in Cambridge on January 10, at the age of thirty-seven. Mr. Bolles was an accurate and enthusiastic ornithologist, an observant botanist, and an artist in word-painting. His rare talents as a descriptive writer were shown in his "The Land of the Lingering Snow," giving the story of the fields, woods, and waters of New England in the vicinity of Boston, from January to June; and his "At the North of Bearcamp Water," describing the region of country around Mt. Chocoma from July to December.

C. WRIGHT KIRBY, a well-known member of the stationery trade, died suddenly at his home in New York City on the morning of January 10. Mr. Kirby started in business with his brother at Broadway and Houston Street, where they built up a fine trade. They afterward moved to larger quarters, near the Broadway Central Hotel, and here they were not successful. Mr. Kirby then went into the employ of J. M. Whittemore & Co., and after the failure of that firm became connected with George B. Hurd & Co., with whom he has been since 1886. Mr. Kirby was in his fifty-eighth year.

ALEXANDER AGAR, one of the best-known stationers and blank-book makers in the United States, committed suicide at his residence in Brooklyn, N. Y., on the 18th inst. He had been worrying considerably over the hard times, and suffered from unnecessary anxiety about his own business. Mr. Agar was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., 64 years ago. He first worked for A. S. Barnes & Co. For nearly twenty years he was in partnership with Owen C. Owens, at 110 William Street, and then started business on his own account in Nassau Street, near Maiden Lane. About ten years ago the firm became Agar & Hamblin, and located at its present stand in Broadway. It did an extensive business, and Mr. Agar's estate is estimated to be worth $225,000. For the past twelve years Mr. Agar had been a trustee and treasurer of the Stationers' Board of Trade.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

JOHN SARTAIN, the venerable Philadelphia engraver, is writing a volume of personal recollections.

JAMES SCHOUER has decided to extend his "History of the United States Under the Constitution" by one more volume, the sixth, embracing the Civil War and Lincoln's administration.

MME. BLANC, who is better known by her pseudonym, Th. Bentzon, has been described by some witty, caustic woman, as a writer of heavy reviews of light novels. Mme Blanc's maiden name was Therese de Solms.

It is reported in Berlin that in spite of the progress made by the Cottas in preparing Prince Bismarck's memoirs for publication, Count Herbert Bismarck has refused to allow the right of publication to them, and will entrust the whole work to an English firm.

ROBERT BRIDGES, the author of "Humors of the Court, and other poems," published recently by Macmillan & Co., is not the Mr. Bridges of Scribner's Magazine, for whom he seems to be mistaken, but an English poet, and one of decided note on the other side of the water.

It is quite decided that Mrs. U. S. Grant will not publish her memoirs of her husband. It is her wish now that this book shall not be printed until after her death. Several publishers have had opportunity to look it over, and one, it is reported, offered the enormous price of $50,000 outright for the work.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Colunist Magazine, published, as its title-page says, at the University of Chicago, does not seem to come up to the standard it set for itself in advance announcements. In its first issue only Western writers are represented—Frank Harris, Florence Wilkinson, and Opie Read being among the number.

THE "Winter Number" of Modern Art, issued by J. M. Bowles, of Indianapolis, Ind., is an unusually interesting issue. It contains brief articles on "Contemporary Italian Art," by Helen Zimmer; "Art Study and Liberal Education," by Alfred Vance Churchill; "Impressions of the [Chicago] Fair," by J. M. Bowles, etc. The illustrations in this issue are Bonvin's "Etcher" and Melssonier's "Etcher," the latter after Paul Rajon's etching, and a page from Carl Marr's sketch-book. Modern Art, which is entering upon its second year, may lay claim to the distinction of being the most artistic of the distinctively art periodicals issued in this country.

THE new French review, La Revue de Paris, which was announced some weeks ago, will appear on the 1st of February. Although a fortnightly review, of the external type of the Revue des deux Mondes, in some respects the Revue de Paris will be more akin to the more important English monthlies. There will be no chronicle of art, literature, music, the drama, contributed by an established staff; but on all questions of the hour the Revue de Paris will address itself directly to the writers, French or foreign, most capable of treating them. It will have no definite bias, religious or political; the names of Prince Henri d'Orléans, Prince Roland Bonaparte, and M. Godefroy Cavaignac are a guarantee of its political independence. Historical articles are promised for the forthcoming numbers from the pens of MM. Sorel, Gaston Paris, Jusserand, A. Vandal, etc. M. Sully Prudhomme will write on Pascal's method, M. Pierre Loti on Loyola, Arède Barine will discuss the ethics of Ibsen, M. Emile Faguet the talent of M. Brunetière, M. Jules Lemaitre "La Chanson au XIX. Siècle." M. Jules Simon will contribute his souvenirs of M. Ernest Renan, while the review has secured an unpublished chapter of M. Ernest Renan's on "Philo of Alexandria." It is not less fortunate in fiction. It will open with a novel by M. Anatole France ("Scrupules de Femmes"), to be followed by "Deux Jeunes Filles," by M. Ludovic Halévy, and "Idylle Tragique," by M. Paul Bourget. Gyp will contribute "Le Mariage de Chiffon," and Alphonse Daudet "Quinze Ans de Mariage." The younger novelists, Paul Margueritte, Paul Hervieu, Marcel Prévost, Maurice Barrès, and J. Ricard, will also be represented. The editorship will be shared by MM. Louis Gauderax and James Darmesteter, and Paul Calmann Lévy, who is the principal shareholder, will act as publisher.

BUSINESS NOTES.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Funk & Wagnalls Company will soon remove to more commodious quarters in its new building on Lafayette Place, opposite the Astor Library.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Edward Meeks will remove on the 25th to 1312 Filbert Street, near the new City Hall and Broad Street station of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—Thomas G. Merrill, of the D. D. Merrill Co., has offered to buy the stock remaining unsold of the bankrupt firm and fixtures, at the price of forty per cent. of the value of the same as stated in the inventory, on the terms of one-fourth cash and one-fourth in two, three, and four months, the assignee to retain possession of said stock and fixtures until all payments have been made.

ST. PAUL MINN.—The stockholders of the Price-McGill Company, at a meeting held on the 10th inst., amended the Articles of Association of the Price-McGill Company in respect to the name of the corporation, and voted that hereafter the style shall be The Merriam Company. The officers of the new company are: R. H. Merriam, president and treasurer; C. H. McGill, vice-president; Jared Howe, secretary; and W. M. Stitt, Jr., general manager.

SPokane, WASH.—John W. Graham & Co., booksellers, request publishers of plays, etc., to send their complete catalogues with lowest price to jobbers.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE suit brought in New York City by Edward B. House to restrain Samuel L. Clemens ("Mark Twain"), Abby Sage Richardson and Daniel Frohman from producing "The Prince and the Pauper" without his consent, has been dismissed by Judge Bischoff, of the Court of Common Pleas.

THE CENTURY Co., New York, have just issued "Pudd'nhead Wilson's Calendar for 1894," containing humorous extracts from Mark Twain's latest story, "Pudd'nhead Wilson," now appearing in The Century. They offer to send a copy of the calendar free to any one who will enclose them a stamp to pay postage.

BRADLEE WHIDDEN, Boston, will issue shortly an entirely new edition of "Modern American Pistols and Revolvers," by A. C. Gould, a book which has been endorsed by sportsmen the world over, and which is now practically rewritten and is the most comprehensive volume on its subject that has yet been issued. The book is fully illustrated.

MACMILLAN & Co. will shortly publish a new volume by Alfred Austin, entitled "England's Darling, and Other Poems." The name "England's darling" is that by which Alfred the Great was, Mr. Austin thinks, for centuries best known to the English people. "The Garden That I Love," by the same author, which has been appearing in the National Review, will be republished in the course of the year in a volume appropriately illustrated.

VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE for 1894, published by James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y., is, as usual, crowded with information concerning the latest developments in floriculture and agriculture, as well as the old leading varieties of flowers and vegetables. Its 112 octavo pages are printed in eight different colors, and there are also colored plates of chrysanthemums, poppies, and vegetables. On the front cover is a very exquisite bunch of Vick's New White Branching Astor, and on the back is the New Double Anemone.

GINN & Co. will publish during the spring "Studies in the Evolution of English Criticism," by Laura Jonson Wylie, of Yale University. The book first traces the classical spirit from its beginnings to its adequate expression by Dryden, and afterwards Coleridge's criticism is considered as representing the reaction against the philosophy of the preceding school. The influence of France is traced in the work of Dryden, while German romanticism is treated in relation to Coleridge and other English writers of his day.

THE Grollier Club will publish shortly for circulation, among its members only, a reprint in facsimile of the rare and esteemed "Laws and Acts of the General Assembly of their Majesties' Province of New-York, as they were enacted in divers sessions, the first of which began April the 9th, Anno Domini 1691. At New-York, printed and sold by William Bradford, 1694." The reprint, carefully collected from the best three copies of the work extant, will contain a biographical preface by Charles R. Hildeburn. The publications of the club steadily advance in value.

E. F. BENSON, a son of the Archbishop of Canterbury, author of "Dodo," writes from Athens, Greece, to inquire of The Critic what constitutes copyright in America. An authorized edition of his book was issued in New York by the Appletons, and an unauthorized one by a Chicago house; and Mr. Benson wishes to know whether the misprints in the latter entitle the publisher to call it a copyright edition. Another correspondent writes to the same number of The Critic to ask, apropos of a new edition of Rossetti's "House of Life," whether "a dead author has no rights which enterprising publishers are bound to respect."

THE Hazlitt sale, according to the London Bookman, was disappointing in more ways than one. In the first place, the manuscripts were "over-catalogued," the printed descriptions of the various lots arousing expectations which were not realized upon subsequent examination. Interesting many—in fact most—of these papers certainly were, but the best use has already been made of them, and very little remains unpublished that is in any way worth publication. In the second place, the condition of the bulk of the papers was poor, many being worn and much mended, and very few of the pieces being in fine state.

CHARLES S. PEIRCE, Milford, Pa., has in preparation a work in twelve volumes, each distinct, the general title of which is "The Principles of Philosophy, or, logic, physics, and psychics, considered as a unity, in the light of the nineteenth century." The first volume, which is ready for the press, will be "A Review of the Leading Ideas of the Nineteenth Century." Mr. Peirce also issues a prospectus of a limited edition, now in course of printing, in two colors of hand-made paper, at the De Vinne Press, of "The Epistle of Pierre Pelerin de Maricourt to Sygur de Foucaucourt, Soldier, On the Lodestone." The original treatise dates from 1269, and "occupies a unique position in the history of the human mind, being without exception the earliest work of experimental science that has come down to us." The transcript of Peter Peregrinus's text has been made afresh from a contemporary ms. in the Paris Library, and is reproduced in black-letter together with a translation and notes.

THE committee on awards of the World's Columbian Exposition, which since the close of the fair has been established in Washington (Pacific Building, 622 F Street), announces that the medals and diplomas awarded at the exposition will be ready for distribution within about five months. The medal has been designed by Augustus St. Gaudens, and the diploma is the work of Will H. Low; both medal and diploma have been pronounced as far superior in artistic excellence to any presented at previous expositions, and no effort is being spared to make their reproduction as perfect as possible. It is hoped that within three months exhibitors so desiring may receive the wording of the judges' report on which their awards are based. The committee states that the awards granted at the Columbian Exposition, compared to the number of exhibitors, present the smallest number ever granted on the occasion of a world's fair. This result seems to show that unusual care and precautions were taken by the expert judges, probably because of the rule requiring them to declare over their own signature the reasons for their judgment. Exhibitors are requested to deal directly with the committee on all matters relating to their awards.

A MOVEMENT has recently been set on foot for the issue of a cheap edition of the "Book of Common Prayer," revised according to the "new standard" of 1892. The issue is put forth by the "American Prayer-Book Fund," as shown on the title-page of the cheap edition, and is retailed at fifteen cents. Thomas Whitaker, of No. 2 Bible House, is the agent of the "fund." Since the General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church, when the revised edition of the prayer-book was authorized, a cheap form of the book, bound in muslin, has been retailed at twenty-five cents, the trade receiving a discount of twenty-five per cent. from that price. This price remained unbroken until the new issue was put upon the market at fifteen cents about a week ago. This new edition is printed from the same plates as the twenty-five-cent edition, but on thinner paper; its advent will probably lead to a general reduction of the price of the twenty-five-cent edition; and one house—James Pott & Co.—already advertises the fact. Members of the large prayer-book publishing houses have expressed their opinion that the "American Prayer-Book Fund" will make as good a profit on the fifteen-cent book, held at strictly net prices, as was made on the twenty-five-cent edition with trade discounts. The "fund," which is said to be financially "backed" by J. Pierpont Morgan, proposes the establishment of agencies in the various dioceses and jurisdictions, to effect a wide distribution of their cheap edition.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

TWO STRIKING NOVELS.

What Necessity Knows.

A Novel of Canadian Life and Character. By Miss L. DOUGALL, author of "Beggars All." Crown 8vo, cloth, $1.00.

"Is a curious novel. . . . The drawing of this girl's character is one of the strongest things we have seen in fiction. And Bates is almost as interesting. . . . It is a study of low and medium life socially considered, yet of high life in its truest and finest conception. . . . Eliza is, on the whole, a rare study, she is a haunting presence. The book is powerful."—Post, Chicago.

"Will hold the interest of any reader who once gets fairly into its current to the very end. . . . The working out of the plot is elaborate and full of original ingenuity."—Commercial Advertiser.

"Keen analysis, deep spiritual insight, and a quick sense of beauty in nature and human nature are combined to put before us a drama of human life. . . . The book is not only interesting but stimulating, not only strong but suggestive, and we may say of the writer, in Sidney Lanier's words, 'She shows man what he may be in terms of what he is.'"—Literary World, Boston.

Montezuma's Daughter.

By H. RIDER HAGGARD, author of "She," "Allan Quatermain," "Nada the Lily," etc. With 24 full-page illustrations and vignette by Maurice Greiffenhagen. Crown 8vo, cloth, $1.00.

"Has a good deal of the quality that lent such interest to 'King Solomon's Mines' and 'Allan Quatermain.' . . . England, Spain, and the country which is now Mexico afford the field of the story, and a great number of most romantic and blood-stirring activities occur in each . . . a successful story well constructed, full of devious and exciting action, and we believe that it will find a multitude of appreciative readers."—Sun, N. Y.

"Adventures that stir the reader's blood, and, like magic spells, hold his attention with power so strong that only the completion of the novel can satisfy his interest. . . . In this novel the motive of revenge is treated with a subtle power . . . this latest production of Mr. Haggard blends with the instruction of the historical novel the charm of a splendid romance."—Public Opinion.

"The story is both graphic and exciting. . . . The story is mostly Mexican, and tells of the invasion of Cortes, but there are antecedent passages in England and Spain, for the hero is an English adventurer who finds his way through Spain to Mexico on a vengeful quest. The vengeance is certainly satisfactory when it comes, but it is not reached until the hero has had as surprising a series of perils and escapes as even the fertile imagination of the author ever devised."—Dial, Chicago.

A Detail of the Day.

By E. F. BENSON.

Fine edition, untrimmed edges, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

Cheaper edition, illustrated, paper, 25 cents.

"Dodo" is the most popular novel now selling. Booksellers and newsdealers cannot afford to be without it. Our editions are the best in the market, and we give liberal discount.

A Double Overture.

By E. F. BENSON,

Author of "Dodo." Paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

This new book, by the author of "Dodo," contains a number of short stories. In the story that gives the title to the volume, and in several of the other stories, some of the characters of "Dodo" reappear, and the book will undoubtedly have much of the latter's popularity.

OF THE
GENUINE "OXFORD" TEACHERS' BIBLE,
WITH NEW HELPS AND A MAGNIFICENT NEW SERIES OF MAPS.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS

comprise sixty-four full-page plates reproducing in fac-simile authentic documents, monuments, pictures, and portraits, illustrating the History of the Old and New Testaments, and present a novel and valuable departure, never before attempted in works of this description on a scale so full and complete. They have been selected and described by E. MAUNDE THOMPSON, D.C.L., LL.D., Principal Librarian of the British Museum; A. S. MURRAY, LL.D., F.S.A., Keeper of Greek and Roman Antiquities, British Museum; and E. A. WALLIS BUDGE, Litt.D., F.S.A., Acting Assistant-Keeper of Egyptian and Assyrian Antiquities, British Museum.

In every division of the work frequent reference has been made to the Revised Version, a competent knowledge of which is universally regarded as invaluable and indispensable to Bible students.

This New Edition is also supplied without the Illustrations.

ANNUAL CATALOGUES, 1893.

The Annual American Catalogue for 1893 contains :

- (1) Directory of American Publishers issuing books in 1893.
- (2) Full-title Record, with descriptive notes, in author-alphabet, of all books recorded in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, 1893.
- (3) Author-, title-, and subject-index to same in one alphabet.
- (4) Publishers' annual lists for 1893.

The edition is limited, and to secure copies orders should be sent at once. The price is $3.50 half leather; $3.00 in sheets.

The Annual Catalogue for 1886 and 1887 is now out of print. But few copies of the Annual Catalogue for 1888, 1889, 1890 and 1891 are on hand.

We also supply the English Catalogue for 1893, price $1.50, paper; the Annual American and English Catalogues, 1892, can be had in one volume, half leather, $5.00.

NEARLY READY:

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX, ...1893...

INCLUDING PERIODICALS, AMERICAN AND ENGLISH, ESSAYS, BOOK-CHAPTERS, ETC.,
SPECIAL BIBLIOGRAPHIES AND NECROLOGY OF AUTHORS.

EDITED BY W. I. FLETCHER and R. R. BOWKER,

With the co-operation of members of the American Library Association and of the Library Journal staff.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1893 complements the "Annual American Catalogue" of books published in 1893 by indexing (1) articles in periodicals published in 1892; (2) essays and book-chapters in composite books of 1892; (3) authors of periodical articles and essays; (4) special bibliographies of 1892; (5) authors deceased in 1892. The two volumes together make a complete record of the literary product of the year.

The new volume includes the features of the "Co-operative Index to Periodicals," originally a monthly supplement to the Library Journal, then extended into a quarterly in an enlarged form, and later issued as an annual volume.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1893 forms the second supplement both to the new five-yearly volume (1887-1891) of Poole's Index to Periodical Literature and to the new A. L. A. Index to essays and book-chapters of Mr. Fletcher.

The new volume will more than fulfil the opinion as to the Co-operative Index expressed in the following extract :

"To the literary worker its value can hardly be over-estimated; to the specialist in any branch of science or letters it is indispensable, since it places within his immediate reach many of the latest fruits of labor in the same field. to every one who desires to be well informed it furnishes the means of making the most effective use of his time."—Providence Press.

One vol., cloth, (uniform with "A. L. A. Index,") $3.50.

BOOK PRODUCTION IN ENGLAND IN 1893.

THE London Publishers' Circular presents the following analysis of the business done by the publishing trade in England during 1893:

DIVISIONS.	1892.		1893.

Commenting on these statistics, the publisher of the Circular says: "The analytical table which we publish shows that the literary activity which distinguishes the age proceeds unabated. In 1893 there were published in Great Britain 6382 new books and new editions, being 128 more than the total of the preceding year. The figures do not represent a large increase; but when the state of trade during the last twelve months is taken into account, they may well be regarded as remarkable. The year which has just closed will scarcely be remembered among booksellers as one of exceptional prosperity; rather the reverse, we fear, will be the case. The dull season was both longer and duller than usual, and even the spring and autumn were in some respects disappointing. Yet the stream of new books continued to flow with an increasing volume, with the result that, in point of production, 1893 stands out as a year of astonishing activity.

"As might be expected, a considerable growth is noticeable in fiction. The number of new novels indeed was less by over 200 in 1893 than in 1892—a circumstance which will probably cause some surprise. But, on the other hand, a comparison of the figures of the two years will show a striking increase in the number of juvenile books. Here, however, we must be on our guard. It is often extremely difficult to classify works of fiction in grades for old or young, and possibly in our table some books appear under the head of 'juvenile' which their writers would unhesitatingly place among novels. It will be convenient, therefore, to take the entire production of fictitious narratives en masse. Adopting that plan we find that the output of 1893 exceeds that of 1892 by 141 books. Last year there were issued 1584 new works of fiction, or rather more than five for every working day. And these figures represent but a mere fraction of what was written; for every year thousands of stories are fated to stick at the manuscript stage. Theological and Biblical literature, curiously enough, shows a falling off. Does this indicate indifference on the part of the public, or merely a more stable and settled faith? Educational works likewise exhibit a slight decrease, as do Law and Political Economy. Voyages and travels indicate little change, but historical works show a drop. Poetry, to use a Stock Exchange phrase, is firm, for the minor poets are not the sort of people to pass their days and nights in inglorious sloth. The miscellaneous writer, too, has been unusually busy during 1893. His industry, indeed, has been so great that in the department of miscellanies we find an increase of 400 in new books over the figures of the preceding year, and 100 in new editions, making a total of 500.

"Of the literary quality of the year's production not much need be said, since it is a matter regarding which readers have ample opportunity to form judgments for themselves. Critics inform us that the average of merit is steadily rising, however rare works of exceptional genius may be. Writers, like lawyers and physicians, like their fellow-men in general, feel the stimulus of competition, and are constantly urged to do their best. Hence they are every year becoming more and more dexterous in their craft. In respect to details of workmanship, the authors of to-day will compare very favorably indeed with their predecessors. Worthless books are still being written (publishers alone know how numerous they are); but the absolute trash, we are glad to believe, is steadily diminishing in quantity. If the year 1893 has not witnessed the birth of any epoch-making work (and on that point even the youngest critic will hesitate to bring dogmatic), its literature, on the whole, has been eminently satisfactory."

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 27, 1894.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE BOOKS OF 1893.

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, through its "Weekly Record of New Publications," entered during 1893 the titles of 5134 works, an increase of 272 titles over those recorded in 1892—the most active year the book trade has known. In a year of which the opening months were darkened by predictions of hard times, and of which the closing ones witnessed a financial panic, this is a remarkable showing. To say that the publishing business was untouched by the general depression would not be true; but that it bravely weathered the storm, coming through the year without any notable disasters, was reason for general congratulation. Had it not been for the unreasoning panic which seized all classes, leading to economy and saving for the evil day that was to come they knew not when, bringing with it they knew not what, no doubt the year would have been as money-making as it was productive. The previous year, 1892, had, through the workings of the International Copyright law, placed the book trade on a so much firmer foundation, that it seemed in 1893 it would only need to reach out and gather the harvest so long waited for, to which all indications pointed as promising to be unusually rich. Though the general business was less than anticipated, yet the results under the given circumstances were fairly satisfactory.

The announcements made by publishers for the spring and fall trade of 1893 were quite equal in numbers and quality to those of the previous year. The admirable promptness and exactitude with which prescribed programmes were carried out was not only extremely interesting but very reassuring. The clean-cut way in which business was cleared up in the closing weeks of 1893 is illustrated by the fact that scarcely a book out of the hundreds of important enterprises in hand for the year went over into 1894. The absence from publishers' lists of works that had hitherto been considered characteristic of the holiday season must not be taken as an indication of either lack of capital or enterprise. The taste of the reading public, it is pleasant to note, has undergone a change; it is now reading the classics of the past, or the standard works of our own century to become classics in another cycle—books which need no meretricious aids to make them acceptable.

The past year brought forth no work of unquestionable genius in any department of literature. It is a manufacturing, rather than a creative age. While "of making many books there is no end," comparatively few original works are being written. It is an age of selections and collections, of abstracts and compilations, of anthologies and genealogies, indexes, catalogues, bibliographies, and local histories—books which Charles Lamb has put among the "books which are no books," but nevertheless material of inestimable value to the future historian of our time. We people of the end of the century are making history so fast ourselves, and have so many and such engrossing interests, that we lack the time for voluminous or exhaustively treated works; our facts are desired in as condensed form as possible, ready for rapid assimilation. Even our pleasures are restricted by our pace, as the tranquil receptive mood, requisite for a thorough enjoyment of imaginative literature, only comes with leisure. The phenomenal increase in magazines, reviews, and other periodicals in the United States during the past ten years has been a potent factor in the decrease of great works. There were 1051 literary periodicals published in 1893 to 428 published in 1883; the same proportionate growth has taken place in scientific and trade papers, and in medical and law journals. All these periodicals must be supplied with reading-matter, and as they offer unusually liberal inducements in the way of pay, they have succeeded in absorbing the famous and popular authors of the country in all departments of literature, who give them their best work, preferring this road to fame and fortune to the slower and often less remunerative one of book publishing. The great "dailies" of the larger cities are also profitable avenues for our writers, the contents of many of them being now protected by copyright.

The abnormally active brain condition, superinduced by this constant spur to production, has been especially detrimental to the quality of our fiction. It is not alone overproduction, however, from which our fiction is suffering, the conditions hedging the novelists being simply killing to originality. As the literary magazine caters chiefly to the youthful and unsophisticated element of the home, the novelist writes down to this audience. His inspiration is limited and restricted by the Puritan reserve toward social and religious questions which, notwithstanding all our freedom of thought and speech, the popular mind still retains. Naturally his works do not depict life; they skim lightly over the surface, rarely sounding the depths beneath; the sin and misery, the passion and discontent of human kind are ignored on the proverbial theory that ignorance is better than knowledge. As many of these works finally appear in book form, few periodicals are better fitted to judge of present literary conditions than THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, receiving as it does and noticing descriptively all the publications of any account issued in the United States. To what depths of the commonplace our imaginative literature sunk during the past year it is painful to contemplate. Even F. Marion Crawford, one of the most virile and most independent of our novelists, showed the blighting effects of his native atmosphere in his recent novel, written in this country for Americans and about Americans. That a large class—not the largest, perhaps, for the highest culture is always in the minority—asks for and needs stronger mental food is proved by the large number of English and other foreign novels reprinted in 1893. The numbers not only exceeded those by American authors but the English novels furnished the real literary successes of the year.

The World's Columbian Fair did a great work in modifying the conventional barriers limiting both our art and literature. Scant justice has yet been given, with all the praise poured out, to the strength and daring and originality of its conceptions in the way of art. The many literary and religious congresses it brought together will have a broadening and leavening power upon the future thought of this country, of which we as yet can scarcely form any conception. There was little to acknowledge from our Western publishers during 1893 in the way of general literature. Their time and money were devoted to the making of endless guide-books to the Exposition, and putting into permanent form, in some fine art-works, the many peculiar and artistic features of the great exhibition.

The facts briefly deducted from our figures of the book production of the year are as follows: There were more novels published than any other kind of literature; and more English and other foreign novels than American; short stories were plentiful from both English and American authors; many translations were made of the best work of the French, German, Spanish, and Slav novelists of the day. Next in figures came Theology and Religion, Juvenile Works, Law, Education and Language, Literary History, Poetry, Biography, Political and Social Science, Description and Travel, History, etc. But as all these departments are increased in numbers by new editions of old works and new editions of standards, and also by reprints and importations, we take them in our review according to the importance of the number and standing of the new works added. From this point of view the department of Political and Social Science was second to Fiction in interest and also in activity. It was influenced, no doubt, by the extreme and wide-spread interest manifested during 1893 in every phase of the tariff question and the financial problems which disturbed the country. It embraces monographs without end, written by authors the most opposite in views, and bearing upon theories the most conflicting. Needless to say it is almost entirely made up from the contributions of American writers. Biography we have rated third in richness and freshness; it includes the most delightful class of literature our writers produce; frank and spontaneous and with a sincere literary quality, the biographies of the year constitute a class of works of permanent value; they are mostly from American writers, the English works of this class, of which a number were issued, being almost altogether importations; the translations included here were the cream of French biographical literature, with a few German books, and one Italian. Theology and Religion counted fourth in importance in place of second as in former years; the additions to it were not notable, and the larger number were by American writers; here, likewise, the English works only came out in limited imported editions; there were very few reprints. Description and Travel was less noteworthy in its additions than in former years. Literary Miscellany was larger in numbers than in actual importance. History did not show a single important work on an American subject by an American author. Poetry amounted to nothing. Physical Science embraced an unusual number of good works from American and English writers. Except in the departments of Fiction and Biography, no demand was evident for the works of English or other foreign authors.

Following are given in tabulated form the figures of book production of 1893 and those also of 1892, for comparison:

In order to more fully illustrate our remarks, we present further on the figures of 1893 in a somewhat different shape from the foregoing table. The aim is to give, as nearly as it is possible to do so without official information, the sources from which the literature of the year was derived—American, English, or Continental—the number of books that were manufactured in the United States—American, English, and translations—and the number of English works that were imported, bound or in sheets, these three classes comprising together the book production in the United States in 1893. The English importations do not represent exclusively, as it might be supposed, the publications of English houses established here; there is scarcely an American publishing house of any note that does not embrace in its catalogue a number of English works made abroad, though it may not always be apparent what was their original imprint. Numbers of them are rarely advertised through the regular advertising channels, and few even through the cheap and easy medium of editorial copies. In our own case our "Weekly Record" often presents the sight of obscure and unimportant works freely annotated because received, while valuable ones are represented simply by title. The excuse given by the publisher or importer where the work is not sent for description is that "the edition is too limited to give press copies." The editions, we fear, will be more limited if this short-sighted policy continues to prevail. The loss to the publisher, through lack of the information we are prevented from giving our readers, is more serious than he realizes. There is no doubt that the failure of proper advertising of this class of books is to some extent curtailing the volume of business done through the retail stores. It is natural there should be little demand for them, as they are rarely brought to the notice of the public. It is preposterous to believe that with our thirty odd millions of reading people, and our cultured circles in all large cities, the entire demand for the best contemporaneous literature of the world should be covered by editions of one hundred, five hundred, or, at best, one thousand copies.

The story the figures tell is that 2803 books by American writers and 1180 reprints from English and other foreign writers were made here, and 1151 English works imported in quantities to supply the demand. The figures of English and other foreign fiction, it will be noted, stand 834 to 263 American works. For several years we have been pointing out that our native talent was less and less represented on our publishers' lists, so this must not be considered a special feature of 1893, produced by its exceptional conditions. The falling off was only a little more pronounced than in former years.

FICTION.

If merit is to be determined by popularity Lew Wallace's "Prince of India" must be accepted as the leading work in American Fiction for 1893. Since its publication in August last, one hundred thousand copies are said to have been sold of this worthy successor of "Ben-Hur"—a phenomenal sale, even in good business years, of any novel. With a historical background depicting the conquest of Constantinople ple by the Mohammedans, the story teaches, through many pages of scholarly thought and eloquent writing, the doctrine of the universal brotherhood of man. The years of research and study bestowed by General Wallace upon his work are easily perceptible, even to the uncritical reader. F. Marion Crawford still holds a first place among our most virile and versatile writers. Two of his latest novels have the scenes laid in Italy, where he is always at his best—his pictures of Italian life and character betraying a rare knowledge of a race little studied by the modern novelist. In "Pietro Ghisleri" we are again in the Roman social circles made familiar through the Saracinescas. The hero is a strong character study of a man of the world—a very human mixture of good and bad—the good predominating—whose career is entirely influenced by the women he loves and who love him. "The Children of the King" is a picturesque tale of Calabria, relating the romantic deeds of two ordinary sailors, the last descendants of a family that had worn for many generations the title of Dei Figli del Re. "Marion Darche" completes Mr. Crawford's literary work of the past year. In spite of its many strong points the story at times verges on the commonplace. Its scene is laid in New York City; its chief characters are the unpleasant defaulting treasurer of a large manufacturing concern and his unloved and unhappy wife, neither of whom win from us pity or sympathy. "The World of Chance" and the "Coast of Bohemia" are W. D. Howells' contributions to the novels of 1893. Both are studies of New York City life in its many unique phases of art and literature, to which his opportunities open to him close and frequent observation. Just here might be mentioned two of his recent graceful, entertaining little farces that have given pleasure to many readers, viz.: "The Unexpected Guest" and "Evening Dress." Henry James, whose name seems naturally to be suggested by that of Mr. Howells, is only represented in fiction by volumes of short stories, his good work finding notice, however, in its proper place. Bret Harte's "Susy" delighted his numerous admirers, though it was only a new rendering of early material, made entirely his through right of discovery.

Many of the best and most successful novels of the past year were from our women writers. Two well-known figures in New York society evolved two brilliant sketches from their own environment. "Sweet Bells Out of Tune," by Mrs. Constance Cary Harrison, cleverly and satirically depicts the frivolity of the "smart" set, its amusing Anglomania, and the struggle between birth and wealth that goes on within its charmed circle. "Julien Gordon" (Mrs. Van Rensselaer Cruger) in "His Letters" resorted to the pleasant device of a correspondence (successful only in the hands of a clever, refined woman like herself) to tell the love-story of a cultured man of the world for a beautiful society woman and famous artist. Amélie Rives, now Mrs. John Armstrong Chanler, added a fresh and original portraiture to the long list of novel heroines with "Tanis, the Sang-Digger." Needless to say she outraged the critics with this passionate, half-savage young woman of the mountains of Virginia, whose struggle against an unworthy love is described with consummate skill, and with all the author's old intensity of spirit. Directly opposite to this in scene and in style is a little work that made quite a modest success for its writer, called "Brothers and Strangers," by Agnes Blake Poor, who heretofore was best known as a writer of short stories under the non de plume of "Dorothy Prescott." "Brothers and Strangers" is a simple story of every-day life and every-day people, such as may be found in any small city of New York or Massachusetts—but the author's keen but quiet appreciation of the unconscious humor of her characters, and their droll and persistent selfishness, delighted all who were fortunate enough to read it. The popular author of "Roweny in Boston"—Maria Louise Pool—depicted two new types of New England character, which are embraced under the titles of "Katharine North" and "The Two Salomes." Both heroines are "peculiar" and attractive. The first story has its setting in Massachusetts; the second gives a very delightful picture of St. Augustine, Florida, as a winter resort. "Children of Destiny," by Molly Elliot Seawell, is a romantic story of the Virginia coast fifty years ago. "A Literary Courtship," by Anna Fuller, is bright and amusing. Anna Katharine Green's (now Mrs. Rohlfs) fresh detective stories, called "A Matter of Millions" and "Marked 'Personal'" are as ingenious in construction and as absorbingly entertaining as all this class of fiction generally is. Several New York newspaper scandals are served up in Laura Daintrey's "Gold." "The Doomswoman" has its scene in California in the early part of the century; its heroine has a fatal power to bless or curse those with whom she comes in contact; it is from the pen of Mrs. Gertrude Franklin Atherton. "The Petrie Estate," by Helen Dawes Brown, tells a story of a mislaid will. "Broadoaks" is another of Mrs. M. G. McClelland's charming Southern stories—this time of Virginia since "the war." "White Birches," by Annie Eliot, found many readers. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps' (Mrs. Herbert D. Ward) finished work is displayed in

"Donald Marcy." Frontier life in Illinois in the beginning of the present century found illustration through "The White Islander" and "Old Kaskaskia," two historical novels of unusual charm and exceptionally picturesque incidents, by Mrs. Mary Hartwell Catherwood. Almost the same period covered in the latter work is the background of a story called "Old Kaskaskia Days," by Elizabeth Holbrook.

Henry B. Fuller ("Stanton Page"), whose first claim to fame came with his "Chevalier of Il Pensieri-Vani," wrote a novel in an entirely different style from anything he had produced preceding it, with the clever title of "The Cliff-Dwellers," which, in place of being of the prehistoric period, as its title might seem to indicate, is an up-to-date story of Chicago, with its scene in a mammoth eighteen-story business building. Edward Fuller obtained the material for his novel, "The Complaining Millions of Men," chiefly from among the Socialistic elements of Boston, although it brings in prominent society Bostonians under thinly disguised names; the best part of it is its striking title gathered from Matthew Arnold. John Seymour Wood, who has written several novels of New York society, displayed an unsuspected humorous vein in a charming novel of New Yorkers in Switzerland, entitled "A Coign of Vantage." Edgar Fawcett's contributions to the year's fiction were "American Push" and "Loaded Dice." Harold Frederic offers an almost forgotten phase of the Civil War in "The Copperhead." Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen's "Social Struggles" deal with the yearnings of the family of a Western millionaire, grown rich through his trade of merchant tailor, to move among New York's "400." T. R. Sullivan's novel of "Tom Sylvester" is a story of Paris, with an American hero, and is characterized by a delightful literary quality. "A Border Leander" takes the reader to Blue Lick, Texas; Howard Seely is its author. Nathan Haskell Dole, the translator of a number of novels from the Russian, wrote "Not Angels Quite." Mary Harriott Norris, "John Applegate, Surgeon;" Mrs. Clara Louise Burnham, "Dr. Latimer," a story of Casco Bay; Walker Kennedy, "In the Dwellings of Silence," a romance of Russia; Thomas W. Knox, "The Siberian Exiles;" Mrs. Helen Campbell, "Some Passages in the Practice of Dr. Martha Scarborough;" Matt Crim, "Elizabeth, Christian Scientist," and John Esten Cooke, "Beatrice Hallam."

Novels with a purpose are offered in "An Odd Situation," by Stanley Waterloo, and in "Washington Brown, Farmer," by Le Roy Armstrong. The former is an argument in favor of free trade with Canada and annexation; the latter makes very real through the form of fiction the financial tribulations of the wheat-growers of Kansas. The volumes added to the Columbian Historical Novels, by John R. Musick, were "The Pilgrims," "A Century Too Soon," "The Witch of Salem," "Braddock," "Independence," and "Sustained Honor." A vivid picture of the time of Columbus is contained in Albion W. Tourgée's latest novel, "Out of the Sunset Sea." Fashionable Boston society is scored in "Mr. Philip St. Clare," by "Robert Appleton," a pseudonym which first appeared on the title-page of "Mrs. Harry St. John." "Six Cent Sam's" and "The Confessions of a Convict" represent Julian Hawthorne. "A Singer from the Sea," a romantic story of Cornwall, is the work of Mrs. Amelia E. Barr. "A Cathedral Courtship," by Mrs. Kate Douglas Wiggin, contains many graphic descriptions of English cathedral towns. In "Looking With In" J. W. Roberts endeavors to make plain the misleading tendencies of "Looking Backward." "Toppleton's Client," by J. Kendrick Bangs, is imbued with a delightful humor. "Garrick's Pupil," by Augustus Filon, is a faithful and brilliant study of London life in the latter half of the eighteenth century, while "The Days of Lamb and Coleridge," from the pen of Alice E. Lord, reproduces the many romantic incidents in the lives of these famous authors. "John Gray," by James Lane Allen, has its scene in Kentucky in a former century. "The Bailiff of Tewkesbury," by C. E. D. Phelps and Leigh North, takes the reader to old England in the sixteenth century.

The American novels are so numerous that we shall have to bring this classification to a close by a simple mention of the titles of the remaining ones worthy of notice, namely: "Ivar the Viking," by Paul du Chaillu; "A Daughter of This World," by Fletcher Battershall; "A Question of Honor," by Lynde Palmer; "Val Maria," by Mrs. Laurence Turnbull; "Foes in Ambush," by Charles King; "The King of Honey Island," by Maurice Thompson; "The Dugdale Millions," by W. C. Hudson; "The Son of a Prophet," by George Anson Jackson; "Rachel Stanwood," by Lucy Gibbons Morse; "John Paget," by Sarah Barnwell Elliott; "A Riddle of Luck," by Mary E. Stone; "From Out of the Past," by Emily Howland Hoppin; "The New Minister," by Paul Kenneth; "Mrs. Clift Crosby's Niece," by Ella Childs Hurlbut; "The Rose of Love," by Angelina Teal; "Ashes of Roses," by Louise Knight Wheatley; "Elinor Fenton," by D. S. Foster; "In Blue Uniform," by George I. Putnam; "The Haunted Husband," "Tresillian Court," and "Guy Tresillian's Fate," all by Mrs. Harriet Lewis; "Lyn-dell Sherburne," by Amanda M. Douglas; "A Comedy of Elopement," by Frances C. Fisher ("Christian Reid"); "A Conflict of Evidence," by Rodrigues Ottolengui; "Zenias, the Vestal," by Mrs. Margaret B. Peeke; "One of Earth's Daughters," by Ellen Roberts; "A Mute Confessor," by W. N. Harben; "The Redemption of the Brahman," by Richard Garbe; and "Unveiling a Parallel." The increasing popularity of short stories has brought into this field many of the famous writers of American fiction. Henry James' work of the year has been almost altogether in this line, with the exception of numerous literary essays; he leads the way with three volumes of sketches—"The Real Thing, and other tales," "The Private Life," and "The Wheel of Time"—chiefly studies of London life and characters and most delightful specimens of his refined humor and subtle methods of evolving his story. Mrs. Margaret Deland introduces an old friend in "Mr. Tommy Dove, and other stories," and gathers under the same cover several contributions made in the past to magazine literature. Southern life is treated pathetically and humorously in "A Golden Wedding, and other tales," by Ruth McEnery Stuart, and in "Balcony Stories," by Grace King. Modes of life and types of character peculiar to New England are illustrated through "A Native of Winby, and other tales," by Sarah Orne Jewett. Western life is portrayed in "Prairie Folks," by Hamlin Garland; in "Miss Madam, and other sketches," by Opie P. Read, and in "Stories of a Western Town," by Alice French ("Octave Thanet"). "Sally Dows, and other stories," by Bret Harte, relate to life in Georgia and southern California. "Voodoo Tales," compiled by Mary Alicia Owen, are stories of negro superstition and folk-lore, in the style of "Uncle Remus' Tales," current among the negroes of the Missouri border. "Blackfoot Lodge Tales" is a collection of tales of Indian life gathered from Indians by George Bird Grinnel. "Stories from the Rabbis," by Abram S. Isaacs, professor of German and Hebrew in the University of the City of New York, throw light upon the daily avocations of the rabbis and their regard for labor and its blessings. "Two Bites at a Cherry," the most recent prose compositions of Thomas Bailey Aldrich; "Nowadays, and other stories," by George A. Hibbard; "The First Supper, and other episodes," by Jonathan Sturges; "The Story of a Story, and other stories," by J. Brander Matthews; "Day and Night Stories" (second series), by T. R. Sullivan; "An Old Beau, and other stories," by John Seymour Wood; "Dufels," by Edward Eggleston; "Short Stories," edited by Mrs. Constance Cary Harrison and issued as a volume of the Distaff Series, form a group of charming literary gems, fresh in interest and felicitous in plot and style that the most blasé reader must find delightful, and with which may be included the dainty little collection of books known together as the Stories from Scribner's Series and separately as "Stories of New York," "Stories of the Railway," "Stories of the South," "Stories of the Sea," and "Stories of the Army." The list of short stories would not be complete if we failed to include in it the following equally notable volumes by our own writers, which we have not space, we regret, to characterize—namely: "In the Three Zones," by F. J. Stimson ("J. S. of Dale"); "The £1,000,000 Bank-Note, and other new stories," by "Mark Twain" (S. L. Clemens); "Mademoiselle Miss," by Henry Harland ("Sidney Luska"); "Made in France," French tales retold with a United States twist by H. C. Bunner; "A Republic Without a President, and other stories," by Herbert D. Ward; "A Woman Who Failed, and Others," by Bessie Chandler; "The Talking Handkerchief, and other stories," by Thomas W. Knox; "A Darling Experiment, and other stories," by Mrs. Lillie Devereux Blake; "Told By the Colonel," by W. L. Alden; "A Catastrophe in Bohemia, and other stories," by H. S. Brooks, and "The Mate of the Easter Bell, and other stories," by Mrs. Amelia E. Barr.

The cream of English FICTION was reprinted in this country. The novels from English sources that were the most talked about were "The Heavenly Twins," by Madame Sarah Grand, and E. F. Benson's "Dodo." The authors probably would not be complimented in being thus classed together, but there is no doubt they both struck the same popular vein, unlike as they are in methods and in gifts. The lady who writes under the pseudonym of "Madame Sarah Grand" refuses to reveal her identity, though many close guesses have been made at her real name. "The Heavenly Twins" is not her first novel, but was the first to attract a wide attention. It shows undoubted talent and is rich in exceptionally fine descriptive passages. The narrative embraces two distinct stories, which only touch each other at wide intervals, and it is not the story which gives title to the volume which is the most interesting though often extremely amusing. It is in the secondary story, where "Sarah Grand's" fresh views on life and men and women are expressed, that she is most original. "Dodo" is a most clever delineation of an English "Frou-Frou," an inconsequent, irreverent, witty, heartless fin de siècle heroine, of a type of which Mr. Benson appears to have made a profound study. As he is a son of the Archbishop of Canterbury, society's doors have at all times been wide open to him, affording him unusual chances of observation. This novel was issued in Appletons' Town and Country Library, as were two of the earlier novels of "Sarah Grand," entitled "Ideala" and "Singularly Deluded." Neither shows the promise of "The Heavenly Twins." This well-known library gathers into its fold some of the best efforts of English novelists; in addition to the books we have named its well-known cover appeared on "In the Sun-time of Her Youth," by Beatrice Whitby; "Dr. Paull's Theory," by Mrs. A. M. Diehl; "A Little Minx," by Mrs. Ada Cambridge; "The Voice of a Flower," by "E. Gerard;" "Suspected," by Louisa Stratenus; "A Woman of Forty," by Esmé Stuart; "Diana Tempest," by Mary Cholmondeley, and "The Recipe for Diamonds," by C. J. Cutcliffe Hyne. Equally fortunate in its selection of good works is Lippincott's Series of Select Novels, whose additions during the year were: "One of the Bevans," by Mrs. Robert Jocelyn; "But Men Must Work," by Rosa Nouchette Carey; "Was He the Other?" by Isobel Fitzroy; "To Let," by B. M. Croker; "Paynton Jacks, Gentleman," by Marian Bower; "My Child and I," by Florence Warden, and "The Hoyden," by the "Duchess." To the long list of excellent fiction already mentioned—embraced within the blue paper covers of Harper's Franklin Square Library—were: "In Summer Shade," by Mary E. Mann; "The Veiled Hand," by F. Wicks; "A Girl with a Temper," by H. B. Finlay Knight; "In a Promised Land," by M. A. Bengough; "A Wasted Crime," by David Christie Murray; "The Nameless City," by Stephen Grail; "Dr. Mirabel's Theory," by Ross G. Dering; "The Burden of Isabel," by J. Maclaren Cobban, and "The Transgression of Terence Clancy," by Harold Vallings. The narrow pages of the Unknown Library, whose authors all write under a pseudonym, were seen in reprints of "At the Threshold," by Laura Dearborn; "Gentleman Upcott's Daughter," "The Last King of Yewle," by P. L. McDermott; "A Study in Temptations," by John Oliver Hobbes, "The Palimpsest," by Gilbert A. Thierry, and "Squire Hellman, and other stories," by Juhani Aho. In Macmillan's Dollar Novel Series appeared "A Mere Cypher," by Mary Angela Dickens; "The Marplot," by Sidney Royse Lysaght; "The Odd Women," by George Gissing; "Richard Escott," by Edward H. Cooper; "The Great Chin Episode," by Paul Cushing; "The Story of John Trevennick," by Walter C. Rhoades; "Miss Stuart's Legacy," by Mrs. F. A. Steel, and "A Born Player," by Mary West.

The older circle of English novelists added their usual quota of one or two books to the year's issues. Walter Besant's "The Rebel Queen" is a pæan of praise for Israel with considerations of some of the rights and wrongs of women. The characters are chiefly Hebrews of the educated class now living in London, whose aims and aspirations have deeply inspired the author. "David Balfour" completed the story of "Kidnapped," published in 1886, by continuing the adventures of the hero in Scotland, Holland, and France; it is the work of Robert Louis Stevenson. "Wolfenberg" and "The Handsome Humes" bear the well-known name of William Black on their title-pages. The first novel is one of Black's frequent devices of wedding an interesting travel route to an equally interesting story, although in this case the story of the love-affairs of the American hero and heroine are quite equal in freshness to the descriptions of the Grecian isles which form the background. "The Handsome Humes" suffers from its title, which was not a happy inspiration. The story is one of the most charming the author has written in recent years, being a story pure and simple, without any extraneous padding, unless we except scenes naturally worked in from the Henley regattas—depicting a new character in fiction, the retired pugilist and his unselfish love for his lovely daughter. Mrs. Margaret O. W. Oliphant entertained her wide circle of readers with "The Sorceress" and "The Marriage of Elinor," both novels of English high life. F. W. Robinson only produced one long story, "The Wrong That Was Done," and S. Baring-Gould, "Mrs. Curgenvén of Curgenvén." Intensely readable and carefully descriptive of art-life in Rome is "Orioles' Daughter," by Jessie Fothergill, the delightful writer of "The First Violin." "Found Wanting" is one of those realistic novels of English middle-class life in which "Mrs. Alexander" (Mrs. Annie F. Hector) excels. Grant Allen charmed the appreciative with "Michael's Crag," "The Scallywag," and "Blood Royal;" W. Clark Russell with "List, Ye Landsmen!;" W. E. Norris with "A Deporable Affair;" "The Duchess," in addition to the work already named by her, with "Lady Verner's Flight;" Florence Warden with "Grave Lady Jane," "A Shock to Society," and "A Terrible Family;" John Strange Winter with "The Soul of the Bishop;" Charlotte M. Yonge in collaboration with Christabel R. Coleridge, with "Strolling Players," and alone produced "Grisly Grisell." Miss M. E. Braddon (Mrs. John Maxwell) proved she had lost none of her old charm with "All Along the River," a novel of Cornwall, England, with its scene shifting to France and Italy; H. Rider Haggard drew from the historical records of the cruelties of Cortes in Mexico in his exciting novel of "Montezuma's Daughter;" B. L. Farjeon wrote "Something Occurred;" Justin McCarthy "The Dictator," a romantic chapter in South American politics; David Christie Murray, "Time's Revenges;" George Manville Fenn, "A Secret Quest," "Witness to the Deed," and "Nurse Elisia;" Joseph Hatton went back a hundred years to St. John's, Newfoundland, for the episode embodied in "Under the Great Seal;" Mrs. Forrester wrote "Dearest;" "Kitty's Father" is by Frank Barrett; "Parson Jones," by Florence Marryat; "Heather and Snow," by George Macdonald; "Utterly Mistaken," by Annie Thomas; "The Harlequin Opal," by Fergus Hume, and "The Curb of Honor," by Matilda Betham-Edwards.

The amazingly long list of English novels is not yet ended. The history of the year would be incomplete without mention of a number of other noteworthy works by recent English writers that we have enjoyed in reprints. Gilbert Parker, the Canadian-English author who gained his first fame through his short stories of French-Canadian life, produced two novels, "The Translation of a Savage" and "Mrs. Falchion," the former bearing evidence of studies from life of the Indian tribes of western Canada. Mrs. W. K. Clifford scarcely came up to the hopes she raised in "Aunt Anne" in her novel called "A Wild Proxy." Delightful tales of adventure full also of authentic history are "A Gentleman of France," a romantic story of the stirring times just before Henry of Navarre became king of France, by Stanley J. Weyman, and "The Refugees," which found its motive in the Huguenot persecution in France under Louis XIV., and was the work of A. Conan Doyle, who also wrote a novel of contemporary English life under the name of "The Firm of Girdlestone." English military life in Egypt is graphically portrayed in Adeline Sergeant's "Christine." "Mark Rutherford's Deliverance" supplements that striking work known as the "Autobiography of Mark Rutherford." "The Last Sentence" is a thrilling novel of suffering and wrong, by Maxwell Grey, the author of "The Silence of Dean Maitland;" "Half a Hero," by Anthony Hope, has its scene in one of England's South Pacific colonies—New Zealand, probably. "From One Generation to Another," by Henry Seton Merriman, is a strong story of the power of pre-natal influence, and "Tiny Luttrell," by Ernest W. Hornung, has a lovely Australian heroine, and paints life in the bush to the letter. Add to these the following names, and we think the more important works in this line are enumerated: "I Forbid the Banns," by Frank F.

Moore; "Furono Amati," by Mrs. L. C. Ellsworth; "A Moral Dilemma," by Annie Thompson; "The Countess Pharamond," by Mrs. Eliza M. J. G. Booth ("Rita"); "Catherine" by Frances M. Peard; "Orchardscroft," by Elad'Esterre Keeling; "What Necessity Knows," by Miss Lily Dougall, and "Can This Be Love?" by Mrs. Louisa Parr.

English short stories are coming more and more in vogue. Judging from the many collections reprinted on this side of the water the novelette is fast superseding the three-volume novel in popularity with our English cousins. "Many Inventions" takes a high place in this classification. It is admitted to be one of the finest collections of stories Rudyard Kipling has given the reading world, quite coming up to his earlier literary efforts. The stories relate chiefly to military life in India, and introduce again the well-known heroes—"Mulvaney," "Ortheris," and "Learoyd." J. M. Barrie made new sketches of the people of his beloved "Thrums" under the titles of "A Tillyloss Scandal," "Two of Them," and "An Auld Licht Manse, and other sketches." Besides the stories of Scotch life, these volumes contain quite a number of literary sketches and criticisms. Gilbert Parker, a Canadian-English writer, came into prominence in 1893 through a volume of tales of the Canadian frontier, called "Pierre and His People," upon which the critics pronounced very favorably. The scene of the stories was long the dominion of the Hudson's Bay Company—the stories bearing unmistakable evidence that they were studied from life. "Drolls from Shadowland" represents another new English writer of short stories. These weird sketches with a strong supernatural element bear the name of J. H. Pearce. And another, said to be a woman who masquerades under the pen-name of "George Egerton," has given us "Keynotes," strong, original studies of woman's complex nature, which could only have come from a woman. The writer's real name is said to be Mrs. Clairmonte. "At the Rising of the Moon," by Frank Mathew, embraces a score of short sketches of the peasants, priests, and gentry of the west coast of Ireland. "Island Nights' Entertainments" comprises three stories of the Samoan and Sandwich Islands, written by Robert Louis Stevenson. "The Sign of the Four," by A. Conan Doyle, includes three other of the author's short detective stories. "Stories in Black and White" is a little volume made up of contributions from Thomas Hardy, W. E. Norris, Mrs. Oliphant, J. M. Barrie, and others. The author of "A Dead Man's Diary" made public his real name on a new work, "A Book of Strange Sins;" he is called Coulson Kerahan. The art-critic of the London Standard and Academy—Frederick Wedmore—gathered together six of his notable short stories under the title "Pastorals of France." Cornwall, England, is pictured in "The Delectable Duchy," by "Q," otherwise Arthur T. Quiller Couch. Native Indian life is the theme of the half dozen short stories embraced in "From the Five Rivers," from the pen of Mrs. F. A. Steel. Olive Schreiner brought out "Dream Life and Real Life;" Charles Haddon Chambers, "Thumb-Nail Sketches of Australian Life;" and "Maxwell Grey," the pseud. for Mrs. M. G. Tutielt, "An Innocent Impostor, and other stories." "Tavistock Tales," by Gilbert Parker, Luke Sharp, Lanoe Falconer, and others, completes the enumeration of important works of this class.

Many new editions were offered of standard English novels. Trollope's "Parliamentary Novels," comprising fifteen volumes uniform with "The Chronicles of Barsetshire" issued in 1892, continued the handsome Cathedral Edition of this author. The novels of the Brontë sisters, of Henry Fielding, Maria Edgeworth, and Miss Ferrier all appeared in new attractive editions. The "Verdant Green" books, by "Cuthbert Bede," were also new claimants for the favor of a new generation. The Dryburgh Edition of the "Waverley Novels" went on, and the beautiful new Library Edition in forty volumes of Bulwer-Lytton was brought to a close. Other new editions of single works of George Eliot, Charles Reade, and Thackeray might be mentioned, but the former are the more important of the editions of complete works that found reprint here.

The more noteworthy translations from French contemporaneous FICTION were Émile Zola's "Doctor Pascal" and Paul Bourget's "Cosmopolis." This latter "drama of passion," as the author called it, failed to make the sensation in this country that it created in Europe. Zola's work was the concluding volume of the great Rougon-Macquart series illustrating the writer's theories of heredity. Bourget's André Cornélis also found translation as "The Son." The admirable translations of Balzac by Miss Katharine Prescott Wormeley gained four new recruits to their ranks—"A Great Man of the Provinces in Paris," "The Brotherhood of Consolation," "The Village Rector," and "Lost Illusions," all new proofs of the wonderful talent the translator has displayed in her difficult task. "The Brotherhood of Consolation" was also published under the title of "Love," the translator being Francis H. Sheppard. "The Falence Violin," by Champfleury, charmingly rendered into English by William Henry Bishop, amusingly illustrates the unscrupulous selfishness engendered through a mania for collecting falence. Life at the castle of a rich champagne manufacturer at Epernay is described with much spirit in "The Tutor's Secret," by Victor Cherbuliez. "True Riches" and "The Rivals," by François Coppée are fine examples of the author's cultured style. "Evening Tales," done into English by Joel Chandler Harris from the French of Frédéric Ortolé, are strikingly in line with "Uncle Remus" and the Brer' Rabbit stories. "A Village Priest" is from the French of Henry Cauvain. "Madame Rosély," deeply religious in tone, comes from Miss V. Monnot. Pierre Loti had translated his "A Phantom from the East" and "Jean Berny, Sailor," a tale of Provence. "The Widow," by Octave Feuillet, is a somewhat sombre episode of the Franco-Prussian War. "A Blot of Ink," by René Bazin, translated by Arthur T. Quiller Couch ("Q"), has scenes from the literary and artistic life of Paris. "Prince Hermann, Regent," is an English name for a translation of Jules Lemaitre's Les Rois en 1900. "A Sheep in Wolf's Clothing" stands for Albert Rhodes' Ruses de Guerre. "L'Américaine," by Jules Claretie, is chiefly played at Trouville, France. "The Froler Case" is a story of an assassination and a robbery by J. L. Jacolliot. One of Alexander Dumas' novels, little known through translations, "Olympe De Clèves," appeared in a new English dress. It is a most absorbing romance of the court of Louis the Fifteenth and his mistresses.

The translations of novels from the German do not include anything that had a wide, popular success. The stories are mostly very romantic and very readable. Marie Von Ebner-Eschenbach produced "The Two Countesses" and "The Child of the Parish." The first describes two unhappy marriages, the second depicts the development of the better nature of the child of criminals. "Miss Mischief," by Bertha Behrens ("W. Heimburg"), has a wild young heroine whose finer traits are brought to the surface through sorrow and trials. "The Honor of a Heart" has the scene of its romance in Germany and France. It is by Emil A. Marlo Vacano. Ossip Schubin's only novel was "A Leafless Spring." A murder that actually happened in Germany forms the theme of George Hocker's "The Tell-Tale Watch" (Der Lebende hat Recht); "A Priestess of Comedy" is by the Baroness Nataly von Eschstruth; "Clear the Track," by Ernst Werner; "For My Own Sake," by Marie Bernhard; and "On the Cross," a romance of the Passion Play at Oberammergau, by Wilhelmine von Hillern. A new translation was made of the Baroness Bertha von Suttner's Die Waffen nieder under the title of "Lay Down Your Arms."

There was only one notable novel translated from the Spanish—Juan Valera's "Commander Mendoza," the hero being an ex-officer of the Spanish navy who, in his middle-life, after settling down to expectant peace and quietness in his native town of Villabermeja, is made to suffer the penalty of a sin of his youth. From the Russian only two works call for mention, "All or Nothing," by Count Nepomuk Czapski, and Potapehko's "A Father of Six," short stories in the Unknown Library. Translations of other of Henryk Sienkiewicz's works form the contributions of Polish literature made to the publications of 1893. His great trilogy of Polish history, of which we had received "With Fire and Sword" and "The Deluge," was completed with "Pan Michael," translated in fine scholarly style by Jeremiah Curtin, who also introduced us to a volume of short stories by Sienkiewicz, taking its title from "Yanko, the Musician," the opening story, said to be the first of the author's literary productions which gave him a place among the great writers of the day. His "Without Dogma," a novel of modern Poland, is a profound psychological story of a typical Polish character, believed to be largely autobiographical. Iza Young is the translator.

BIOGRAPHY.

The new and important American works published under this heading, which also includes MEMOIRS AND CORRESPONDENCE, are so numerous and so rich in a present interest that we give the department precedence over one or two other classifications that show higher figures but are poorer in works of permanent value from our own writers. Without question the book of the year in American BIOGRAPHY was "Letters of James Russell Lowell," embraced in two handsome volumes and edited by Charles Eliot Norton. These letters, selected from the great mass of letters left by Mr. Lowell, are in a measure autobiographic, but they possess a frankness and spontaneity that an autobiography would not be likely to offer. They are addressed to Longfellow, Emerson, Oliver Wendell Holmes and many other literary men whom Lowell counted among his friends, and are a charming revelation of the writer's many-sided attractive personality. Charles Godfrey Leland's "Memoirs" possesses an unusual quality also in its revelations, as it was written in the first place without any expectation of publication. It is amusingly confidential regarding Mr. Leland's early youth, school and college days at Princeton and in the universities of Europe. It also offers graphic pictures of old Philadelphia, where Mr. Leland was born, that must interest all natives of the Quaker City. A charming record of domesticity and affection in a

Puritan home is given in the correspondence of the first governor of Massachusetts and his wife under the title of "Some Old Puritan Love-Letters—John and Margaret Winthrop—1618-1638." A fine study of an unusual personality is embraced in "A. Bronson Alcott, his life and philosophy;" two volumes are devoted to portray through letters and other material Mr. Alcott as he lived in youth, in middle life, and in serene old age. "My Year in a Log-Cabin" describes a brief period in William Dean Howells' life in Ohio in 1850, when the country was only half settled; it is rich in both autobiographic facts and in description. "Memoirs and Letters of Charles Sumner," a valuable and comprehensive work depicting the career of one of our most cultured and prominent men of the anti-slavery period, and throwing new light upon the many exciting events of the time which it embraces, was at last completed by the remaining two volumes. The compilation of this great work was begun previous to 1877 by Mr. Edward L. Pierce, one of Mr. Sumner's literary executors, the first and second volumes being given to the public in 1877. The material for the two remaining volumes referred to so much that was historical and important that unusual time and patience were required in sifting it and verifying statements—hence the delay in finishing the work; these two volumes make a complete history of the eventful days in Congress from 1860 to 1874. "Letters of Asa Gray" (2 v.) are most valuable and interesting; Prof. Gray was one of our foremost botanists and one of the earliest to recognize the value and profound significance of Darwin's work. Horatio Bridge's "Personal Recollections of Nathaniel Hawthorne" and Francis H. Underwood's "The Poet and the Man," being recollections and appreciations of James Russell Lowell, recommend themselves to the literary student as well as to the friends of these lamented men of genius. Mrs. Lothrop's "Whittier With the Children" and Mrs. J. T. Field's "Whittier" also give many new details concerning the beautiful character of another literary celebrity. Edwin Booth, loved and regretted, found two biographers—William Winter's work is known as "Life and Art of Edwin Booth" and Laurence Hutton's as "Edwin Booth;" both men were life-long friends of the great actor, the warmth of their affection and deep admiration for his gifts being evident throughout their works. "Leaves from the Autobiography of Tommaso Salvini" recalls the brilliant personality and unique genius of an Italian actor who made his greatest conquests in this country; his work includes, besides the facts of his own career, critical estimates of many celebrated actors with whom he played.

The many concise and authentic biographical series, written from new material or from a new reading of the evidence in the broad spirit of this critical but liberal age, had many new volumes added to them. The Delights of History Series had for the subject of its second issue "The Story of Washington"—the great man being pictured as very human and lovable by Mrs. Elizabeth Eggleston Seelye; to the American Reformers Series the volumes added were "John B. Gough," by Carlos Martyn, and "Henry Ward Beecher," by Dr. John Henry Barrows; the Makers of America Series included "Peter Stuyvesant," by Bayard Tuckerman, and "Thomas Jefferson," by James Schouler, within its folds; the new volumes in the Great Commanders Series were "General Jackson," by James Parton; "General Thomas," by Henry Coppée; "General Johnston," by Robert M. Hughes, and "General Greene," by Francis Vinton Greene. A new and thoroughly unbiassed life of "Abraham Lincoln," in two volumes, appeared in the American Statesmen Series from John T. Morse, Jr., the editor of the series; though it tells nothing new, it is an original picture, full of interest and fine touches, of one of the greatest American statesmen. Charles F. Holder's "Louis Agassiz" was added to the Leaders in Science Series, and Dr. Joseph Torrey's "Descartes" to Modern Philosophers Series. Men of Achievement Series, a new series, sent out four handsome biographical volumes: "Men of Business," by W. O. Stoddard; "Statesmen," by Noah Brooks; "Explorers and Travellers," by A. W. Greely; and "Inventors," by Philip G. Hubert, Jr.

One of the most romantic careers in the annals of American political leaders is celebrated in "Sam Houston and the War of Independence in Texas," by Alfred M. Williams. "Major-General Anthony Wayne," by C. J. Stillé, tells of the dashing achievements of another picturesque figure—"the hero of Stony Point"—unjustly dubbed in Revolutionary days as "Mad Anthony," in memory of his reckless bravery; the part taken by the Pennsylvania troops in the Revolutionary struggle is also admirably set forth in this volume by Mr. Stillé. "William Jay and the Constitutional Movement for the Abolition of Slavery," by Bayard Tuckermann, is devoted chiefly to the part borne by Judge Jay in the anti-slavery work. L. E. Chittenden's new volume of "Personal Reminiscences, 1840-1890," included some not hitherto published of Lincoln and the war. Mr. Chittenden also wrote a true story, called "An Unknown Heroine," which is a beautiful tribute to a woman of the Southern Confederacy. Horace Greeley's treatise on "Lincoln" gave name to a volume which also included Greeley's letters to Charles A. Dana and a lady friend. Another biography of "General George H. Thomas" besides the one embraced in the Great Commanders Series claimed the attention of readers. Donn Piatt begun it manifestly as a defence of a great soldier he believed had been unfairly treated, but death claimed him before he had finished; General H. V. Boynton then took up the work and completed it in a most satisfactory manner; Donn Piatt's part of it is strong and unconventional, not hesitating to cast blame where he believes it due; the whole work is an able contribution to the history of the late war. "Donn Piatt, His Work and His Ways," by Charles Grant Miller, is an accurate account of this famous journalist, soldier, and author. Three noted Confederates were the subjects of three separate volumes: "Leonidas Polk, Bishop and General," by Dr. W. M. Polk, is the biography of a man who resigned his charge as Bishop of Louisiana of the Protestant Episcopal Church in 1861 to enter the service of the Southern Confederacy with the rank of lieutenant-general; "Life and Times of C. G. Memminger," by Henry D. Capers, gives the facts in the life of a distinguished son of South Carolina, who was the Secretary of the Treasury of the Confederacy during its existence; "The Life and Times of William Lowndes Yancey," by John Witherspoon Du Rose; has for its theme the picturesque figure of the leader of the secession movement of 1861; it is also a history of political parties in the United States from 1834 to 1864.

"Phillips Brooks, the Man, the Preacher, and the Author," is a memorial volume to the great divine from the pen of Newell Dunbar; "Noah Porter, a Memorial by Friends," describes through a number of sketches another celebrated theologian; "Memoirs of James Petigru Boyce, D.D.," is a life of the late president and founder of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. A world-renowned surgeon is the theme of Dr. Adams' "History of the Life of D. Hayes Agnew, M.D." The man who brought to success the first line of wagons for carrying mail across the plains tells his story in Alexander Majors' "Seventy Years on the Frontier." Add to this long list of noteworthy works "Memorials of Richard H. Richardson, D.D.;" "Life and Writings of Jared Sparks," by Herbert B. Adams; "Abraham Coles," a biographical sketch; Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's charming revelations of her childhood, "The One I Knew the Best of All;" Mrs. Sarah Knowles Bolton's "Famous Voyagers and Explorers," and Mr. Charles Knowles Bolton's picture of "Saskia, the Wife of Rembrandt;" Dr. George H. Clark's "Oliver Cromwell;" Dr. J. Lord's "Two German Giants," meaning Frederic the Great and Bismarck; and Henry T. Finck's "Wagner and His Works." "The National Cyclopædia of American Biography," begun in 1892, issued during the past year volumes two and three.

The most important works in English Biography which appeared in this country under an American publisher's imprint were Sir Walter Scott's "Familiar Letters," edited in two volumes by David Douglas and bearing the stamp of the manly and high chivalrous character of the author of "Waverley" in every line; "The Life and Work of John Ruskin," likewise a handsome two-volume work, produced by Mr. W. G. Collingwood, for many years Ruskin's secretary, which admirers of the great writer and art-critic will heartily welcome; and William Wright's "The Brontës in Ireland," a strange collection of facts, more startling than the romances of the ordinary novelist, appertaining to the ancestors of the gifted Brontë sisters. "Charles Darwin, His Life Told in an Autobiographical Chapter," is practically an abbreviation of Darwin's "Life and Letters," published in 1887, prepared by his son Francis Darwin; "A Mackay Ruthquist, or, singing the gospel among Hindus and Gonds," is a life of the cousin of A. M. Mackay of Uganda; "Abelard and the Origin and Early History of Universities," by Gabriel Compayré, was brought out in the Great Educators Series; "Napoleon, Warrior and Ruler," by W. O'Connor Morris, in the Heroes of the Nations Series; "Thomas Chalmers," by Mrs. M. O. W. Oliphant, and "John Keble," by the Rev. Walter Lock, in the series of English Religious Leaders; and "Life of John Greenleaf Whittier," by W. J. Linton, in Great Writers Series. A volume called "Baroness Burdett-Coutts" embraces a sketch of this philanthropic woman's public life and work. Austin Dobson gave to the reading world a delightful memoir of "Horace Walpole." "The Private Life of the Great Composers" is made up of fifteen papers, describing as many musical composers; it is by John Frederick Rowbotham. The second series of "Women Writers," by Catherine J. Hamilton, contains the life-stories of Mrs. Hemans, Mrs. Jameson, Mrs. Gaskell, George Eliot, and other English literary women.

A very large number of English biographical works were only brought here in limited imported editions, the demand apparently for them not being sufficient to warrant reprinting. The more notable ones are as follows: In the Rulers of India Series the new volumes were "Lord Hastings" and "Aurangzib," by Sir W. Wilson Hunter; Lewin B. Bowring's "Haidar Ali and Tipu Sultan;" the Rev. W. H. Hutton's "The Marquis of Wellesley;" Sir Richard Temple's "James Thomason;" The Earl of Auckland," by L. J. Trotter, and "Lord Clive," by G. B. Mallison. The Missionary Biography Series was increased by John Milum's life of "Thomas Birch Freeman, Missionary Pioneer to Ashanti, Dahomey, and Egba." Other works are "Madame," a life of Henrietta, daughter of Charles I., and Duchess of Orleans, by Julia Cartwright; "Seventy Years of Irish Life," by W. R. Le Fanu; "The Memories of Dean Hole;" Arthur Hill Hassall's "Narrative of a Busy Life;" "Landmarks of a Literary Career, 1820-1892," by Mrs. Newton Crosland; "The Story of Two Noble Lives," by A. J. C. Hare; volumes 1 and 2 of the "Life of Edward Bouverie Pusey, D.D.," by Dr. Henry Parry Liddon; "The Diary of Colonel Peter Hawker" (2 v.); "Sir Joshua Reynolds," a biography, by Claude Phillips; "The Sceptics of the French Renaissance," by John Owen; Franz Liszt's "Letters" (2 v.); "Life and Speeches of Sir Henry Maine," edited by Whitley Stokes; "The Life of Catherine Booth," the mother of the Salvation Army (2 v.); "Letters of James Smetham;" "Nicholas Farrar, His Household and His Friends," edited by the Rev. T. T. Carter; "Life and Works of Jean Léon Gérôme," by Fanny Field Hering; "Footprints of Statesmen During the Eighteenth Century in England," by Reginald Balliol Brett; the second volume of Bishop Wordsworth's "Annals of My Life, 1847-1856;" Marianne North's "Some Further Recollections of a Happy Life;" "Recollections of Dr. John Brown," by Alexander Peddie; "Corot," by David Croal Thomson; "The Life of Sir Richard F. Burton," by his wife, Isabel Burton (2 v.); Madame F. B. d'Arblay's "Diary and Letters," edited by her niece, Charlotte Barrett (4 v.); and volume three and four of "Eminent Persons," biographies reprinted from the London Times. Volumes 34 to 36 of "Dictionary of National Biography," edited by Sidney Lee, were also published.

Translated from the French were a number of biographical works of permanent value. "A History of My Time," memoirs of Chancellor Pasquier, of which the first volume was issued, is rich in new material which gives an altogether new view of many of the acts of the great Napoleon; Pasquier was Napoleon's prefect of police for Paris in 1810, a position which unlocked to him many secret doors. The work will be completed in four volumes. In line with this is the "Recollections of Marshal Macdonald, Duke of Tarentum," in a new revised edition; Macdonald was one of Napoleon's marshals, his memoirs embracing many anecdotes of the Emperor and his officers. Two most delightful works were added to the already voluminous literature of Marie Antoinette. In both the es-estimates of her character are based upon new documents recently brought to light, which leave her still a very lovely woman—and neither saint nor sinner; "The Life of Marie Antoinette," by Maxime de La Rocheterie (2 v.), was crowned by the Académie Française—the translation by Cora Hamilton Bell retains all the charm of the original; "A Friend of the Queen," by Paul Gault, the second work alluded to, embraces the romantic story of Count John Fersen's life, a young Swede, whose devoted friendship for Marie Antoinette and numerous attempts to save her life during the revolution are matters of history—the story was never before, however, told so completely and so interestingly; Mrs. Cashel Hoey made the translation. "Rembrandt, His Life, His Works," is a valuable art-work taken from the French of Émile Michel. "Recollections of Middle Life" comes from Francisque Sarcey, the famous French journalist, novelist, lecturer, and dramatic critic; it supplements his Souvenirs de Jeunesse published in 1885. "Convent Life of George Sand," from her L'Histoire de ma Vie, is a pleasant chapter in the great novelist's youthful experience. "Bernardin de Saint-Pierre" is a volume in the Great French Writers Series, by Arvède Barine. The popular series of Famous Women of the French Court would seem to "go on forever." Five volumes appeared in its well-known covers in 1893, namely, "The Duchess of Berry and the Revolution of 1830," "Women of the Valois Court," "Women of Versailles, the Court of Louis XIV.," "Women of Versailles, the Court of Louis XV.," and "Last Years of Louis XV.;" no diminution of Saint-Amand's remarkably graphic powers of generalization and characterization is shown in any of the works. From the German came "Heinrich Heine's Life Told in His Own Words" and "The Family Life of Heinrich Heine," compilations from the poet's writings and unpublished letters. The famous author of "An Egyptian Princess," Georg Ebers, was most interesting in "The Story of My Life. Editions were imported of translations of the Count Helmuth von Moltke's "Essays, Speeches, and Memoirs" (2 v.), and "Von Moltke as a Correspondent," also of "Personal Recollections of Werner von Siemens." The biographies of "John and Sebastian Cabot," from the Italian of Francesco Tarducci, by Henry F. Brownson, is a fitting companion to his "Life of Columbus," being like that work built up from fresh evidences and research.

POLITICAL AND SOCIAL SCIENCE.

IN POLITICAL AND SOCIAL SCIENCE we have another classification made up largely of the works of American writers. While our figures show that the actual additions to it were less than in other departments, the unusually large proportion of new and valuable books which it includes gives it special prominence. We have reserved for mention here the interesting writings of a typical American we are all proud to honor—George William Curtis. The publication of his "Orations and Addresses" was begun just at the close of the year with the issue of the first volume of his collected public utterances. It contains discourses on the principles and character of American institutions and the duties of American citizens delivered between 1856 and 1891. They naturally tell something of the man, and are so in a measure autobiographical, but as they especially address themselves to the young voter and student, we have made place for them here, believing few can fail to receive from the lofty sentiment which pervades them help and inspiration. The "Speeches and Addresses" of two other Americans, equally prominent and notable, appeared in book form; Governor William McKinley, of Ohio, and ex-Governor William E. Russell, of Massachusetts, are the men referred to, who gathered together in permanent form their speeches for and against the tariff.

"The Railroad Question" was one of the absorbing topics of the year. The late governor of Iowa, William Larrabee, produced a work with this title, advocating that the railroads be controlled by the government. A woman, strange to say, wrote a similar work on the same lines, which attracted attention, called "Railways of Europe and America," the writer's name being Mrs. Marion Todd. "National Consolidation of the Railways of the United States," by George H. Lewis, proposes to do away with the evils of the present railroad system by governing them through an organization representing the state and national governments and the stockholders owning the roads. In the Questions of the Day Series appeared Josephine Shaw Lowell's "Industrial Arbitration and Conciliation," giving valuable chapters compiled from the industrial history of all countries of the past thirty years, and a revised edition of Taussig's "The Silver Situation in the United States." In a new series, edited by Richard T. Ely, called Library of Economics and Politics, two valuable and carefully written works appeared, namely: "The History, Organization, and Influence of the Independent Treasury of the United States," by David Kinley, an historical and critical examination of this important institution, and "The Repudiation of State Debts," by William A. Scott, being a study in the financial history of Mississippi, Florida, Alabama, and other Southby Nathaniel Southgate Shaler, are two works in harmony, discussing theology in the light of physical science. The first volume of a series of denominational histories, which will constitute together an American church history, was one of the important ventures of the year. This first volume presents together all the statistical matter of the series, and is called "The Religious Forces of the United States Enumerated, Classified, and Described on the Basis of the Government Census of 1890." The series is under the general editorial charge of the Revs. Philip Schaff, Potter, Fisher, and other prominent divines, and is published under the auspices of the American Society of Church History. Ecclesiastical history received other important additions in "A Sketch of the History of the Apostolic Church," by Oliver J. Thatcher; "Short History of the Christian Church," by Bishop J. Fletcher Hurst; "The Pilgrim in Old England," a review of the history, present condition and outlook of the Independent (Congregational) churches in England, by Dr. Amory H. Bradford, being the Andover Lectures of 1892 [on Congregationalism; "The Creeds and Platforms of Congregationalism," by Williston Walker, and "Studies in the Civil, Social, and Ecclesiastical History of Early Maryland," by the Rev. Theodore C. Gambrall.

The following works are recommended to young theological students of all denominations as unusually abundant in practical information: "The Young Preacher," by the Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler; "Students' New Testament Handbook," by Dr. Marvin R. Vincent; "Books and Their Use," an address by Dr. Joseph H. Thayer, to which is appended a list of books for students of the New Testament; "Verbum Dei," the Yale lectures on preaching, 1893, by Robert F. Horton; "Work and Workers," being practical suggestions of the Junior Epworth League, by the Rev. F. S. Parkhurst; "Theological Propædæutic," a general introduction to the study of theology, exegetical, historical, systematic, and practical, by Dr. Philip Schaff; "Through Christ to God," by Dr. Joseph Agar Beet—a study in scientific theology; "Manual of Natural Theology," by Dr. George Park Fisher; "Foreign Missions After a Century," by Dr. James S. Dennis; "Primary Convictions," by Bishop William Alexander; "The Secret of Character Building," by J. B. De Motte, and the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher's "Bible Studies," readings in the early books of the Old Testament, with familiar comments given in Plymouth Church on Sunday evenings during the winter and spring of 1878 and 1879. As we mention philosophical works under THEOLOGY, we add the few there are to this group, as specially serviceable to students: David Jayne Hill, president of the University of Rochester, put forth an interesting and suggestive work called "Genetic Philosophy," Prof. Noah K. Davis "Elements of Deductive Logic," and "An Historical Interpretation of Philosophy" was written by John Bascom.

Sermons, lectures, and discourses from representatives of various creeds formed handsome volumes. The sixth series of the sermons of the lamented Bishop Phillips Brooks was invested with a tender interest, and is a fine illustration of his earnestness and liberality. The bishop was made the subject of several sermons; the rector of St. George's Church, Brooklyn, the Rev. H. R. Harris, reviewed his character and teachings in a booklet called "Phillips Brooks;" and his brother, the Rev. Arthur Brooks, of the Church of the Incarnation, New York City, preached on the same text, "Phillips Brooks," shortly after the death of the great preacher; the latter sermon appeared in Harper's Black and White Series. "Sermons on the International Sunday-School Lessons for 1894," by the Monday Club, published at the end of last year, is one of the most popular of unsectarian reference works; "Things New and Old" embraced sermons by the Rev. Robert Collyer; "In Spirit and in Truth," essays by younger ministers of the Unitarian Church; also from a Unitarian standpoint are "The Evolution of Christianity" and "Jesus and Modern Life," both by Rev. Minot J. Savage, of Boston, and "The Spiritual Life," studies of devotion and worship, by different writers; Dr. Henry Van Dyke preached "Straight Sermons to Young Men and Other Human Beings;" Dr. Lyman Abbott, of Plymouth Church, was delightfully broad and interesting in "The Roman Catholic Question;" "The Boy Jesus, and other sermons," is a selection from the sermons preached by Dr. W. M. Taylor when pastor of the Broadway Tabernacle, N. Y. City; "The Larger Life," covering eight sermons, is the reply of Henry Austin Adams to the storm of criticism which broke over him upon his conversion to Catholicism—he was once rector of the Church of the Redeemer, N. Y. City; "Pulpit and Platform" are sermons and addresses by the Rev. O. H. Tiffany; "The Comments at the Cross," six Lenten sermons by the Rev. Cameron Mann, rector of Grace Church, Kansas City, Mo.; "Sermons for the Church" are by a Unitarian minister, Dr. Caleb Davis Bradlee; "Christ and Modern Unbelief," by the Rev. Randolph Harrison McKim, of the Church of the Epiphany, Washington; "Members of One Body" sympathetically interprets through six sermons the creeds of other churches than that of Unity Church, St. Paul, Minnesota, where they were delivered by S. McChord Crothers. The Rev. Josiah Strong, the author of "Our Country," discoursed on "The New Era," Prof. George D. Herron on "The New Redemption;" Thomas Van Ness reflected upon the faults of conventional Christianity in "The Coming Religion;" the pastor of the Old South Church in Boston, the Rev. George A. Gordon, presented many gems of thoughtful study under the title "The Witness to Immortality in Literature, Philosophy, and Life;" Bishop Arthur Cleveland Cox on "Holy Writ and Modern Thought;" Bishop George F. Seymour and Dr. John H. Edgar wrote together a monograph on "The Transfiguration;" George E. Merrill gave a series of instructive studies in "The Reasonable Christ;" the rector of St. Bartholomew's Church, New York City, gathered twenty-two sermons under the title "From Things to God;" and a sanguine American—Mohammed Alex. Russell Webb—with the purpose of converting this Christian country to Mohammedanism, put forth the teachings of Mohammed in a little work called "Islam in America."

In concluding the enumeration of the American works in this department we have still to mention "A Harmony of the Gospels in the Revised Version," by Dr. John A. Broadus; "A Lie Never Justifiable," by Henry Clay Trumbull, of the Sunday-School Times; "Heart-Beats," religious meditations by a liberal Hindu, Protap Chunder Mozoomdar; "Prince Siddartha, the Japanese Buddha," by John L. Atkinson; "Annotations upon Popular Hymns," by Dr. Charles Seymour Robinson, and "History of the First Unitarian Church of Portland, Oregon," by Earl Morse Wilbur.

The many valuable homiletical works that English writers have given us, so useful and suggestive to the busy divine, were enriched with new volumes that found a ready sale in this country. The "Preachers' Complete Homiletic Commentary," an extensive work planned to embrace twenty volumes, completed its second volume on "The Book of Exodus;" "The People's Bible," the great expository work of the celebrated English divine, Dr. Joseph Parker, was carried through Mark, Luke, and John, in its 21st and 22d volumes; "The Sermon Bible," one of the richest compilations of religious facts and suggestions from a multitude of sources, issued volumes on "II. Corinthians-Philippians," and on "Colossians-James;" the additions to the new and sixth series of the "Expositor's Bible" were the "Epistle to the Philippians," by Dr. Robert Rainy; "The Psalms," volume one, by Dr. A. Maclaren; "Ezra, Nehemiah, and Esther," by Walter F. Adeney; "The Book of Joshua," by Dr. William Garden Blaikie; "The First Book of Kings," by Canon Farrar; and volume two of "The Acts of the Apostles," by Dr. G. T. Stokes; "The New Testament and Its Writers," as a helpful work for ministers and teachers, may also be mentioned here. It was written by the Rev. J. A. M'Clymont. An examination of the fundamental principles and the varied forms of worship of the earlier religions is made by the Rev. Geo. Matheson in "The Distinctive Messages of the Old Religions;" "The Place of Christ in Modern Theology" belongs to historical criticism, and is the work of Dr. A. M. Fairbairn; a popular exposition of the gospel according to Matthew is the purpose of Spurgeon's "The Gospel of the Kingdom." "The World of the Unseen," by Arthur Willink, is a scientific argument applied to the Christian doctrines derived from the Scriptures; "The New Reformation and Its Relation to Moral and Social Problems," by Ramsden Balmforth, was a volume of the Social Science Series. Sermons came from Dr. Hugh Macmillan and Canon Faber. A full account of "The Newly Recovered Gospel of St. Peter" is the interesting theme of a volume by J. Rendel Harris; "Joshua and the Land of Promise," by the Rev. F. B. Meyer, came out in the Old Testament Heroes Series; "An Agnostic's Apology, and other essays," is by Leslie Stephens; "Scotland's Free Church" received a full description and history from George Buchanan Ryley and John M. McCandlish; the "Country Parson"—Rev. A. K. H. Boyd—was instructive and helpful in "Towards the Sunset," while Dr. William Reed Huntington gave a "Short History of the Book of Common Prayer."

We made the acquaintance through limited imported editions of the following English works: "Paul's Prayers, and other sermons," by Dr. Alexander Maclaren; "The Way, the Truth, the Life," the Hulsean Lectures of 1871, by Dr. Fenton J. A. Hort; "Some Lights of Science on the Faith," by Canon Alfred Barry, being the Bampton Lectures, 1892; "The Evolution of Religion," the Gifford Lectures of 1890-91 and 1891-92, by Edward Caird; "Morality in Doctrine," by Canon Bright; "The Supernatural," by J. H. King (2 v.); "An Inquiry into the Truth of Dogmatic Christianity," by William Dearing Harden; "Theosophy or Psychological Religion," by F. Max Müller; "William George Ward and the Catholic Revival," by Wilfrid Ward; "Cathedral and University Sermons," by R. W. Church; "Wise Words and Quaint Counsels of Thomas Fuller;" the Rev. R. M. Benson's "Final Passover;" "The Sceptics of the Italian Renaissance," by John Owen; and "The Church in the Roman Empire A.D. 64-170," by W. H. Ramsay.

From the French was translated Gratry's deeply religious work, "Guide to the Knowledge of God," and from the German, Adolf Harnack's "Outlines of the History of Dogma," a popular and comprehensive history of the creeds of Christendom for students and readers.

DESCRIPTION AND TRAVEL.

Among American descriptive works which attracted especial attention were Mrs. Alice Morse Earle's "Customs and Fashions in Old New England," Anne Hollingsworth Wharton's "Through Colonial Doorways," and Thomas Bailey Aldrich's "An Old Town by the Sea." The author of "The Sabbath in Puritan New England" shows the same humor and discernment in "Customs and Fashions in Old New England;" the quaint details she offers of courtship and marriage, sports and diversions, holidays and festivals, and other phases of the severe and gloomy lives of our Puritan ancestors are most instructive and entertaining. Miss Wharton's work refers to colonial days as seen in Philadelphia chiefly, and includes descriptions of many charming personalities of those times—both men and women. Her book is as bright in color and in evidence that life was a joyful thing to the actors in the drama of that period as it was sad and burthensome to the people of the time of which Mrs. Earle writes. Portsmouth, in New Hampshire, is the scene of Mr. Aldrich's "An Old Town by the Sea," long ago made famous as the delightful "Rivermouth" of Tom Bailey in "The Story of a Bad Boy," and as the scene of his charming novel, "Prudence Palfrey." Nothing so far written on the subject of the Eskimos, and explorations at the North Pole, possesses the freshness and value of Mrs. Josephine Peary's "My Arctic Journal," an account of a year spent on the shores of McCormick Bay, supplemented by Mr. Peary's account of "The Great White Journey Across Greenland." Mrs. Peary remained in camp while her husband penetrated with his dogs and men further north; she was continually brought directly in contact with a little tribe of Eskimos, who had never seen a white woman, and made good every moment of her opportunities for studying their manners and morals and modes of life—the result being exceptionally interesting. "The Arctic Problem and Narrative of the Peary Relief Expedition of the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia" is another chapter in the same story, by Prof. Angelo Heilprin.

Country roads of New England as "Seen from the Saddle" in the early morning, by Isa Carrington Cabell, formed a volume in Harper's Black and White Series, which also included "Travels in America One Hundred Years Ago," by Thomas Twining; "The Old Colonial Town, and other sketches," by William Root Bliss, belongs to early New England history. A novel canal cruise of "Two Hundred Miles on the Delaware River" received full justice at the hands of F. Wallace Hoff. "Some Artists at the Fair" attack the same subject with pen and pencil, from different points of view—the artists being Frank D. Millet, Will H. Low, J. A. Mitchell, and others. Julian Ralph produced a graphic account of present conditions and future possibilities of "Our Great West." Kate Sanborn, as "A Truthful Woman in Southern California," gives, with much humor, a very fair account of the experiences awaiting invalids in that country. New Mexico and its contiguous regions is the theme of "The Land of Poco Tiempo," by Charles F. Lummis, a series of monographs, illustrated from photographs of its romance, history, social customs and racial types, ruins, landscape, etc. "Mexican Memories," by Bertram Grosvenor Goodhue, is the record of a slight sojourn below the Yellow Rio Grande; South America and Central America, with Mexico and Cuba as they were politically and commercially in 1887, are the subjects of Isaac N. Ford's "Tropical America." Alfred O. Legge wrote of the inhabitants of "Sunny Manitoba," and Alice French ("Octave Thanet") in "An Adventure in Photography" gave a vivacious narrative of the successes and failures of two amateur photographers in a journey through the Southwest; "Photography Indoors and Out," by Alexander Black, is a helpful, convenient manual, which seems in place to mention here, as photography now plays so large a part in travel.

A large majority of American writers sought new fields of travel and adventure in Europe, Asia, and Africa. William Henry Bishop, known as a writer of novels, as well as works of travel, went to Europe some five years ago, intending to remain there permanently for a few years—his experience in search of a home at a moderate cost will be found in "A House-Hunter in Europe." The late Bishop Brooks' "Letters of Travel" offers a selection from his correspondence during several journeys made in Europe. "An Embassy to Provence," by Thomas A. Janvier, tells of a drive through this grand old French region by the author and his wife in a one-horse chaise, and also of some Provençal poets they sought out. "To Gipsyland," written by Mrs. Elizabeth Robins Pennell, and illustrated by Joseph Pennell, is the story of a bicycle-ride through Hungary of this clever pair in a search for real gypsies. Henry M. Field's latest journey was made to "The Barbary Coast;" Richard Harding Davis brilliantly sketched "The Rulers of the Mediteranean" in a series of descriptive papers; Maturin M. Ballou, the world-wide traveller, told "The Story of Malta." Three unusually interesting works on Japan of a popular nature were: "A Japanese Interior," by Alice Mabel Bacon; "Japan as We Saw It," by Robert S. Gardiner, and "The Simple Adventures of a Mem-Sahib," by Sara Jeannette Duncan, the witty author of "A Social Departure." "Our Cycling Tour in England, from Canterbury to Dartmoor Forest," commends itself to the cycling fraternity, describing, as it does, scenes and adventures encountered by M. Reuben Goldthwaite and his wife in a cycling tour through rural England in the spring of 1891. Many European and Oriental scenes are described in Clinton Scollard's "On Sunny Shores;" "In the Track of the Sun," by F. Diodati Thompson; "Riders of Many Lands," by Theo. Ayrault Dodge—dedicated also to an account of equestrianism the world over; "Rambles in Historic Lands," by P. J. Hamilton, and "The Chronicles of the Sid," by Adela E. Orpen. The recent revived interest in Columbus called out "The Last Voyages of the Admiral of the Ocean Sea," by C. Paul Mackie, and "The Caravels of Columbus," by Néstor Ponce de Leon.

"Round London, Down East and Up West," comes from an English writer, Montagu Williams, and is a collection of sketches of various aspects of London life among the poor and vicious and the rich and immoral. Other English writers have given delightful volumes upon the people and landscapes of different parts of England; Charlotte M. Yonge, in "An Old Woman's Outlook Upon a Hampshire Village," notes the changing beauties of sky and earth, with their living figures, during the year's twelve months; M. E. Francis' "In a North Country Village" gives permanent form to the picturesque characteristics of a sleepy little English hamlet which has seen little change in its conditions in the present century; "Hours in My Garden," by Alexander H. Japp, and "Letters to Marco," by G. D. Leslie, are fascinating books of out-door life in the north and south of England, by men of fine culture, whose observations on birds and trees and flowers are full of value. "Irish Idylls," by Jane Barlow, are descriptions of characters inhabiting Lissconnell, a forsaken bog district of the County Connaught, Ireland. "In the Footsteps of the Poets" is largely topographical, David Masson and others having written the reminiscences of certain poets which cluster around certain places. "With Thackeray in America," written by Thackeray's secretary, Eyre Crowe, relates to the novelist's and essayist's journey to America in 1852. "Pictured Palestine," by James Neil, and "Icelandic Pictures," by F. W. W.

Howell, in the Pen and Pencil Series, were issues of the holiday season. "Reality versus Romance in South Central Africa" is an account of an African expedition fitted out entirely by the author, Dr. James Johnston, in the interests of Christianity and civilization; as he was untrammelled in his work he was also at liberty to tell the truth as he saw it. "Gypsying Beyond the Sea," from William Bement Lent, embraces a leisurely journey from England to Italy. E. A. Freeman's "Studies of France," in two volumes, relate to Greece and Italy. "Morocco as It Is," by Stephen Bonsal, Jr., is the story of Sir Charles Euan Smith's recent mission to Fez in the interest of England. "Out of Doors in Tsarland," by Frederick J. Whishaw, ignores entirely the dark side of Russian and Siberian life, being taken up largely with accounts of shooting adventures; just opposite to this is Kate Marsden's "On Sledge and Horseback to the Outcast Siberian Lepers," full of details of frightful suffering gathered by a member of the Royal British Nurses' Association. "Across France in a Caravan" is a humorous recital of the adventures of the author and his wife among the natives of out-of-the-way spots of France.

Imported editions were shown of the following valuable English works of description and travel: "Artistic Travel," by Henry Blackburn; "Wanderings by Southern Waters," by Edward Harrison Barker; "Annals of an Old Manor-House, Sutton Place, Guildford," by Frederick Harrison; "Diary of an Idle Woman in Constantinople" and "Old Court Life in Spain" (2 v.), by Mrs. Frances Minto Elliot; "Idle Days in Patagonia," by C. H. Hudson, and "A Short History of China," by Demetrius C. Boulger. From the Danish was taken "Eskimo Life," by Fridtjof Nansen. From the French "The History of a Bearskin," by Jules de Marthold, Jules Michelet's "On the Highways of Europe," and Alphonse Daudet's "Letters from My Mill," charmingly poetic descriptions of "beautiful Provence," was brought out as a holiday gift-book, with illustrations by Madeleine Lemaire.

HISTORY.

Not a single historical work from the pen of an American on a subject purely American of magnitude or research can be quoted. Brief studies of periods were made of scholarly interest, but even these are singularly small in number and for the student more than the general reader. Charles Francis Adams sustained his position that the old New England Commonwealth had for a long period in her history opposed religious freedom, and that her historians had condoned her intolerance, by copious references to unquestionable authorities in a small volume called "Massachusetts: its historians and history." "The Making of Virginia and the Middle Colonies, 1578-1701," is the subject of a compact manual by Samuel Adams Drake; a condensed history of the Mississippi Valley, from its earliest exploration and settlement, is embraced in Joseph Wallace's "History of Illinois and Louisiana Under the French Rule;" the records of the early history of Mexico, New Mexico, and the southwestern regions of America were placed under contribution for the sketches offered in Bandelier's "The Gilded Man." In Harper's Students' Series a long-felt want was supplied with J. S. Bury's "History of the Roman Empire, from Its Foundation to the Death of Marcus Aurelius;" the American History Series had added to it William Milligan Sloane's "The French War and the Revolution;" Epochs of American History was completed by the third volume, "Division and Reunion, 1829-1889," by Woodrow Wilson. "The Dawn of Italian Independence," by William Roscoe Thayer, is perhaps the most important work of this classification issued in 1893, and though not American in subject, is from an American author, and is an American book; it takes up a period in Italian history not hitherto made the subject of much study or research, and recites its romantic and picturesque story in a rapid, brilliant style that holds the reader in breathless interest to the very end; from the Congress of Vienna, 1814, to the fall of Venice, 1849, with its many thrilling events leading up to the unification of Italy is the time covered in the two handsome volumes making up the work. John Codman Ropes also went outside of his own history for a theme in "The Campaign of Waterloo," a military history in which each chapter of the narrative, or each statement made, is fully corroborated or disproved by quotations from authorities. Sidney Whitman, the author of "Imperial Germany," gives a brief, succinct account of Austria-Hungary and her various nationalities in "The Realm of the Habsburgs;" "Russia and Turkey in the Nineteenth Century," by Elizabeth Wormeley Latimer, is in line with her successful and popular "France in the Nineteenth Century;" "Glimpses of the French Court," by Mrs. Laura E. Richards, is for the same class of readers. A reprint was made of Christopher Gist's "Journals," being narratives of the first explorations of the Ohio River, and a new edition issued of the "History of the Expedition under the Command of Lewis and Clark to the Sources of the Missouri River;" and the third and fourth volumes issued, completing James Grant Wilson's "Memorial History of the City of New York." The list is completed with N. D. Preston's "History of the Tenth Regiment New York Volunteer Cavalry," and the Rev. D. B. Floyd's "History of the Seventy-Fifth Regiment of Indiana Infantry Volunteers."

From English sources we received in the Heroes of the Nations Series P. F. Willert's "Henry of Navarre and the Huguenots of France;" the new volumes of the Story of the Nations Series were: "The Story of Parthia," by George Rawlinson; "The Story of Poland," by W. R. Morfill, and "The Tuscan Republics," by Bella Duffy. Both these series still retain their popularity with readers looking for succinct, authentic, and brief historical manuals. "Greece in the Age of Pericles," by Arthur J. Grant, appeared in the University Series; "The French Revolution," by C. E. Mallet, was one of the University Extension Manuals; "Outlines of Roman History," by Henry F. Pelham, is most useful for reference; "The Rise of the British Dominion in India" received exact and comprehensive treatment from Sir Alfred Lyall; and an historical sketch of "Venice" as a republic met with extended favor, the author being Horatio F. Brown. The concluding volumes of the new illustrated editions of Green's "Short History of the English People" was published. "Sketches in the House" is a bright little book on the last Parliamentary session, by T. P. O'Connor. Imported editions were shown of Romesh Chunder Dutt's "Ancient India 2000 B.C.-800 A.D.," in Epochs of Indian History; "Reminiscences of the Great Mutiny, 1857-59," by William Forbes Mitchell; "The Jews of Angevin England," edited by Joseph Jacobs; and "Russia Under Alexander III., and in the Preceding Period," translated from the German of H. von Samson-Himmelstierna.

LITERARY MISCELLANY.

Under the heading of LITERARY HISTORY AND MISCELLANY we not only group essays, criticisms, reviews, and literary histories, but works of references, series, and collected works; for these reasons the figures of the classifications are generally very large, while the new works added to it are really very few. Chief of the issues in this line from American writers are Agnes Repplier's sparkling "Essays in Idleness," Henry James' polished "Essays in London and Elsewhere" and artistic "Picture and Text," and George William Curtis' charming collections of "Other Essays from the Easy Chair;" the two latter volumes were additions to Harper's dainty little American Essayists Series. F. Marion Crawford was the author of an interesting essay on "The Novel, What Is It?" The Distaff Series, a memento of the World's Columbian Fair gathered in a number of papers by New York women on "The Kindergarten," edited by Kate Douglas Wiggin, and others also representative of the female writers of the Empire State, under the title of "Household Art," edited by Candace Wheeler. Literary students and others are referred to "Persian Literature, Ancient and Modern," by Elizabeth A. Reed; "Biography of the English Language," by Arthur MacArthur; "The Beginnings of the English Romantic Movement," by William Lyon Phelps, a study in eighteenth-century literature, and Miss E. S. Kirkland's "A Short History of English Literature for Young People." Educational and literary essays and sketches are included in Julia Duhring's "Mental Life and Culture;" musical essays, chiefly historical and educational, in Louis C. Elson's "The Realm of Music;" miscellaneous essays and critical sketches of celebrated public men in Donn Piatt's "Sunday Meditations and Selected Prose Sketches;" essays concerning America will be found in Barrett Wendell's "Stelligeri;" and bright witty papers on many every-day topics in Mrs. Haryot Holt Cahoon's "What One Woman Thinks." A reprint, with additions and revisions, of three papers on Goethe, published in 1884 in the Contemporary Review, bears the title of "Goethe Reviewed After Sixty Years" and the name of J. R. Seeley; it was prepared for English readers in their studies of Goethe. Charles Dudley Warner, in one of Harper's attractive Black and White Series, reviewed "The Work of Washington Irving;" "Paul Siegvolk" (the pseudonym for Albert Matthews) produced "Ruminations"—essays on various subjects; Marshall Brown a most amusing collection of Irish "Bulls and Blunders," which is instructive as well as funny; "Men, Women, and Emotions" contains incisive advice on love and marriage by Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox; "The Opinions of a Philosopher" are Robert Grant's recent thoughts on social and political questions. "Liber Scriptorum" is a sumptuous work, the first issue of the Authors' Club of New York, representing through original stories, poems, sketches, etc., written expressly for it, one hundred and nine members of the club.

The more important works of reference brought out in 1893—books that are "for all time" and for daily consultation—are here grouped: "Dictionary of Quotations," compiled by the Rev. James Wood; "Humanics," by John Staples White; the first volume of Funk's comprehensive "Standard Dictionary of the English Language;" Cassell's "New Biographical Dictionary;" Nugent Robinson's "The Busy Man's Handbook;" "Annual American Catalogue, 1892;" A. Growoll's "Profession of Bookselling," not only rich in practical advice to the bookseller, but rich in unusually carefully prepared and comprehensive literary bibliographies; "The Lover's Lexicon," by Frederick Greenwood; Poole's "Index to Periodical Literature," the second supplement compiled by W. I. Fletcher, with the co-operation of the American Library Association, and covering the five years from January 1, 1887, to January 1, 1892; "The A. L. A. Index," an index to general literature, compiled by W. I. Fletcher, with the co-operation of many librarians, and issued by the publishing section of the American Library Association; "The Annual Literary Index, 1892," which supplements both the preceding works and continues in separate alphabets the features of each, was compiled also by W. I. Fletcher and R. R. Bowker, and also with the assistance and co-operation of the American Library Association. Parts five and six, devoted to "Fine Arts and Architecture, Painting, Sculpture, Decoration, etc.," of H. E. Haferkorn's "Handy Lists of Technical Literature;" H. Carrington Bolton's "A Select Bibliography of Chemistry, 1492-1892;" "Bibliotheca Americana, 1893," a catalogue of valuable books and pamphlets relating to America; and the Grolier Club's "Catalogue of Original and Early Editions of Some of the Poetical and Prose Works of English Writers from Langland to Wither," an interesting and valuable bibliography.

From English sources came Leopold Wagner's "The Significance of Names," a reference work of interest and scholarly import. The sixth volume of "The Bookworm," literary papers and articles covering a vast field; Frederic Harrison's essay on "The Choice of Books;" Brewer's "Orthometry," a treatise on the art of versification and the technicalities of poetry with a new and complete rhyming dictionary; "Literary Blunders," in the Book-Lovers Library, from B. H. Wheatley; "Handbook of Greek and Latin Palæography," by E. Maunde Thompson; Henry S. Pancoast's "Representative English Literature from Chaucer to Tennyson;" Mrs. Margaret O. W. Oliphant's "The Victorian Age of English Literature" (2 v.), supplementing and continuing her "Literary History of England in the End of the 18th and the Beginning of the 19th Century," and supplying information about living authors always difficult to find; Henry Craik's "English Prose Selections," with critical introduction to the writers and the different periods into which the work is divided, offers an excellent medium for the study of literary style. The first volume, from the fourteenth to the sixteenth century, has been published. William Renton's "Outlines of English Literature" in the University Extension Manuals; pt. 1 of volume 2 of Ten Brink's "History of English Literature," translated from the German, also came out. The first volume of this work was given to the public nearly ten years ago. This volume carries the narrative down to the accession of Queen Elizabeth. Books about books always appeal to the book-lover. In this line were imported "The Great Book Collectors," Hardy's "Book-Plates," E. Gordon Duff's "Early Printed Books," and Falconer Madan's "Books in Manuscript," all treasure-houses of rare information coming within the limits of the preceding group. Apt quotations and cheery, happy thoughts characterize E. J. Hardy's "Sunny Days of Youth;" wit and humor, E. Sandford Martin's "Windfalls of Observation." "The Highway of Letters and Its Echoes of Famous Footsteps" is a gossip reference by Thomas Archer to people and achievements identified with the story of Fleet Street, London. "Selections from the Writings of William Blake" show this great painter and poet at his best; "The Best Letters of William Cowper" appeared in the Laurel-Crowned Letters Series; the new series of "Mr. Punch's Prize Novels," taken from Punch, was extremely funny, as were also F. Anstey Guthrie's "Mr. Punch's Pocket Ibsen" and Jerome K. Jerome's "Novel Notes." Henry Irving's addresses on "The Drama" deal with the art and traditions of the stage; "From Wisdom Court" is an example of the rare humor of Henry Seton Merriman and Stephen Tallentyre. "Literary Recollections and Sketches" holds within its covers charming details of the lives and works of prominent English writers. Editions of "Plato and Platonism," by Walter Pater, "Questions at Issue," by Edmund Gosse, "Homer and the Epic," by Andrew Lang, and "The Book-Hunter in Paris," by Octave Uzanne, were imported. Translated from the French were: "The Humor of France," a compilation by Elizabeth Lee, in the International Humor Series, which also had added to it "The Humor of Germany," taken from the German by Hans Müller-Casenov, "The Humor of Italy," compiled from the Italian by A. Werner, and "The Humor of Holland," from the Dutch, by A. Werner. "The Parsifal of Richard," by Maurice Kufferath, appeals strongly to musical readers; it is from the French. "Maxims and Reflections of Goethe," the fruit of the great writer's later years, found translation from the German.

POETRY.

The harvest of 1893 in POETRY AND THE DRAMA was indeed meagre. The great names of the past, that are but a memory both in this country and in England, found none to take their places; graceful, delicate poems, mostly gathered from periodical literature, were given permanent form in handsome volumes, and some useful anthologies were prepared—but no extensive work, either of great genius or promise, marked the year. Of the volumes that found ready sale, the following are the more important: "Fair Shadow Land," by Edith M. Thomas; "Green Fields and Running Brooks" and "Poems Here at Home," by James Whitcomb Riley; Donn Piatt's "Poems and Plays;" "The Great Remembrance, and other poems," by Richard Watson Gilder; "On the Road Home," by Mrs. Margaret E. Sangster; "Such as They Are," poems by Thomas Wentworth and Mary Thacher Higginson; Eugene Field's "Second Book of Verse;" Daniel L. Dawson's "The Seeker in the Marshes, and other poems;" T. W. Parsons' "Poems;" "Low Tide on Grand Pré," lyrics by Bliss Carman; "A Country House," a new series of poems by Norman R. Gale; and "Under King Constantine," idyls after the style of Tennyson, which attracted attention through their refined style and poetical rendering; at first published anonymously—a second edition displayed the name on the title-page of Mrs. Katrina Trask, a lady well known to New York society. Not without power was a historical drama of the ninth century, by Amélie Rives, called "Athelwold," and a play called "Giles Corey, Yeoman," by Miss Mary E. Wilkins, founded on the persecution of the Salem witches in 1692; sent out in the livery of Harper's Black and White Series. Two volumes were added to Horace Parker Chandler's compilation—"The Lover's Year-Book of Poetry," containing a collection of love-poems on "Married Life and Child Life;" "Horatian Echoes," English versions of the odes of Horace, by John Osborne Sargent, and "Greek Poets in English Verse," edited by William Hyde Appleton, are scholarly specimens of poetical translation.

William Watson's "Poems" betrayed a high order of talent; he belongs to the younger school of English poets; besides his fugitive poems offered in this volume, he also gave the world a little story in verse, entitled "The Eloping Angels." "The Countess Kathleen" consists of legends and lyrics by W. B. Yeats; "Adzuma" is one of Sir Edwin Arnold's poetical Japanese plays; "Songs of the Common Day" is by C. G. D. Roberts; Thomson's "The City of Dreadful Night" was issued in a new and beautiful edition, and Austin Dobson's "Proverbs in Porcelain," in approved holiday attire. To this short catalogue may be added an edition of "Poems of Arthur Henry Hallam," edited by Richard Le Gallienne; "The Seven Cities of the Dead, and other poems," by Sir John Croker Barrow; Mrs. Sarah M. B. Piatt's "An Enchanted Castle, and other poems;" "Lost Hunting-Ground," by John James Piatt; "Book Song," an anthology of poems of books and bookmen from modern authors, edited by Gleeson White—issued in the Book-Lovers' Library. "Tanagra," an idyl of Greece, taken from the German of Gottfried Kinkel, and Ibsen's "The Master-BUILDER," from the Norwegian, translated by John W. Arctander, and also Björnson's "Pastor Sang."

ART-BOOKS AND WORKS ON ART.

The number of art or holiday works prepared for 1893 was even smaller than in 1892. "French Illustrators," taken from the French of Louis Morin, was one of the chief American publications and most interesting and artistic. Next to this in value was "The Century Gallery," sixty-four proofs in a portfolio, of the best illustrations of the Century Magazine—a work of permanent worth. "The Christ-Child in Art," by Henry Van Dyke, and "The Masters and Masterpiece of Engraving," by Willis O. Chapin, reproduced by heliogravure a number of famous studies of the old masters. "Italian Gardens," by C. A. Platt; "Art Out of Doors," by Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer; "Homes in City and Country," by Russell Sturgis, John W. Root, and others, while showing many beautiful illustrations have also a useful and practical side. Of the many fine illustrated works giving permanency to the art features of the World's Columbian Fair the most elaborate and expensive were Hubert Howe Bancroft's "The Book of the Fair," published in parts, and Kurtz' "The Art Gallery Illustrated of the World's Columbian Exposition." Many minor publications at a very reasonable price furnished desirable souvenirs of the Chicago Fair. Other works were the tenth series of "The Good Things of Life" and Keppler's "Selection of Cartoons from Puck," both amusing and timely; "The Columbus Gallery," pictures of all the existing portraits, monuments, statues, and paintings of the great discoverer gathered together by Néstor Ponce de Leon; Bryant's "Poems of Nature," a new compilation charmingly illustrated by Paul de Longpré; and "The Queen of the Adriatic;" and new and handsomely illustrated editions of Charles Reade's "The Cloister and the Hearth," Irving's "Knickerbocker's History of New York," Thomas Nelson Page's "Meh Lady," Holmes' "Autocrat of the Breakfast-Table," and Blackmore's "Lorna Doone," represented by three separate illustrated editions. A book of reference for collectors, manufacturers, artists and the general public, is Edwin A. Barber's "The Pottery and Porcelain of the United States," in which text and pictures combine to present a systematic treatment of American ceramics; also for the artist are the following kindred works: "Greek Lines, and other architectural essays," by Henry Van Brunt; "The Genesis of Art Form," by George Lansing Raymond, and "Art for Art's Sake," seven lectures on the technical beauties of painting, by John C. Van Dyke; "Art and Handicraft in the Woman's Building of the World's Columbian Exposition, Chicago," naturally follows here; it is a collection of special articles on women's art achievements, written by noted women and edited by Mrs. Maud Howe Elliott. Dramatic art was treated by William Winter in "Shadows of the Stage," a second series of his critical and biographic articles on the "stars" of the foot-lights. "Famous Composers and Their Works," issued in thirty parts, is a collection of pictures, portraits, music, and graphic text, edited by John Knowles Paine. Clara Kathleen Rogers wrote about "The Philosophy of Singing."

Imported works from the English included "An Historical Sketch of Bookbinding," by Miss S. T. Prideaux, "A History of English Dress," by Georgiana Hill (2 v.), "The Birth and Development of Ornament," by F. E. Hulme, "Drawing and Engraving," by Philip Gilbert Hamerton, and from the French "Henrietta Ronner, the Painter of Cat Life and Character," being a portfolio of photogravures of this artist's works.

SPORTS AND AMUSEMENTS.

The additions to SPORTS AND AMUSEMENTS made very little show. American authors contributed "University Football," the principles and rules of the game, edited by James R. Church; "Practical Lawn Tennis," by Dr. James Dwight; Walter Camp's "Book of College Sports," devoting special attention to football, baseball, rowing and track athletics; Gasper Howland's "The Complete Sportsman," designed for the instruction of votaries of the gun; "The Hunter and Angler," a handy manual of hunting, trapping and angling. Theodore Roosevelt gave an account of the big game of the United States in "The Wilderness Hunter," and treated a similar topic in "American Big-Game Hunting" in collaboration with George Bird Grinnell—this latter work being mostly made up of papers by members of the Boone and Crockett Club. Critical and amusing "whistographs" were brought together in one of the blue and gold Knickerbocker Nuggets by William G. McGuckin under the title of "Whist Nuggets." English authors prepared for the Badminton Library volumes on "Coursing and Falconry" and on "Swimming." We received also from this source "Short Stalks," by E. North Buxton, "Fishing Experiences of Half a Century," by F. Powell Hopkins, and the "Art of Golf," by Sir W. G. Simpson.

SCIENCE.

The majority of the contributions to this classification are works on PHYSICAL SCIENCE; there are others on Mental and Moral Science, and the applied arts. The following works from American writers on Physical Science have a charming literary quality: "How to Know the Wild Flowers," by Mrs. W. Starr Dana; "The Shrubs of Northeastern America," by C. S. Newhall; "Recreations in Botany," by Caroline A. Creevey; "Camp-Fires of a Naturalist," by Clarence E. Edwards; "Brief Guide to the Commoner Butterflies of the Northern United States and Canada" and "The Life of a Butterfly," by Samuel Hubbard Scudder; and parts 6, 7, and 8 of Nebrling's "North American Birds." In the same line from English writers were Patrick Geddes' "Chapters in Modern Botany," in the University Extension Manuals. Likewise included in this series are "The Earth's History," an introduction to modern geology, by R. D. Roberts; Henry Walter Bates' "The Naturalist on the River Amazons," embracing a memoir of the author by Edward Clodd; the valuable and interesting Contemporary Science Series had added to it Frank Waldo's "Modern Meteorology," the main object being to bring the reader into closer contact with the work which has been and is actually engaging the attention of working meteorologists rather than to present finished results; and Houssay's "The Industries of Animals," a study in the light of the researches of science into the methods of animals in hunting and fishing, in their harvests and industries, the making of dwellings, the rearing and education of their young, etc. Add to these L. N. Badenoch's "Romance of the Insect World," part 1 of Newton and Gadow's "Dictionary of Birds," and Sir Robert Stawell Ball's "In the High Heavens," a series of sketches of certain parts of astronomy.

We note from English sources a new edition in nine volumes of the more important of Huxley's published essays; V. 1 is entitled "Methods and Results," and V. 2, "Darwiniana," which collects under one cover all of his utterances on this subject since 1859; no other volumes were issued during 1893. Volume 2 of Herbert Spencer's "The Principles of Ethics," containing "Justice," "Negative Beneficence," and "Positive Beneficence," was published, the work in its entirety being one of the most able and at the same time lucid interpretations of modern philosophical thought; an essay from Herbert Spencer, "The Inadequacy of Natural Selection," criticising Prof. Weismann's theories, was reprinted from the Contemporary Review. Exhaustive scientific works of similar importance were "The Germ-Plasm," a theory of heredity taken from the German of Prof. Augustus Weismann, one of the highest authorities on the subject, and published in the Contemporary Science Series, Francis Galton's "Deciphering of Blurred Finger-Prints," and "A Theory of Development and Heredity," by Henry B. Orr—the two last-mentioned works are from English pens.

The numerous inexplicable phenomena of the physical world which trench on the supernatural found students and elucidators in "The Law of Psychic Phenomena," by Thomson Jay Hudson, and in "Psychics," by Minot J. Savage; "The Psychic Factors of Civilization," by Lester F. Ward, denies the validity of current economic maxims and attacks the individualism of Herbert Spencer; "Ideal Suggestion Through Mental Photography," by Henry Wood, is a study of the laws of mental healing approached seriously; "The Philosophy of Individuality," by Dr. Antoinette Brown Blackwell, offers a physical basis for the doctrine of immortality; the five works of this group are from American writers; a kindred work, "The Physiology of the Senses," an excellent preparation for entering upon the questions that underlie physiological psychology, coming from English writers, namely, John Gray McKendrick and William Snodgrass, and being one of the University Extension Manuals.

Educational Science called forth discussions and works from writers of many countries of fresh interest and fresh value. From American writers we had "Woman and the Higher Education," a volume of the Distaff Series, a collection of papers on many phases of the question from eminent women, edited by Miss Anna C. Brackett; "Methods of Teaching Modern Languages," papers by A. Marshall Elliott, Calvin Thomas, and others, an issue of Heath's Pedagogical Library; and "Within College Walls," by Charles Franklin Thwing, discussions in a liberal spirit of topics of interest to parents and students; from the English, "Manual of Linguistics," by John Clark, which treats phonology as a precise science, indispensable in linguistic research; and "Froebel and Education by Self-Activity," an addition by Henry Courthope Bowen to the Great Educators Series; from the French, Rousseau's celebrated treatise on education, "Emile," and Charles Wagner's "Youth," were taken; from the German, William Preyer's "Mental Development in the Child" was translated for the International Education Series, and Herbart's "Science of Education" for Heath's Pedagogical Library. Handbooks from American writers are: "How to Manage the Dynamo," by S. R. Bottone, and "Telephone Lines and Their Properties," by W. J. Hopkins.

THREE-QUARTERS OF A CENTURY OF AMERICAN PUBLISHING.

In connection with the foregoing survey of the book production of the year just closed, it may not be uninteresting to take a retrospective statistical glance at the publishing activity of the United States since the beginning of the present century.

In 1820 the gross amount of books manufactured and sold in the United States was estimated at $2,500,000, divided as follows :

School books.....	$750,000
Classical books.....	250,000
Theological books.....	150,000
Law books.....	200,000
Medical books.....	150,000
All others.....	1,000,000

Ten years later (1830) the gross amount of books manufactured and sold in the United States was $5,500,000. In 1834, through the efforts of Mr. George P. Putnam, the founder of the present house of G. P. Putnam's Sons, the first systematic table of the book production in this country was compiled and printed in The Booksellers' Advertiser and Monthly Register of New Publications, American and Foreign. It was as follows :

* Average about 75 cents per vol., making a total average for the American books and reprints of $1.95 per vol.

In 1893 the total price of the 5134 volumes published and imported was $10,856.35, an average of about $2.12 per volume. It should be remembered, however, that this average is raised considerably by the addition of high-priced imported books. Deducting these the average would not be much higher than it was fifty years ago.

"If this table may be taken as a fair index to the literary taste of the nation—and we can say that it is at least very nearly correct—it shows," said Mr. Putnam "(1) That the speculative and the useful greatly preponderate over the imaginative. (2) That while we have supplied ourselves almost entirely with original works on education, law, medicine, and matters of fact, more than four-fifths of the fiction which has been printed in this country during the last eighteen months have come from abroad. (3) That with us unromantic and calculating Yankees poetry is a very dull article; British publications in this line during the same time being four times more numerous in proportion than ours. (4) That during the last six months the number of original works has increased, while that of reprints has materially diminished since last year; and the same total of the former is nearly double that of the latter; or, in other words, the average proportion of books now printed in this country is two-thirds American and one-third British. (5) The whole number of works printed in the United States during the eighteen months past is 760, making 931 volumes; a single set cost $915.55; and allowing 1000 copies to an edition, they amount to nine hundred and fifteen thousand, five hundred and fifty dollars—exclusive of repeated editions, pamphlets, Bibles, prayer-books, and pamphlet periodicals, of which latter there are 75, amounting at the same rate to $240,000 per annum." *

In the same year (1834) it may be interesting to note also that there were in existence 67 magazines, which were divided in classes as given in the following table :

		Pages per annum.	Whole cost about
Literary, Pol. and Miscel- laneous.....	31 comprising	19,584	$104.50

On Various Sciences....	5	3,444	18.50
Total.....	67	42,724	$213.00

In 1840 the gross amount of the book production was estimated at $5,500,000. In this year the following table of estimates of the various industrial interests connected with the press was presented to Congress in behalf of a

* Mr. Putnam's work was taken up in a somewhat modified form by Duyckinck's Literary World, 1847-53; and more directly by Charles B. Norton in his Literary Advertiser, May to December, 1851; and Literary Gazette, Jan. 15, 1852, to July 15, 1855. These were succeeded by Charles Rodes' Criterion, Nov. 3, 1855, to July 15, 1856, when Mr. Rodes was induced to take charge of The American Publishers' Circular and Literary Gazette, which was started in September, 1855. The Circular passed into George W. Childs' hands May 1, 1863, and in January, 1872, was incorporated with Mr. Leypoldt's Weekly Trade Circular, which in turn became THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY in January, 1873.

The Bookseller's Advertiser was, so far as we are aware, the first book trade journal ever issued in this country. Mr. Putnam was at the time he edited the paper about twenty-two years old, and a clerk in Jonathan Leavitt's book-store. The Advertiser was printed by John F. Trow, and lasted from January to December, 1834. The editor remained incognito until the appearance of the twelfth and last issue, when Mr. Putnam announced the discontinuation of the journal, mainly because, as he said, the editorial work could not "be properly attended to without interfering with more legitimate duties, or infringing on midnight hours."

In 1850 the amount had advanced 125 per cent., amounting to a grand total of 12,500,000.

In 1853 it was estimated that there were published in this country 733 new works, of which 278 were reprints of English books, and 35 were translations of foreign authors. From that year until 1880, when THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY began its annual survey of the publishing trade, there seem to be no statistics of any kind relating to the book trade. In a future issue we may take up a further survey of the beginnings of publishing and bookselling in this country.

A. G.

THE BOOK SALES OF 1893.

By J. H. Slater, in the London Athenæum.

It cannot be supposed that different classes of books come into prominence or recede from popular favor with anything approaching a spasmodic movement, though it is undoubted that changes, depending to a very large extent on contemporary fashion, are continually taking place. Observations merely confined to the space of a year would not be sufficiently representative to justify an opinion that any alteration noticeable during that space of time would or would not be likely to be permanent, but if the record of a series of years be carefully considered, it is, I believe, even possible to arrive at a conclusion with regard to the future ups and downs of the book-market that will to some extent at least be borne out by results. This is not such pure speculation as it seems, for progress is slow in the book-world, and a real, as distinguished from a fictitious, impetus once given is almost certain to continue. The difficulty consists in detecting small initial movements and in gauging their upward or downward tendency, regard being had to intrinsic merit, which has everything to do with the question of the ultimate fate of a book in the market. There are, of course, other considerations—as, for example, the number of copies published to the edition—which are of the greatest importance, so much so that many authors of the highest reputation are passed over quickly enough in the auction-room because, for one thing, they have had the good fortune to be popular from the first. Sir Walter Scott may be mentioned as one, and perhaps the greatest, of many examples that could be adduced to prove the truth of this assertion. The editions of that prolific author were issued in prodigious quantities, and for that reason were never in much request as collectors' books until a year or two ago, when it was recognized that, although rebound and cut-down copies of the original editions of all his books were common enough, the very reverse was the case with regard to clean copies in their original boards. There was obviously no valid reason why Scott at his best should be neglected while other authors of less ability should be favorably regarded, and so what was, in fact, predicted two or three years ago has actually come to pass: original editions of all Scott's works, provided they are in the same state as when published, but not otherwise, are selling at prices greatly in advance of what they have ever brought before. On the other hand, the rather cool reception accorded the "Limited Edition" movement accentuates the common mistake of supposing that, merely because a small number of copies of a new book are published, they must necessarily on that account become sought after, and therefore valuable. This by no means follows. Scarcity is only one incident in the life of a book; there are many more, such as novelty, sterling merit, utility, and interest of subject; and unless one or more of these qualities are conspicuously present, mere scarcity will not atone for the defect. Some books, no doubt, are prized for no other reason than because they are seldom met with, but they are invariably old or curious, and commonly both. Whatever the reason, it seems clear that these quite modern volumes issued in strictly limited numbers have, as a whole, failed to establish themselves in the open market; and if any appreciable number are held by the dealers, a heavy fall is certain to follow. With the exceptions mentioned, all classes of books are substantially in the same position as they were a year ago, though it may be advisable to mention that the evidence in favor of Scott seems to apply to some extent to original editions of Lytton, which have hitherto been almost entirely neglected. These, if good copies in their original covers, should rise in value in the near future. If dirty, imperfect, or rebound, they are better left alone, in accordance with the general rule that prevails in such cases.

During the year 1883, or, to be more accurate, from December, 1892, to last November, both inclusive, fifty high-class sales by auction have been held in London and the provinces, and will be found reported in the forthcoming volume of "Book Prices Current." Nearly 50,000 lots of property, representing probably double that number of books, were brought to the hammer, the total sum realized amounting to 66,470*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.*, a good but not an unusual average. The first sale, comprising the library of the late F. W. J. Deacon, which was dispersed by Sotheby early in December, contained little of importance; and Mr. Elsted's library, which the same firm sold on December 3, was very little better. Bateman's "Orchidaceæ of Mexico and Guatemala," 1843, folio, brought 9*l.* 15*s.* (half morocco). A copy of this book had not appeared in the auction-room since March, 1891, on which occasion it realized 6*l.* 15*s.* Hasted's "Kent," 12 vols., 1797-1801, 8vo, brought 4*l.* 16*s.*, and the earlier and better edition of 1778-99, in 4 folio volumes, 16*l.* 10*s.* Later on Puttick & Simpson disposed of a miscellaneous collection that included a few good books—e.g., Alnsworth's "Jack Sheppard," 3 vols., first edition, cloth, uncut, 1839, 6*l.* 12*s.*; a large-paper copy (imperial) of Bewick's "Birds," 2 vols., 1805, in the original boards, 8*l.*; Sir Egerton Brydges' "Restituta," 18 vols., 8vo, 1814-15, 9*l.* 5*s.* (calf); Egan's "Life of an Actor," 1825, additionally illustrated with colored and other caricatures and numerous scarce portraits, 11*l.* Thackeray's "Vanity Fair," in the original 20 monthly parts, 13*l.* 5*s.*, a cheap set; and a copy of the Kelmscott Press reprint of the "Golden Legend," 3 vols., 4to, 1892, 7*l.* (published at 9*l.* 9*s.*). As a good deal of interest is manifested in William Morris' Hammersmith productions, the sales of the whole year may be conveniently tabulated at once. The following were all in the original covers precisely as when published: "Recuyell of the Historyes of Troy," 3 vols. in 2, 4to, 1892, 6*l.* 5*s.*, 29*l.* (vellum); "History of Reynard the Foxe," 1892, folio, 2*l.* 11*s.*, 2*l.* 17*s.*, 16*l.* 10*s.* (vellum); W. S. Blunt's "Proteus, Love-Lyrics, Songs and Sonnets," 1892, 8vo, 2*l.* 4*s.* (published at 2*l.* 2*s.*); "The Nature of Gothic," 1892, 8vo, 1*l.* 3*s.* (published at 1*l.* 10*s.*); "Poems by the Way," 1891, 8vo, 3*l.* 12*s.*, 3*l.* 5*s.* (published at 2*l.* 2*s.*); "The Defence of Guenevere," 4to, 1892, 2*l.* 6*s.* (published at 2*l.* 2*s.*); "A Dream of John Ball," 1892, 4to, 1*l.* 10*s.* (published at 1*l.* 10*s.*); "The Story of the Glittering Plain," 1891, 4to, 4*l.* 12*s.* (published at 2*l.* 2*s.*); and one or two more. These statistics are eminently satisfactory, and, considering the short length of time the Kelmscott Press has been established, would be hard to equal. On December 13 Sotheby disposed of "a portion of the library of a gentleman, deceased," a small but exceedingly choice collection. Although there were only 418 lots, they brought 2411*l.* 11*s.*, showing the large average of nearly 6*l.* Bewick's "Fables of Æsop," 1818, and "Select Fables," 1820, both on large paper (royal), sold for 13*l.* (calf extra); Blake's "Illustrations of the Book of Job," 21 proof-plates, 1826, folio, 8*l.* 5*s.*; Theodore de Bry's "Emblemata," 1593, 4to, 60*l.* (morocco extra, covered with gold tooling). A set of the "H. B." sketches, 917 plates, in 9 folio volumes, sold for 25*l.*; McLan's "Clans of the Scottish Highlands," 2 vols., 4to, 1857, 8*l.* (morocco extra); a complete set of the Percy Society's Publications, 94 works in 30 vols., 8vo, 1840-53, 13*l.* 13*s.*; a complete set of the Surtees Society's Publications, from its establishment in 1834 to 1890 inclusive, 88 vols., 8vo, in the original cloth, 33*l.*; and a splendid copy of "Antiquities of the Russian Empire," 6 vols. in 7, folio, with the 4to volume of text, 1849-55, 64*l.* Another copy of this same book, without the text, 6 vols. in 4, subsequently sold for 43*l.* Later an assortment of Robert Browning's Poems in 24 vols., all first editions, realized 16*l.* 15*s.* The books were nicely bound by Zaehnsdorf, but the series comprised nothing before 1850, except "Paracelsus," "Strafford," and "Sordello." The next lot consisted of the eight numbers of "Bells and Pomegranates," 1841-46, original covers. 8*l.* At the same sale a Missal, printed by Plantin on vellum in 1572 at Antwerp, realized 19*l.*, and a first folio Shakespeare 25*l.* This copy had the title with portrait, verses, preliminary leaves, and "Cymbeline," reprinted in fac-simile. No other copy of the first folio was sold during the year, but three copies of the second folio (1632) appeared, and the six of the fourth (1685). A quite perfect copy of the former produced 53*l.* (old calf), and of the latter, 19*l.* This has been a bad Shakespearian year, the important sales including only a copy of the "Merchant of Venice," first edition, 1600, 4to, 90*l.* (last leaf in fac-simile); "Henry v.," 1608, 4to, 50*l.*, the folios already mentioned; two sets of Halliwell-Phillipps' edition, 16 vols., 1853-65, folio, which brought 63*l.* and 66*l.* respectively; and Boydell's edition, 9 vols., folio, 1802, 61*l.* (extra illustrated). The last time a perfect copy of Shakespeare's third folio of 1664 was seen in a London auction-room was at the Gaisford sale in 1890 (168*l.*), though a good copy sold at New York in March, 1891, for $950. Though the third folio is not so important as the first, it seems to be much more difficult to meet with. Two works which, like Scrope's "Salmon Fishing" and "Deer Stalking," seem to be getting more expensive every day are Col. Crealock's "Among the Red Deer," folio, n.d., 6*l.*, and the same author's "Happy Hunting Grounds of Loch Luichart," folio, n.d., 4*l.* 10*s.* A third book, "Deer-Stalking in the Highlands of Scotland," 1892, folio, is, however, more valuable than either. Three copies have been publicly sold during the last twelve months for 11*l.*, 12*l.* 10*s.* and 14*l.* 14*s.* Only 255 copies of the book were printed, and very few reached the hands of the booksellers. Cordiner's "Antiquities and Scenery of the North of Scotland" and "Remarkable Ruins and Romantic Prospects of North Britain," 1780, etc., 4to, brought 92*l.* 8*s.*, a remarkable price, which is accounted for by the fact that seventy-one original drawings by Cordiner, many of them never published, were included in the sale. A set of 298 engravings in mezzotint, after Sir Joshua Reynolds, proofs on French paper, 1820, etc., folio, sold for 53*l.* 11*s.* This sale of Major E. Hill's library, which also included other properties, was remarkable for the number of art-books it contained, and the prices realized were considerably above the average.

Up to a certain date very few of those favorite books with colored plates by Rowlandson, Alken, Leech, and the rest had been observed, but, as frequently happens, a large number came into the market at once. Alken's "Hunting Accomplishments," 1850, "Hunting Casualties," 1850, "Hunting Sketches," 1859, "Steeple Chase Scenes," 1848, and "Symptoms of being Amused," 1822, in all five folio books with colored plates, sold for 21*l.* (half calf and half morocco); Combe's "Life of Napoleon," 30 colored plates by George Cruikshank, 1815, 7*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.* (uncut); "The Loving Ballad of Lord Bateman," in the original green cloth and quite clean, 1839, 16mo, 8*l.* 5*s.*; Westmacott's "English Spy," 2 vols., colored plates and wood-cuts by R. Cruikshank, 1825-6, 8vo, 12*l.* 15*s.*, and many more. More unusual books which occurred for sale at the beginning of the year include Cowper's "History of John Gilpin," n.d. (1785), 5*l.* 5*s.* (uncut); Audubon's "Birds of America," 4 vols., double elephant folio, 1827-38, 290*l.*, an amount which, though large, is considerably below the average; "Goldsmith's "Good-Natured Man," first edition, 1768, 5*l.* (morocco extra); "The Traveller," first edition, 1765, 7s. 7s. (ibid.); and "The Deserted Village," first edition, 1770, 10s. (ibid.); a series of fifteen works, all of which related in some way to lace and lace-making, including Vinciolo's "Singuliers et nouveaux Pourtraicts pour toutes Sortes d'Ouvrages de Lingerie," 2 vols. in 1, 1589, of which only two or three copies are known to exist, 165s.; Milton's "Poems Both English and Latin," 1645, 8vo, 33s. (morocco extra); the "Sealed Book of Charles II.," being the folio Prayer-Book of 1662, 34s. (large paper, measuring 16½ in. by 10 in., original red morocco); and a copy in the original call of Richardson's "Clarissa Harlowe," first edition, 7 vols., 1748, 22s. Had these last-named volumes been rebound and at all cut down in the process the price would have fallen to 2s. or 3s., or perhaps even less. The sale of the original autograph manuscript of "Poems by Two Brothers" will be fresh in the recollection of readers of the Athenæum, where the facts were chronicled at the time. The price paid (480s.) was considerably exceeded on a resale to an American collector.* Admirers of Thackeray will be pleased or the reverse to learn that good copies of his novels, original editions of course, are still rising in value. A bid of 13s. for the "Paris Sketch-Book," 2 vols., 1840, is unusual, and 8s. 8s. for Marry's "Sketches After English Landscape Painters," n.d., quite high enough. It is Bogue's edition of this book that sells so well; that with Griffin's imprint, also without date, is much inferior. In connection with Thackeray may be mentioned Britannia, a Weekly Journal of News, Politics, and Literature, 3 vols., 1840-2, folio, which sold for 24s. 10s. at the Ditchfield sale in April last. These volumes contain five original articles, signed "M. A. Titmarsh," published under the collective title of "Loose Sketches," which have never been reprinted. The discovery of these interesting additions to Thackeray bibliography is due to the researches of C. P. Johnson, our authority on all matters relating to the novelist.

As in the case of Thackeray, so in that of Dickens. Original copies of works by either author are becoming more and more difficult to obtain, provided they are in the covers as issued and quite clean. There are hundreds of inferior copies in the market, but these invariably sell for small sums, and do not appear to excite much interest. One extraordinarily rare pamphlet of Dickens' is worthy of notice: "To Be Read at Dusk," reprinted from the Keeper's of 1852. A copy sold at the Dalsiel sale in June for 8s. 15s., but it had been bound. About 20s. is a much more likely price for an example in the original wrapper. Really good copies of the works of Dickens have not appeared in the market recently, except on rare occasions and at long intervals. They appear to be rising in value, and are already quite beyond the reach of the ordinary collector. The same remark applies to many of Lever's works, particularly "Tale of the Trains," 16mo., 1845, and nearly all Ainsworth's earlier publications. At the end of January the very scarce "Rules and Regulations of the Walton and Cotton Club," privately printed in 1840, brought 14s. 5s. Later on, a set of Sibson's illustrations to "Master Humphrey's Clock," 72 plates, inclusive of engraved title and frontispiece, 1843, 8vo, sold for 14s. (original cloth); and a set of the parts of the "Pickwick Papers" for 13s. These would, no doubt, have produced more, but only parts x. and xv. had the "Addresses," which should also be found in parts ii. and lii. An ideal copy of the "Pickwick Papers" is the despair of everybody, and has been so for years. A very superior "Pickwick" was sold, however, in April last, for 39s. though rebound. The scarcity of Blake's engraved works has become proverbial, yet several copies have been sold during the past twelve months at reasonable prices, considering the wide demand there is for these extraordinary productions. In February a number of books either printed in or relating to North America were sold at prices that preclude any idea of a fall. One of these, "Encouragements for such as shall have Intention to be Undertakers in the new Plantation of Cape Breton," Edinburgh, 1625, brought 76s., and two "Epistola" of Christopher Columbus, the first known as the "thirty-three-line edition," and the second as the "forty-two-line edition," 315s. It is well known to collectors that writers on the voyage of Columbus and the discovery of America are by no means agreed as to which of the many editions in Latin is the original, or editio princeps. A very good example of the difference in price obtainable for books in their original bindings and the same books when rebound is afforded by lots 1129 and 1130 in the Buckley sale. Both these comprised Fielding's "Tom Jones," first edition, 6 vols., 1749, both were the first issue with the leaf of "Errata" to vols. i.-v., yet one copy sold for 69s. and the other for 4s. 12s. The only difference observable was that in the first case the original binding was intact, while in the second the work had been rebound, and of course cut down. At this same sale Goldsmith's "Vicar of Wakefield," 2 vols., Salisbury, 1766, produced 39s. 10s., a price, however, that was considerably exceeded a few weeks ago; Keats' "Poems," 1817, in the original boards, 23s. 10s., and "Endymion," 1818, 10s. 5s., also as issued; Milton's "Lycidas," 1638, 4to, 67s. (morocco). At Sir Robert Comyn's sale, in March, that scarce pamphlet Byron's "Curse of Minerva," 1812, 4to, brought 60s. (original wrappers). More recently, Marlowe's "Tamberlaine the Grete," 1605, and the second part, 1606, in one quarto volume, brought 17s.; Richard de Bury's "Philobiblon," 1483, 4to, 31s. 10s.; Spencer's "Complaints," 1591, 4to, 22s. 10s.; and "Virgil's XII. Bukes of Eneados, translated into Scottish Metre by Gawan Douglas," 1553, 4to, 25s. 10s.

At the Dalsiel sale eight volumes (including "Hunting") of the Badminton Library, large paper, produced 29s. 10s., but the finest collection was dispersed at the sale of the library of Bishop Stortford School at the end of July. There were seventeen volumes, all on large paper, and the sum realized for the whole amounted to 55s. 13s. At the same sale Cicero's "Cato Major; or, his Discourse of Old Age," Philadelphia, B. Franklin, 1744, 8vo, sold for 49s. This copy had been cut down, or it would, perhaps, have brought more.

The sale of Mr. William Hazlitt's books, manuscripts, and letters, which took place on November 23 and 24, was in one respect the most important event of the year, the Hazlitt papers being, as might have been expected, a unique feature. The original ms. of the "Liber Amoris" brought 32*l.*, and two folio volumes full of autograph letters and miscellanea, 122*l.* The original draft, in Hunt's autograph, of the first letter to Hazlitt upon the question of the Shelley criticisms sold for 20*l.* 10*s.*, and there were several other manuscripts and collections of the highest value from a literary point of view. The printed books, too, which went the way of all libraries on this occasion, were of considerable importance. The whole sale realized 1810*l.* and some few shillings. Another dispersion to which special reference may well be made took place at Liverpool on the last days of November, when Messrs. Branch & Leete, of that city, sold the library of the late Mr. John Bouch. Some of the books brought most extraordinary prices, and must have been in the finest possible condition.

Some of these days, perhaps, the great mass of book-collectors in Great Britain, who, when everything is said and done, hold the market with a firm grip, may be pleased to turn it topsyturvy, and so take their revenge on a few fortunate mortals who follow the fashion regardless of cost; but until they do this, it is highly improbable that there will be any great change to report. The fashion in books, as at present existing, has had a growth of years, and is not to be discarded in a moment, except by a concerted effort directed from some common and authoritative centre, which, however, at present does not exist. It is every man for himself, and the libation to his gods is of gold, poured out as water, without stint.

THE SUBSCRIPTION-BOOK BUSINESS IN 1893.

THE subscription-book business has in the last year assumed very large proportions. In speaking of subscription-books we do not include the higher grade of books—the éditions de luxe, for instance—but restrict the term to that class of printed matter that is gotten up to sell through agents, at from ten to fifty cents per part. The amount of business done in this line in 1893 is estimated to have been upwards of twelve millions of dollars. The West is gradually acquiring the monopoly of this class of literature, with Chicago as its centre.

Among the most successful subscription-books last year were, of course, the World's Fair publications. Of these upwards of twenty million parts were circulated, the figures being based upon the calculation of one intimately connected with the business. The number of persons, too, employed in the subscription-book business has become very large. There are stated to be twenty thousand of them in Chicago, one concern alone employing more than five thousand.

BOOK PRODUCTION IN FRANCE IN 1893.

ACCORDING to the Bibliographie de la France the number of books issued in France during 1893 was 13,123, showing a gain of 472 volumes as against the issues in 1892. The number of musical compositions was 5952, or 859 more than in 1892; and the number of engravings, lithographs, and photographs, 1685, or 159 more than in the previous year.

BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION.

THE second annual authors' readings, under the auspices of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association of the United States, will take place in Music Hall, Fifty-seventh Street and Seventh Avenue, on the evening of February 6. Among the authors who will read from their own works are Gen. Lew Wallace, George W. Cable, Richard Watson Gilder, Julia Ward Howe, Paul Du Chaillu, John Kendrick Bangs, and Col. Thomas Wentworth Higginson. Tickets at 50 cents, 75 cents, $1, and $1.50 may be had at Dutton's, Putnam's, Scribner's, Brentano's, and other book-stores. The committee of arrangements is: Chas. A. Burkhardt, with E. P. Dutton & Co.; Joseph F. Vogellus, with Henry Holt & Co.; John A. Holden, with Thomas Whittaker; Wm. J. Kelly.

We note with pleasure that the heads of some of the publishing houses are co-operating to help make the entertainment a marked financial success. The following letter (which we print with permission) was sent out without the knowledge of the officers of the association, and has already met, we believe, with gratifying success:

NEW YORK, Jan. 22, 1894.
DEAR SIRS: Referring to the enclosed notice of the authors' readings, under the auspices and for the benefit of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association, it occurs to me (who am not a member of the association) that it would be a graceful act on the part of the publishers of the country to show their interest by subscribing to boxes for this entertainment.

This suggestion is made entirely on my own responsibility, and without the knowledge of any member of the association.

The association has done good work, and very modestly withal, and has never, so far as I know, made any requests or demands from the publishers.

For this reason, there will be all the more pleasure in such a kindly act of recognition as I propose. I shall be glad to receive and turn over to the association any subscription you may be inclined to make.

Very truly yours,
IRVING PUTNAM.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

HENRY DRUMMOND VS. HENRY ALTEMUS.

JUDGE DALLAS filed an opinion in the United States Circuit Court on the 23d inst., granting Professor Henry Drummond, of Glasgow, Scotland, an injunction against Henry Altemus.

Judge Dallas said in the opinion: "From the facts, as developed on the hearing of this motion for an interlocutory injunction, it appears that the defendant has published, and to a considerable extent has sold a book purporting to contain certain lectures delivered by the plaintiff, which in fact does not present those lectures correctly, but with additions and omissions, which essentially alter the productions of the author. This is sought to be justified by the averment that the lectures in general had not been copyrighted, and that their author had dedicated them to the public. The subject of copyright is not directly involved. The complainant does not base his claim to relief upon the statute, but upon his right, quite distinct from any conferred by copyright, to protection against having any literary matter published as his work which is not actually his creation, and incidentally, to prevent fraud upon purchasers, that such a right exists.

"The complainant's right has been fully made out, and the case shown is manifestly one which calls for the interposition of the court at this stage." An order for a temporary injunction was directed to be entered.

THE LIABILITY OF A PUBLIC LIBRARY FOR CIRCULATING LIBELS.

THE libel suit referred to in our last issue—Mrs. John Biddulph Martin (formerly Mrs. Victoria C. Woodhull) vs. the trustees of the British Museum—came before the Court of the Queen's Bench on the 23d inst. Mrs. Martin obtained an order from the courts directing the trustees of the British Museum to divulge the names of the donors to the museum of two books relating to the Beecher-Tilton scandal. The petitioner declared that the first of the books in question imputed that Victoria Woodhull had published libellous and obscene statements, while the second purported to contain statements made during the Beecher-Tilton litigation which were supposed to reflect upon the petitioner.

The application was granted, but the trustees appealed and pleaded that the books had been withdrawn from the museum collection when their attention had been called to the matter. The appeal was dismissed and the trustees were ordered to show from whom they received the books, and what steps they took to ascertain their character. The museum representatives pleaded privilege and absence of malice. This is only a step in a litigation which promises to be long and interesting.

OBITUARY NOTES.

PAUL DELAIR, the French dramatist and poet, died in Paris on the 19th inst. He wrote "La Mégère Apprivoisée," a poetical adaptation of "The Taming of the Shrew," and a piece called "Falstaff," built upon the Shakespearian plays in which Falstaff figures.

THE death is announced in Paris of Savinien Lapointe, shoemaker and poet, whom Béranger, Eugene Sue, and Victor Hugo praised. He was born at Sens, Feb. 28, 1811. His first poems appeared in La Ruche Populaire, a workmen's journal. His first book, "Une Voix d'En Bas," appeared in 1844.

EUGENE NUS, a well-known French dramatist, died in Paris on the 20th inst., aged seventy-eight. He was born at Chalon-sur-Saône, and in 1837 was known as a witty and popular Parisian journalist. He wrote a large number of popular and successful plays, that best known to Americans being "Miss Merton," an adaptation of "East Lynne." He also published a volume of poems in 1861, and several volumes of essays.

JAMES H. NORTON, a veteran newspaper publisher and writer, died on the 20th inst. in Middletown, N. Y., aged seventy years. He was born in Goshen, Conn., and was admitted to the bar in Litchfield in the same State. In 1846 he entered journalism and bought the Wayne County (Pa.) Herald. He bought or established local papers in many New York and Pennsylvania towns, and was a pioneer in the printing of "patent outsiders." Until a year ago he was special correspondent for several New York papers.

CESAR DENIS DALY, the French architect and æsthetic writer, died in Paris on January 13. Mr. Daly was born in 1811. His father was an Irishman, his mother a Frenchwoman. M. Denis founded and conducted for many years La Revue de l'Architecture et des Travaux Pub- lies, a publication considered a standard in all countries. In 1855 he visited the United States and Mexico. His professional writings are extensive and important, the most ambitious work being "Les Mottis Historiques d'Architecture et de Sculpture d'Ornement."

PROF. ALOYS SPRENGER, one of the greatest German Oriental scholars, died at Heidelberg, early in the present month, aged eighty years. Born in the Tyrol, he went early in life to London, and soon engaged in literary work. In 1843 he was sent to India by the London Asiatic Company, and aided in the reorganization of the schools there, also devoting himself to private study and travel. These researches bore fruit later in the work known as "Sprenger's Oriental Library." Among his works are: "The Life and Teachings of Mohammed," "The Geography of Ancient Arabia," and "Post and Travelling Routes in the Orient."

GEORGE BARTLETT PRESCOTT, an electrician and author of works on the telegraph and the telephone, died in New York City on the 18th inst., aged sixty-four years. Mr. Prescott was born in Kingston, N. Y., and from boyhood was interested in the study of electricity. He was manager of the telegraph offices at New Haven, Springfield, and Boston, from 1847 to 1858. In later years he became connected with the Western Union and other prominent telegraph companies. He was a joint owner with Thomas A. Edison in all the quadruple patents in this country and Europe. His best-known works on electrical subjects are: "The History, Theory, and Practice of the Electric Telegraph," 1860; "Electricity and the Electric Telegraph," 1877; "The Speaking Telephone," 1878; "Dynamo Electricity," 1884; "Bell's Electric-Speaking Telephone, its invention, construction, application, modification, and history," 1884, and "The Electric Telephone," 1890.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BETHLEHEM, PA.—E. G. Close's book-store has been closed.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—The Peter Paul Book Company has been organized to succeed to the book, stationery, and printing business of Peter Paul & Brother. Peter Paul is president; Walter H. Johnson, secretary and treasurer, and Messrs. Joseph Paul, Walter L. Brown, and Edward S. Jehle are directors.

CHICAGO, ILL.—G. W. Rogers, assignee of C. M. Barnes, has closed out the stock of stationery and school-books, "The Fair" purchasing the stationery, and the bank, which held the judgment, the books. The former brought $4800 and the books $7100. Mr. Rogers has charge of the school-books for the bank pending final disposition, and is selling the stock as opportunity offers. Mr. Barnes has settled with all of his creditors who had their claims filed according to law, and who had accepted his proposition of November 25 last. The settlement was made on a basis of 20 cents on the dollar, and the cash has already been paid.

DENVER, COL.—The George Schroeder Company has retired from the bookselling business.

NEW YORK CITY.—Richmond & Croscup have removed from 9 East 17th Street to 114 Fifth Avenue, Rooms 7 and 8.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

D. APPLETON & Co. will shortly publish Dr. Ebers' new story, "Cleopatra," and Hall Caine's "The Manxman."

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will add to their Riverside Literature Series an edition of "The Sir Roger De Coverley Papers" specially prepared for school use.

BRADLEE WHIDDEN, 18 Arch St., Boston, has raised the price of Eaton's "Ferns of North America" to $40, and of Prof. Tuckerman's "The Lichens of North America" to $5. These works were printed in limited editions only and cannot be reproduced except at great expense.

BUXTON & SKINNER, of St. Louis, Mo., whose unique publication, "The Documents in Evidence," was noted in our last issue, have decided to yield to the demand, and will issue another edition of the book. It is capitally suited as a valentine, and as such will no doubt have a good sale.

THE MERRIAM Co. (successors to the Price-McGill Co.) will publish shortly a translation by Ben Tucker of "Belleplante and Cornelius," a masterpiece of character painting, by Claude Tillier, author of "My Uncle Benjamin." They are also preparing an edition in cloth of the incomparable "My Uncle Benjamin."

THE BURROWS BROTHERS Co., of Cleveland, are American agents for a complete translation of Catullus, the metrical part of which was the work of the late Sir Richard Burton, while abundant notes will be supplied by Mr. Leonard C. Smithers. The issue will be limited to subscribers, and will not exceed fifteen hundred. Blake's portrait of Catullus is to be etched as a frontispiece. The book will be a large octavo.

W. E. PRICE, of The Book and News Dealer, San Francisco, Cal., will publish next month his "Catalogue of all American Paper-Covered Books," in which will be given under author and title "paper covered books published and in print in America, as well as a great many imported into this country and kept in stock by American agencies of various English publishers." The work will be followed by annual supplements.

S. C. GREGGS & Co. will publish shortly "A Syllabus of Ethics," by William M. Bryant, author of "A Syllabus of Psychology," etc. The work is designed more as a guide to the study of ethics than as an elaborate presentation of the subject. It omits minor details and emphasizes recognized fundamental principles with reference to their practical application, a feature that should make it helpful to the general reader and especially to teachers.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will issue shortly a "History of the Mental Growth of Mankind in Ancient Times," by John S. Hittell, in four volumes. The first treats of savage culture; the second of the Aztecs, the Quichuans of Peru, the Egyptians, Brahmins, Buddhists, and Chinese; the third of Jews and Greeks; and the fourth of Rome and the Early Christians. They have also in preparation a new book of tales, by Jerome K. Jerome, entitled "John Ingerfield, and other stories;" and the second and final volume of Taine's "Modern Régime," translated by John Durand, who as a close friend of the Taine family has had Mme. Taine's assistance in the work. This is M. Taine's last work, and completes the treatise on "The Origins of Contemporary France," covered by his "The Ancient Régime," "The French Revolution," and "The Modern Régime."

AN interesting contribution to the widely discussed question of Church Unity will appear shortly from the pen of Prof. Charles W. Shields, of Princeton University, author of "Philosophia Ultima." It is entitled "The Historic Episcopate," and is an essay on the four articles of Church Unity proposed by the American House of Bishops and the Lambeth Conference. It will be published at an early date by Charles Scribner's Sons. Few works on the subject of Church Unity have attracted such wide attention as Prof. Shields' study of "The Historic Episcopate." It has been read, by special invitation, before clerical assemblies, presenting the different Christian denominations, and is now printed in answer to many requests for its publication. The Scribners have also in preparation "The Letters of Two Brothers"—William T. and John Sherman—of which a number have already been printed in The Century.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS announce among their earlier publications for the new year: "Newton Booth of California, his speeches and addresses," edited, with introduction and notes, by Lauren E. Crane. Governor Booth was among the first to take up a determined and uncompromising opposition to the doctrine of secession, and to him, with E. D. Baker, Thomas Starr King, F. P. Tracy, and a few others, is due the credit of saving California for the Union. The volume will contain a portrait. They also announce "Primary Elections: a study of methods for improving the basis of party organization," by Daniel S. Reimsen, which will form No. 77 in the Questions of the Day Series; also, "The Evolution of Woman: an inquiry into the dogma of her inferiority to man," by Mrs. Eliza Burt Gamble, whose investigations into the subject have led her to take in this familiar controversy a position in opposition to the generally accepted opinion. The Putnams will publish immediately the story by Beatrice Harraden, entitled "Ships that Pass in the Night."

MACMILLAN & Co. expect to issue a book about the middle of next month (in two volumes), Mrs. Humphry Ward's new novel, "Marcella." It is described as being practically the life of a woman told in fiction form, beginning at her girlhood and taking her up through the various stages of girl-life and young womanhood. As a woman, "Marcella" becomes identified with the great movements of the day, and this gives Mrs. Ward an opportunity for some of her finest work in the book. The story will be shorter than either "Robert Elsmere" or "David Grieve." Mrs. Ward has spent five years of hard work over this book. Speaking of Mrs. Ward's former books Mr. Bok thinks that "Robert Elsmere" reached a sale altogether of about 750,000 copies, of this probably not more than 75,000 copies were of the authorized issue. "David Grieve" has sold more than this in its copyright edition, it being now in its fifth edition and passing rapidly into its sixth. At first "Grieve" was a partial success, passing through two large editions. Then came a lull, and for six months only a meagre number were sold. The interest revived, however, and the book has since sold so steadily that it is now outselling the copyright copies of "Robert Elsmere" three to one.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. A. C. ARMSTRONG & SON,

Announce for Early Publication :

A NEW AND MOST IMPORTANT SERIES, VIZ.:

Bible Class Expositions.

By Rev. Alexander Maclaren, D.D.

GOSPEL OF ST. MATTHEW, in 2 vols.
GOSPEL OF ST. LUKE. 1 vol.

GOSPEL OF ST. MARK. 1 vol.
GOSPEL OF ST. JOHN. 1 vol.

12mo. Neatly bound in cloth. Each volume, $1.00.

"A new and most important series of works specially designed for Sunday-schools and Bible-classes, consisting of expositions of the International Sunday-School Lessons. In the present series they are grouped and arranged under the books of Scripture to which they relate, and form a very fairly complete commentary on the particular portion of Scripture. There are various admirable series of Bible Class Handbooks; but, as a rule, they are devoted more to giving information than to the enforcement of moral and spiritual lessons. Dr. Maclaren is confessedly supreme in this particular line. He is not only a thoroughly Biblical scholar, but he is an expositor who presses living truth home to heart and conscience. It is believed that the books will be found most useful to teachers and superintendents who have to deliver addresses to children, for pupils in Bible classes, and for private reading."

"The Columbian Historical Novels' is a novel and striking conception. . . . The story or romance of these volumes is told in a most attractive way, while the historical facts thus so delightfully carried along are true, and in keeping with most recent investigations. The illustrations are numerous and have the rare merit of lighting up the narrative."—The Lutheran Observer, Philadelphia.

"The Columbian Historical Novels' are books of a high order and should be widely circulated. They can be safely and profitably read, especially by the young of both sexes."—The Christian Inquirer, New York.

"We recommend these books especially to the teachers of American history."—The Review of Reviews, New York.

HENRY HOLT & CO., 29 West 23d Street, New York.

NEW BOOKS.

25c. Each.—Pastime Series. 107 Titles.—25c. Each.

The Egyptian Harp-Girl.

Those who visited the Temple of Luxor in Midway Plaisance of the Columbian Exposition cannot fail to remember the heroine of this story. It combines all the mysticism of the East and the buried wonders of the Nile with the tragedy and realism of the Great West. It is written by the author of "Uncle Jeremiah and Family at the Great Fair," and promises to be a rival of that famous seller. Handsomely illustrated. Paper, 25 cents.

The Adventures of Uncle Jeremiah and Family at the Great Fair.

No book ever put on the market had a greater sale than this book in so short a time. More than 300,000 copies have been sold, and the demand still makes of it one of the most active sellers in the market. Written by the author of "The Egyptian Harp-Girl." Paper, 25 cents; silk cloth, 50 cents.

Sell Not Thyself.

This realistic story of the ambitions of a poor girl is no less startling than it is illustrative of the fever of the age. Her experiences with the lessons consequent upon her actions are, in some form, being enacted every day in the great cities of this country. Illustrated. 25 cents.

50c. Each.—Library of Choice Fiction. 78 Titles.—50c. Each.

The World's Congress of Religions.

A book prepared by men who know what the masses of the people want. A complete and concise history of the great congress of creed. The sermonizings left out, the gold gathered for the people. It will be a seller and a winner. Order at once.

David of Juniper Gulch.

No book has ever been put on the market with a more wholesome atmosphere about it than this. It is a most delightful story of the free, wild life of the Pacific Coast. Paper, 50 cents.

Opie Read's Novels.

A Tennessee Judge is the latest addition, and its title with the well-known resources of the author is as good a description as is needed to set forth its merits.

The other books of this author have been put in a new and handsome dress. They include: "Len Gansett," "Emmett Bonlore," "The Colossus," "A Kentucky Colonel," and "Selected Stories." Paper, 50 cents; silk cloth, $1.00.

25c. Each.—Detective Series. 55 Titles.—25c. Each.

The Pullman Car Detective.

By a detective whose years of exciting experiences insure the reader not only a thrilling story but likewise an insight into the methods necessary to protect the people who sleep and travel so safely on those famous sleepers. Illustrated. 25 cents.

The publishers have decided to satisfy the great demand for cheap editions of the following famous books. Thomas books of adventures, ten titles, for the Pastime Series, price, 25 cents. Two now ready: "The Bushrangers: A Yankee's Adventures During a Second Trip to Australia," and "The Belle of Australia; or, Who Am I?" Of the Lynch detective books, nine titles, for the Detective Series, price, 25 cents. Two now ready: The famous "Shadowed by Three," also "The Slender Clue." The others will follow one each month.

But above all, dealers should not miss the golden harvest now being gathered from "Glimpses of the World's Fair," 192 views of the great Exposition. Nearly 300,000 sold. Paper, 50 cents; silk cloth, $1.00.

Send for catalogue for Spring Trade. You know what you want, and we believe we have it.

Lovell, Coryell & Company's

NEW BOOKS AND NEW EDITIONS.

New and delightful novel by the author of "Matrimony," "His Grace," "Miss Shafto," and "No New Thing."
12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

Countess Radna.

By WILLIAM NORRIS, author of "The Rogue," "Marcia," "Misadventure," etc.

A novel of the bright and enchainning kind, which we are accustomed to receive from the author of "No New Thing," upon whom the mantle of Thackeray seems to have fallen, is always a delightful event in the new book season. Mr. Norris is not only a clever novelist, but a keen observer of his fellows and a thorough man of the world. His plots are therefore fresh and natural, his characters real and life-like, and the dialogue is crisp and entertaining.

A very tasteful and newly illustrated edition of Maxwell Gray's latest and most powerful novel.

Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

The Last Sentence.

By MAXWELL GRAY, author of "The Silence of Dean Maitland."

The clever and cultured authoress who writes under the nom de plume of Maxwell Gray can be compared only with herself. Intellectually she is eclipsed only by George Eliot. She has much of that author's ability and is more of the literary artist than that writer. Like "The Silence of Dean Maitland," "The Last Sentence" is a profound book. Her story not only seizes upon but enthalls the reader; it is strongly conceived and the plot is admirably wrought out.

New and entertaining novel by the author of "Master of His Fate," "The Horned Cat," etc.

12mo, cloth, $1.00.

A Soldier and a Gentleman.

By J. MACLAREN COBBAN, author of "A Reverend Gentleman," etc.

What, by happy chance, befalls the hero of this bright, altruistic story, in being called upon, for a consideration, to represent another man, and in this compromising situation to make love to a pretty girl with heaps of money, the reader must be left to discover for himself. In making the discovery, he will find the story a delightful one, and if his circumstances at all resemble those of the hero, he will not be unlikely to wish himself in the hero's place.

Cheaper one-volume edition. 12mo, cloth, gilt top, $2.00.

The Victorian Age of English Literature.

By MRS. OLIPHANT, author of "The Makers of Florence," "Diana," "The Cuckoo in the Nest," etc.

A skilful yet honest survey of the literary gains of the era, of much value to all students of English literature. The story is told with intelligent brevity, yet with the charm of an experienced and graceful writer, who is at once well-informed and in full sympathy with her subject.

New and cheaper edition. Portraits, etc. 8vo, cloth extra, $1.50.

Alfred, Lord Tennyson:

A Study of the Poet-Laureate's Life and Work. By ARTHUR WAUGH, B.A., Oxon.

This sympathetic yet critical study of the Poet-Laureate's finished work will be found invaluable alike by those who know and those who have yet to know Lord Tennyson's literary career and labor. Its author has a thoroughly familiar acquaintance with the poet's work and an adequate knowledge of the circumstances under which it successfully appeared.

The Drama: Addresses by Henry Irving.

With a frontispiece by Whistler. Edition de luxe, large-paper, limited to 300 copies. With autograph signature of Henry Irving. 1 vol., 8vo, cloth, gilt top, uncut edges, $5.00.

This attractive volume comprises four interesting addresses by Mr. Irving, dealing with the annals of acting and with the art as well as with the traditions of the stage. It is full at once of the enthusiasm and the professional culture which mark everything said or done by the chief figure on the modern stage. The addresses, delivered at Oxford University, on the Four Great Actors of the English Stage, will, we are sure, be read and reread by all lovers of the higher drama, and by every one in sympathy with the actor's art. The work is enriched by an excellent character portrait of Mr. Henry Irving.

New Ready. Two new editions of Dr. Geikie's graphic and scholarly "Life of Christ." Popular Edition. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; Easter Edition, in white vellum cloth, gilt top, $1.25.

The Life and Words of Christ.

By CUNNINGHAM GEIKIE, D.D., author of "Hours with the Bible," "The English Reformation," etc.

Dr. Geikie's Life of Christ has taken a high place among the scholarly, critical, and expository narratives of the story of the Divine Life on earth. It has all the graphic and picturesque qualities of Canon Farrar's work, without that author's florid rhetoric and rather decorative prose. The present work has gained by its more chaste and subdued style, while it lacks nothing in its great rival's attractiveness or in his gifts as a critical investigator and learned Biblical scholar.

New Novel. By S. Baring-Gould, author of "Urith," "Mehalah," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

Mrs. Curgenven of Curgenven.

By S. BARING-GOULD, M.A., author of "In the Roar of the Sea," "The Pennycomequicks," etc.

"Among his series of brilliant romances this is one of the best. A deep human interest, strong characterization, and picturesque descriptiveness render it both effective and entertaining."—Morning Post, London.

"The character of Esther Morideg, a wild imp of the moors, is admirably drawn. Esther is a true child of nature, and her strange talk and wild ways constitute the central attraction of this powerful romance."—Athenaeum, London.

List of Standard and Copyright Publications

ISSUED BY

J. SELWIN TAIT & SONS, 65 Fifth Avenue, New York.
1894.

Tait's National Library of Best 200 Books.

This list is the outcome of an inquiry made of all the leading libraries of the United States as to the most popular books, and is of special value as embodying the only consensus of American opinion ever obtained on the subject.

The result of this inquiry was made the subject of an elaborate and most interesting article in the December Forum, by Hamilton W. Mabie, editor of The Outlook. This article was entitled "The Most Popular Novels in America," and in it Mr. Mabie says: "Indeed the method employed by Messrs. J. Selwin Tait & Sons is regarded as the best test yet used for such a purpose."

By arrangement with the well-known publishers, Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Roberts Bros., Harper & Brothers, Porter & Coates, D. Appleton & Co., Robert Bonner's Sons, J. B. Lippincott Co., Dodd, Mead & Co., Macmillan & Co., and others, we are allowed to include their most prominent American copyright books in this list.

Each volume will contain a handsome colored photogravure title-page and from four to six new copyright illustrations of original design by American artists.

It will be well bound in beautiful half calf; also in white back and gold, fancy side, and each volume is boxed.

A single asterisk has been placed in the following list against the books now ready, and a double asterisk against the titles of those in the press, which will be issued during the next two months. The remaining books of the series have already been illustrated by our artists, and will be issued at the rate of four per month.

ORDER EARLY:

Annual Catalogues, 1893.

The Annual American Catalogue for 1893 is nearly ready for press. It will contain:

- (1) Directory of American Publishers issuing books in 1893.
- (2) Full-title Record, with descriptive notes, in author-alphabet, of all books recorded in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, 1893.
- (3) Author-, title-, and subject-index to same, in one alphabet.
- (4) Publishers' annual lists for 1893.

The edition is limited, and to secure copies orders should be sent at once. The price is $3.50 half leather, $3.00 in sheets; if ordered, and paid for, before publication, the price will be $3.00 half leather, $2.50 in sheets.

The Annual Catalogue for 1886 and 1887 is now out of print. But few copies of the Annual Catalogue for 1888, 1889, 1890 and 1891 are on hand.

We also supply the English Catalogue for 1893 as soon as ready, price $1.50, paper; the Annual American and English Catalogues, 1893, can be had in one volume, half leather, $5.00.

Early orders for both Catalogues are solicited.

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY,

28 ELM STREET, NEW YORK.

P. O. Box 943.

THE COMEDY OF ENGLISH PROTESTANTISM. In three acts. Scene: Exeter Hall, London. Time: The Summer of 1883. By A. F. MARSHALL, B.A., Oxon. 12mo, cloth, net, $1.00.

"It is acute, witty, and has plenty of good thrusts in it."—The Independent.

CHRIST IN TYPE AND PROPHECY. By Rev. A. J. MAAS, S.J., Professor of Oriental Languages at Woodstock College, and author of "Life of Christ." 12mo, cloth, net, $2.00.

"It is seldom that so thorough a work as this is published. It is full of light and strength, and the author has spared no effort in point of scholarship and research to make it both scholarly and intelligent to all those who believe that Jesus Christ was the Messiah, and that the ancient prophets distinctly foretold His coming into the world. Mr. Maas has put Biblical students everywhere under great obligations to him."—The Boston Herald.

CHRISTIAN ANTHROPOLOGY. By Rev. JOHN THEIN, Pastor of St. Martin's Church, Liverpool, O. With an introduction by Prof. Chas. G. Herbermann, Ph.D., LL.D. 8vo, cloth, net, $2.50.

"It is a practical, careful study of its included themes and is written simply and well. The author is conservative in his positions, although open to new light, and such a book as his should have a wide and useful influence."—The Congregationalist.

A CATHOLIC DICTIONARY. New edition, entirely reset. Containing Some Account of the Doctrine, Discipline, Rites, Ceremonies, Councils, and Religious Orders of the Catholic Church. By W. E. ADDIS and THOMAS ARNOLD, A.M. New edition, revised and enlarged with the assistance of Rev. T. B. Scannell, B.D. With the imprimatur of the Cardinal Archbishop of Westminster and the Most Rev. Archbishop of New York. Authorized American Edition. Large 8vo, cloth, net, $5.00.

"Its use is sanctioned by Cardinals Newman and McCloskey. It forms, therefore, a most trustworthy source of information on points of Catholic doctrine, ritual, and discipline among English-speaking people. It is a work which has long been needed."—Baltimore Sun.

READY FEBRUARY 10:

An Important National Work.
The Highway of a Great Nation.
A Volume Historically Exact.

"The Union Pacific Railway"

A MAGNIFICENT STUDY IN Railway Politics and Economics.

By JOHN P. DAVIS, Esq., OF ANN ARBOR, MICH.

With maps. 1 volume, 8vo, $2.00.

The building of the Union Pacific Railway has been marvellously woven in and out among the threads of our national history. For sixty years this railway has engaged the attention of the people of the United States. As a manifestation of the need of transportation facilities by a people rapidly expanding, and of a willingness to overcome political barriers to obtain, and to strain legal principles to control them, the history of this railway has no parallel.

The history of other railways in this country has much in common with that of the Union Pacific, so that a study of this road is a study of railways in general.

Outlined in brief. This volume gives the complete history of the Union Pacific Railway, beginning with its inception in 1832—shows how localism and sectionalism defeated Congressional action from 1845 to 1860—the action of Congress from 1861 to 1864, when the charter acts were signed by Lincoln—the building of the road, completed in 1869—the history of the Credit Mobilier—the action of the Treasury Department—the proceedings in the U. S. Courts, under the Thurman Act—and a discussion of the various plans proposed for the settlement of the question. Maps showing the various routes proposed and their terminals, and official statistics accompany the work.

Thus the question is presented in its origin, development, and present status.

The author of this volume has made the subject a special study, and has had unusual facilities for examining the data of the work. The matter presented is historically exact, and the treatment full, clear, and practical.

The present question of the debt of the Union Pacific Railway is of the highest importance, involving as it does the possible loss to the United States of one hundred and twenty-five millions of dollars. This, with the wealth of information the volume presents, should make the work of value to every public library in our country, to every student of political economy, to every prominent lawyer in the land, and to all State Legislators and Members of Congress.

PRICE, TWO DOLLARS.

"The Documents in Evidence ; or, Love When a Game of Three." By Henry M. Blossom, Jr.

An Original Love-Story in a unique form. Especially adapted as A HIGH-CLASS VALENTINE.

WORKED A YEAR.

YOUR LAST CHANCE TO PROFIT BY IT.

The "Catalogue of all American Paper-Covered Books," on which work has been in progress for a year, is now about completed, and will within a month go into the printer's hands, and all who wish a copy and have not entered their name for it should do so at once. The edition is limited, as has been heretofore announced, and only those actually subscribed for now will be published.

This Catalogue will be as complete as it is possible to make such a book, and will embrace in exact alphabetical order every paper-covered book published and in print in America, as well as a great many imported into this country and kept in stock by American agencies of various English publishers. Each book will be entered in the Catalogue twice, under its full title and under the author's name, so you can find out all about any book if you know the title or who wrote it.

It will contain full and correct title, with author's name, name of publisher, name of "library" or "series" in which it is published, its serial number and the retail price of all obtainable paper-covered books, as stated above. Even if a book is published by several publishers, all editions will be given, so the most profitable or otherwise preferable can be ordered.

(An annual supplement will be published, giving for a few cents easy access to all later books.)

Price of the Catalogue, properly bound in flexible cloth, with patent index cut in the edges, $3.50.

The same, Interleaved edition, many blank pages for future entries, if you care to keep it up to date, $5.00.

IN PRESS:

The Annual Literary Index,

INCLUDING PERIODICALS, AMERICAN AND ENGLISH, ESSAYS, BOOK-CHAPTERS, ETC., SPECIAL BIBLIOGRAPHIES AND NECROLOGY OF AUTHORS.

EDITED BY W. I. FLETCHER and R. R. BOWKER,

With the co-operation of members of the American Library Association and of the Library Journal staff.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1893 complements the "Annual American Catalogue" of books published in 1893 by indexing (1) articles in periodicals published in 1893; (2) essays and book-chapters in composite books of 1893; (3) authors of periodical articles and essays; (4) special bibliographies of 1893; (5) authors deceased in 1893. The two volumes together make a complete record of the literary product of the year.

The volume includes also the features of the "Co-operative Index to Periodicals," originally a monthly supplement to the Library Journal, then extended into a quarterly in an enlarged form, and later issued as an annual volume.

D. APPLETON & CO.'S NEW BOOKS.

A Marriage Ceremony.

By ADA CAMBRIDGE, author of "The Three Miss Kings," "Not All in Vain," etc. No. 133, Town and Country Library. 12mo, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

"Ada Cambridge's" novels are always interesting because the author seems always "in vein," and never loses her lightness of touch and vivacity of expression. Her new book will be found to be one of the brightest and strongest of her successful novels.

A History of Germany,

From the Earliest Times to the Present Day.

By BAYARD TAYLOR. With an Additional Chapter by MARIE HANSEN-TAYLOR. With portrait and maps. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

This standard popular history of Germany has been carefully revised and brought down to date. Its value for general readers, and for the higher grade of schools and for colleges, has been generally recognized.

Natural Resources of the United States.

By JACOB HARRIS PATTON, A.M., Ph.D., author of "Four Hundred Years of American History," "Political Parties in the United States," etc. Revised, with additions. 8vo, cloth, gilt top, $3.00.

"The intention of this volume is to give the American people a concise narrative of the natural resources of their own country, in all their numerous forms. . . . Attention is occasionally directed to the immense value of the natural resources of the United States when compared with those of other countries. Truth is not a braggart, and it is proper that the fact in this relation should be known, that the American people, especially the younger portion, may appreciate more fully the natural advantages of their own country."—From the Preface.

Science and Hebrew Tradition.

By THOMAS H. HUXLEY. The fourth volume of the Author's Collected Essays. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

CONTENTS: On the Method of Zadig.—The Rise and Progress of Palæontology.—Lectures on Evolution.—The Interpreters of Genesis and the Interpreters of Nature.—Mr. Gladstone and Genesis.—The Lights of the Church and the Light of Science.—Hasisadra's Adventure.—The Evolution of Theology.

The Orthoepist.

A Pronouncing Manual, containing about Four Thousand Five Hundred Words, including a considerable number of the names of Foreign Authors, Artists, etc., that are often mispronounced. By ALFRED AYRES, author of "The Verbalist," etc. Revised and enlarged edition. 18mo, cloth, $1.25.

The Rudolph Indexer Book.

(Patented in the United States and all Foreign Countries.)

Method of Indexing is the same as that employed in the Rudolph Continuous Indexer.

The RUDOLPH INDEXER BOOK consists of a number of card-holders of heavy cardboard with one or two columns on both sides. On the back edge of each card-holder are two double hinges by which means other card-holders may be flexibly connected or disconnected.

Independent book covers are furnished, and a book may thus be formed of one card-holder and later increased as desired. If the book becomes too bulky it may be separated and by adding covers two or more independent books formed.

The Rudolph Indexer Case.

(Patented in the United States and all Foreign Countries.)

Method of Indexing is the same as that employed in the Rudolph Continuous Indexer.

The RUDOLPH INDEXER CASE consists of a series of card-holders placed on their edges in a drawer, and they may be turned as the pages of a book, exhibiting at each view 271 single-line entries.

We furnish the INDEXER CASE in one, two, four, six and eight drawers.

The capacity of each drawer is thirty card-holders. As both sides of the card-holders are used it is equal to 8160 single-line entries.

The Rudolph Card Cutter.

This invention is for the purpose of cutting the entries or cards for insertion in the card-holders, but can also be used for many other purposes.

It is very important that all the slips to be inserted in the card-holders be cut at perfect right angles, in order that each entry will fit exactly to the others.

An unnecessary margin of only 1-32d of an inch on the top and 1-32d of an inch on the bottom of each entry will amount to 3/16th inches of waste space on each card-holder.

The cutter will cut cardboard where spacing between the printed or written lines is 1-64th of an inch.

THE RUDOLPH CONTINUOUS INDEXER.

(FRONT VIEW, SHOWING GLASS LID RAISED.)

(REAR VIEW, SHOWING DOOR OPEN.)

THE LIBRARIAN'S DESIDERATUM. THE MOST PERFECT INDEXER.

The RUDOLPH INDEXER SYSTEM possesses many advantages which recommend it to Publishers and Booksellers—in fact, to any one who has occasion to use lists of books, names or samples of goods, photographs, etc.

It is entirely flexible, allowing any number of entries to be placed in the INDEXER at any point.

It presents to the eye at one time as many entries as six pages of the American Catalogue.

Entries are protected from being soiled by exposure or handling.

Economy of space and economy of expenditure of both time and money.

The INDEXER stands 42 inches high and is 20 inches wide by 30 inches broad.

We shall be pleased to give further information and list of testimonials from leading librarians.

The Aim of Life.

Plain Talks to Young Men and Women.

By Rev. PHILIP S. MOXOM. 16mo, cloth, $1.00.

Allegretto.

A Volume of Poems. By GERTRUDE HALL, author of "Far from To-Day." Illustrated by Oliver Herford. Small quarto, cloth, $1.50.

"Exquisite in its appeal to the eye and the imagination, 'Far from To-Day' showed an originality and grace of expression that might easily be regarded as indications of very exceptional talent; and the same qualities . . . manifest themselves in her poems—the lightest, airiest, most dashing, merry and audacious productions in verse that have of late years got themselves into print."—The Beacon.

By HONORÉ DE BALZAC. Translated by Katharine P. Wormeley. 12mo, half russia, $1.50.

Keynotes.

A Volume of Stories. By GEORGE EGER-TON. 16mo, cloth, $1.00.

"This volume is a most delightful one. The several papers smell of the woods and fishes of elf-land and fairy-land, and there is in them a combined humor and pathos which give them a rare charm. 'A Little Gray Glove' and 'An Empty Name' are each exquisite gems."—Advertiser.

"A work of genius. Characterized by a striking naturalness. A positive moral value—such, indeed, as genuine and honest art always has."—London Speaker.

NOTES IN SEASON.

MACMILLAN & Co. have in preparation a work by J. McKeen Cattell, professor of experimental psychology in Columbia College, entitled "A Course in Experimental Psychology." Laboratory instruction in experimental psychology is now given in the leading universities of America, Great Britain, Germany, and France, but, owing to the recent introduction of the subject, there is no text-book. A laboratory handbook on the lines which have been proved useful in physical and biological science will make instruction easier for the teacher and more profitable for the student, and will permit the introduction of the subject in colleges where it could not otherwise be taught. They have in press a work on the "Sources of the Constitution of the United States," by Dr. C. Ellis Stevens.

THOS. BIRCH'S SONS, 1110 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, will sell on Wednesday and Thursday, February 14 and 15, Part 1 of the valuable American historical library of the Hon. Frederick Bourquin, of Camden, N. J. Mr. Bourquin has been a most careful collector for the past sixty-five years, and libraries and collectors may get some special treasures at this sale. The catalogue has been compiled by Stan. V. Henkels, who will also conduct the sale, and attend to orders if so desired. The lot already catalogued contains histories of states, and of cities; church history, revolutionary history; works relating to André and Arnold; genealogies; American Bibles, prayer and hymn books; travels and expeditions in the United States, and Washingtoniana. In the next catalogue will appear books relating to the War of the Rebellion; War of 1812; the Mexican War; Indian history; early American imprints; the Quakers; American biography; general American history, etc.

HARPER & BROTHERS publish this week some notable books. The list includes Professor Charles Wright Dodge's "Introduction to Elementary Practical Biology," a work for the use of students in high-schools and colleges; "The Science of the Earth," by Sir J. William Dawson, a most interesting geological study; the second volume in the firm's series of George William Curtis's complete works, which includes Mr Curtis's "Addresses and Reports on the Reform of the Civil Service of the United States;" and "Parisian Points of View," being a translation by Edith V. B. Matthews of nine French stories by Ludovic Halévy, with an introduction by Brander Matthews. "In Direst Peril," a new novel by David Christie Murray; "The Memoirs of Sherlock Holmes," by A. Conan Doyle; a new edition of Mr. Black's "The Penance of John Logan;" and "Horace Chase," by Miss Constance Fenimore Woolson, are additions to the season's list of fiction which will be acceptable. A special interest attaches to "Horace Chase," by-the-by, as Miss Woolson's unexpected death has made it her last novel.

BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION.

THE following is the programme, so far as it has been possible to arrange it, of the authors' readings to be held under the auspices of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association, on the 6th inst., at the Carnegie Music Hall, Fifty-seventh Street and Seventh Avenue, New York:

GEN. LEW WALLACE.....	Readings from "Ben-Hur" and "The Prince of India."
GEO. W. CABLE.....	"The School Examination at Grande Pointe."
JOHN KENDRICK BANGS.....	"The Inventions of the Idiot," from the new (unpublished) series of "Coffee and Repartee."
JULIA WARD HOWE.....	"The Three Giants," "A Fireside Journey," and "After the War."
PAUL DU CHAILLU.....	"Ivar the Viking."
WALLACE BRUCE.....	"Ole Bull's Christmas."

Richard Watson Gilder has kindly consented to preside.

The tickets are being rapidly taken up, the programme liberally patronized, and the boxes also are nearly all spoken for, so that from a financial point of view the entertainment will be quite satisfactory. That it will be so in other respects is vouched for, we believe, in the names of the authors who have volunteered their services.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); (Q. 4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tl. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Abbott, Lyman, ed. The Plymouth hymnal for the church, the social meeting, and the home; ed. by Lyman Abbott; with the co-operation of C: H. Morse and Herbert Vaughan Abbott. N. Y., The Outlook Co., 13 Astor Place, 1893 [1894.] c. unp. O. hf. eath., $1.75; full leath., $2.50 and $3; full mor., $5. [219]

More than five thousand hymns and poems, and as many tunes, have been examined in making this selection of 638 hymns and 471 tunes. The selection has been based on the belief that the profoundest spiritual experience has found expression in very different schools. All schools have, therefore, been consulted, and all phases of spiritual experience are represented. The selection has been based also on the belief that beauty of form is consistent with depth of feeling, and that the most perfect forms, both in poetry and music, are not too difficult for social and public worship. A psalter for responsive reading, and some brief liturgical "orders of service," are appended to the hymns. There is also a department of spiritual songs for use in social meetings. The indexes are complete and convenient.

Allardyce, Alex. Earls court: a novel of provincial life. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. '93. 4+357 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., 132.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c. [220]

Stephen Brancepeth, the son of a rich banker in the English rural town of Earls court, exhausts his father's patience and for a time wanders from his home. He returns a rich man and buys the Dunes House, the handsomest property in the neighborhood, astonishing all his former associates, who cannot imagine where he found his money. This is explained by a complicated plot, showing some of the skeletons in the closets of the large and interesting family at Earls court.

Allingham, W: Varieties in prose. In 3 v. V. 1 and 2, Rambles by Patricius Walker. V. 3, Irish sketches, essays, etc. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1893 [1894.] 4+243; 267; 384 p. por. D. cl., per set, $6. [221]

In the New Forests at Winchester; At Farnham; Moor Park and Jonathan Swift; Exeter and elsewhere; Dean Prior; Bideford and Clovelly; Up the vale of Blackmore; At Salisbury and Bemerton; At Canterbury; At Liverpool; In a strange land; Down the Wye; In Devon and Cornwall; Edinburgh-Stirling to Ayr; Stirling to Dunoon; Auld Ayr; London Bridge to Cabourg; From Cabourg to St. Malo; In Thanet; In London. V. 3, Irish sketches: Seven hundred years ago; An Irish river; St. Patrick's day; St. Patrick's purgatory; Irish ballad singers and sheet ballads; The midsummer fire; George Petrie. Six essays: Modern prophets; Painter and critic; On poetry; Disraeli's monument to Byron; Some curiosities of criticism; A poet of the lower French empire.

American Academy of Political and Social Science: book department of the annals; reprinted from annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, January, 1894. Phil., American Acad. of Political and Social Science, [1894.] 169-204 p. O. pap., n. p. [222]

About a dozen reviews on political and social works by different writers.

American and English corporation cases; a coll. of corporation cases, both private and municipal (excepting railway cases), decided in the courts of last resort in the U. S., England, and Canada; ed. by W: M. McKinney. V. 42. Northport, N. Y., E: Thompson Co., [1894.] c. 737 p. O. shp., $4.50. [223]

Aspects of modern Oxford. by A mere Don; il. by J. H. Lorimer, Lancelot Speed, T. H. Crawford, and E. Stamp. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 5+135 p. D. cl., $2. [224]

Chapters on dons and colleges; undergraduates; sightseers; examinations; university journalism; the university as seen from outside; the university as a place of learned leisure.

Ball, Sir Robert Stawell. The story of the sun. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. 8°, cl., $5. [225]

Ball, Rev. Wayland Dalrymple. Evolution in science and revolution in religion; with other addresses. Phil., Porter & Coates, 1893 [1894.] c. '93. 285 p. D. cl., $1.25. [226]

The author is late pastor of the Associate Reformed Congregation of Baltimore. The six addresses in this volume were his last public work; he died May 28, 1893.

Beckman, Ernst. Pax and Carlino: a story; il. by Florence K. Upton. N. Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., 1894. c. 2-196 p. il. D. cl., $1. [227]

A dog called Pax and a Swedish boy named Carlos Ros, or Carlino, are the heroes. Carlino is stolen from his home by Pax's mistress, and the dog and child fraternize on account of their similar misfortunes. Their adventures in Italy and the United States, with Carlino's temporary adoption by a bishop, his running away to find his parents, his reunion with Pax, his voyage on the Allonia, and his American experiences, are described in a story both humorous and pathetic.

Bierce, Ambrose. Can such things be? N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1894.] c. '93. 4+320 p. D. (Cassell's sunshine ser., no. 146.) cl., 75 c.; pap., 50 c. [228]

Thirty-three short stories dealing with murder, supernatural visitations, and other weird and ghastly themes. They are entitled: The death of Halpin Frayser; The mocking-bird; My favorite murder; The story of a conscience; The secret of Macgarger's Gulch; A psychological wreck; The night's doings at Deadmans; Mysterious disappearances, etc.

Blümner, H. The home life of the ancient Greeks; from the German, by Alice Zimmermann. N. Y., The Cassell Pub. Co., 1893 [1894.] 15+548 p. il. D. cl., $2. [229]

Not an absolutely literal translation of Dr. Blümner's text; such slight alterations have been made as the different and more concise character of the English language seemed to demand. Chapters on: Costume; Birth and infancy; Education; Marriage and women; Daily life within and without the house; Meals and social entertainments; Sickmess and physicians, death and burial; Gymnastics; Music and dancing; Religious worship; Public festivals; The theatre; War and seafaring; Agriculture, trade, and handicraft; Slavery.

Box, T: Practical treatise on the strength of materials, including their elasticity and resistance to impact. 3d ed. N. Y., Spon & Chamberlain, 1893 [1894.] 525 p. 8°, cl., $7.25. (Corr. title.) [230]

* In this list, the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk, and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

- Britta, Mrs. Mattie Dyer. Rush-lights. Phil., American Baptist Pub. Soc., 1894. 232 p. 12°, cl., $1. [231]
- Brodie, C. Gordon. Dissections illustrated: a graphic handbook for students of human anatomy, with plates drawn and lithographed by Percy Highly. In 4 pts. Pt. 1, The upper limb; with 17 col. pl., two-thirds natural size. Pt. 2, The lower limb, with 20 colored pl. and 6 diagrams. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 4°, pap., pt. 1, net, $2; pt. 2, net, $3.50. [232]
- Bryant, Sophie. Short studies in character. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 247 p. 12°, (Ethical lib.) cl., $1.50. [233]
- Buckingham, S. G., D. D. Life of William A. Buckingham, the war governor of Connecticut; with a review of his public acts and especially the distinguished services he rendered his country during the War of the Rebellion; with which is incorporated a condensed account of the more important campaigns of the war and information from private sources and family and official documents. Springfield, Mass., The W. F. Adams Co., 1894. c. 12+587 p. por. O. subs., cl., $3.50; hf. leath., $3; leath., $4. [234]
- Buckstaff, Florence Griswold. Married women's property in Anglo-Saxon and Anglo-Norman law, and the origin of the common-law dower. Phil., American Acad. of Political and Social Science, [1894.] 33-64 p. O. (Publications of the Society, no. 99) pap., 25 c. [235]
- Bumpus, Hermon C. A laboratory course in invertebrate zoology. 2d ed. rev. N. Y., H. Holt & Co., 1893 [1894.] c. '92, '93. 6+157 p. D. cl., $1. [236]
- In the preparation of this book the author has had in mind the requirements of a class of students who are pursuing a course of laboratory work in invertebrate zoology. An effort has been made to direct the work, without, at the same time, actually telling the student all that there is to be learned from the specimen. In the appendix a few words are given regarding laboratory methods, etc.
- Butt, Beatrice May. Keith Deramore. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1893 [1894.] 4+379 p. 12°, (Longmans' paper lib., no. 8.) pap., 50 c. [237]
- Keith Deramore was a proud, undemonstrative, rather good looking young fellow, with a weakness for flirting, yet not bad withal. He was an officer in the British army, and had just returned from India when the story opens. His character is developed through several circumstances—chiefly a hopeless love for a good woman and his mother's unselfish devotion—his virtues and best traits coming to the surface.
- Campbell, Ja. Dykes. Samuel Taylor Coleridge: a narrative of the events of his life. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 819 p. por. 8°, cl., $3. [238]
- Cody, W. F., ["Buffalo Bill," pseud.] Buffalo Bill, and his Wild West companions, including Wild Bill, Texas Jack, California Joe, Captain Jack Crawford, and other famous scouts of the western plains; comp. for the publishers. Chic., E. A. Weeks & Co., [1894.] 4-234 p. il. D. (Melbourne ser.) pap., 25 c. [239]
- An account of the life and exploits of "Buffalo Bill," and also of the lives, etc., of his companions.
- Coffin, C. E. The gist of whist: being a concise guide to the modern scientific game; embracing the improved method of American leads and a complete glossary of the common and technical terms; to which is added the laws of whist as revised at the Third American Whist Congress. N. Y., J. Selwin Tait & Sons, 1894. c. '93. 12+100 p. nar. 8. cl., 75 c. [240]
- The object of the book, as stated in the introductory, is "to reduce the precepts and principles of the standard game to convenient and practical form, so arranged and systematized that its theory may be easily comprehended, its rules quickly committed, and its practice readily acquired." In pursuance of this object, the author has examined all the standard authorities, and presented the gist of the whole subject in the most possible compass and in the most interesting form. It embraces the improved method of American leads and the laws of whist as revised by the recent Whist Congress at Chicago, so that the technical part of the work is in accordance with the latest authorization.
- Craig, Oscar J. Ouatatanon: a study in Indiana history. Indianapolis, Ind., The Bowen-Merrill Co., 1893 [1894.] 32 p. O. (Indiana Historical Society publications, v. 2, no. 8.) pap., 50 c. [241]
- The history of Post Ouatatanon, the first settlement made in Indiana.
- Daudet Alphonse. Morceaux choisis; ed. and annotated by Frank W. Freeborn. Bos., Ginn & Co., 1894. c. 12+227 p. D. (International modern language ser.) cl., 85 c. [242]
- Selections in French from "Tartarin de Tarascon," "Tartarin Sur les Alpes," "La Défense de Tarascon," "Lettres de mon Moulin," "Le Siège de Berlin," "La Dernière Classe," "L'Imagination de M. Joyeuse," "Un Réveillon dans le Marais," "Les petits pâtés," "André Gull," "La Belle Nivernaise."
- Delavigne, Jean Francois Casimir. Louis XI: tragédie; ed. with introd. and notes by H. W. Eve. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 261 p. 16°, (Pitt press ser.) cl., net, 50 c. [243]
- De Peyster, J. Watts. ["Anchor" pseud.] Waterloo: the campaign and battle—Blücher, Wellington, Napoleon. N. Y., Charles H. Ludwig & Co., 1893 [1894.] 33 p. map, O. pap. (printed for private circulation.) [244]
- The author dissects Napoleon's tactics and character in a dispassionate, scientific and impartial manner, and seems to prove that though the battle of Waterloo was by no means fought by the Napoleon of 1793, or even of 1805 it was lost by Napoleon's own lack of foresight and almost wilful waste of time. Besides a description of the battle the author gives clear-cut estimates of Blücher, Wellington, and Napoleon.
- De Peyster, J. Watts. ["Anchor" pseud.] Waterloo. N. Y., J. Watts De Peyster, 1893 [1894.] 14 p. Q. pap. (printed for private circulation.) [245]
- Devotes more space to biographical data relating to Napoleon than the work mentioned above. In concise and terse characterization of the subject the sketch almost parallels Taine's estimate of Napoleon. Reprinted from the Lancaster (Pa.) College Student.
- Dodgson, C. L. ["Lewis Carroll," pseud.] Sylvie and Bruno concluded; il. by Harry Furniss. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 423 p. 12°, cl., $1.50. [246]
- Fanshawe, Reginald. Two lives: a poem. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 180 p. 16°, cl., $1.75. [247]
- Ferguson, C. P. Reminiscences of a journey to Indianapolis in the year 1893. [i. i. n. o.] Life of Ziba Foote, by S. Morrison. Indianapolis, Ind., The Bowen-Merrill Co., 1893 [1894.] 2-25 p. O. (Indiana Historical Society publ's, v. 2, no. 9.) pap., 50 c. [248]
- Fortier, Alcée. Histoire de la littérature Française. N. Y., H. Holt & Co., [1894.] c. '93. 10+351 p. 8. cl., $1. [249]
- A comprehensive sketch of French literature given in special prominence to the two centuries between the Renaissance and romantic periods. An index of all authors cited with dates of births and deaths is included. The writer is professor in Tulane University of Louisiana at New Orleans. Wholly in French without notes

Frapan, Ilse, (pseud.) God's will, and other stories; tr. by Helen A. Macdonnell. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1894.] c. 2+183 p. nar. D. (Unknown lib., no. 28.) cl., 50 c. [250]

A quaint story of lowly life among Dutch peasants. The heroine is left motherless at fourteen. She takes hold of the family burdens, but does it in a hard, sad way, until advised by her pastor to see "God's will" in all things. Her father arranges a marriage between herself and a cousin "of the earth, earthy." At the marriage altar she says "no" where "yes" was expected by the reader as fully as by the attending friends, a point giving great literary merit to the romance. The other stories are: "Our journey," "A Christmas story," "The first," and "The scorcher."

Freytag, Gustav. Karl der Grosse, nebst anderen Bildern aus dem Mittelalter: ed. with introd. and notes, by A. B. Nichols. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., [1894.] 19+200 p. S. cl., 75 c. [251]

Selected from the first volume of Freytag's "Bilder aus der deutschen Vergangenheit" for intrinsic value and interest and also because the three essays consist largely of direct and simple narrative, adapted for the second year of the study of German. The editor is instructor in German at Harvard University.

Garnier, Edouard. Dictionnaire de la céramique; faïences-grès-poteries. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 258 p. col. pl. 8°, pap., net, $7.50. [252]

Garnier, Russell M. History of the English landed interest, its customs, laws, and agriculture, (modern period.) V. 2. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 564 p. 8°, cl., $3.50. [253]

Harland, Marion, [pseud. for Mrs. Mary Virginia Terhune.] Mr. Wayt's wife's sister. N. Y., The Cassell Pub. Co., [1894.] c. 4 +314 p. D. cl., $1. [254]

Mr. Wayt is a minister with a great gift of oratory, unbounded self-appreciation, and total lack of consideration for his wife and five children. The wife adores him; his wife's sister keeps the house together during the many changes of parishes. At the time of the story he is settled in a New Jersey country parish. A crippled daughter is made a very interesting character. By chance the family skeleton is seen by the lover of Mr. Wayt's wife's sister. Two other stories are included: "A social success" and "The articles of separation."

Harrell, J. M. Brooks and Baxter war: a history of the reconstruction period in Arkansas. St. Louis, Slawson Pr. Co., 1894. c. 284 p. por. 8°, cl., $1.75; pap., $1.50. [255]

Harte, Francis Bret. A protégée of Jack Hamlin's and other stories. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 3+292 p. S. cl., $1.25. [256]

Contents: A protégée of Jack Hamlin's; An ingénue of the Sierras; The reformation of James Reddy; The heir of the McHulishes; An episode of West Woodlands; The home-coming of Jim Wilkes.

Harte, Francis Bret. A Sappho of Green Springs, and other stories. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. [c. '91.] 3+294 p. 12°, (Riverside pap. ser., no. 60.) pap., 50 c. [257]

Hatch, Edwin, D.D., Redpath, H: A., [and others.] Concordance to the Septuagint and the other Greek versions of the Old Testament, (including the Apocryphal books.) Pt. 3. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. F. pap., net, $5. [258]

Hepworth, G: H. They met in heaven. N.

Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., 1894. c. 6+209 p. D. cl., 75 c. [259]

The writer had been engaged to superintend some dyeing processes in Woodbine. Here he came into contact with Hiram Golf, the pastor of the church, a Mr. Van Brunt, and a few other choice spirits. They formed "The Fireside Club," in which they discussed matters of the life here and the life hereafter and gave each other hopeful, practical encouragement of all kinds. Van Brunt, who had lost his wife and ten-year-old boy on the same day, was brought from a state bordering on insanity to one of peace and hope. The writer is former pastor of the Church of the Messiah, N. Y. City, and the author of "Hiram Golf's religion," published in 1893 anonymously.

Hertz, Heinrich. Electric waves: being researches on the propagation of electric action with finite velocity through space; tr. by D. E. Jones; with preface by Lord Kelvin. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 278 p. 8°, cl., net, $2.50. [260]

Hickson, Sydney J. The fauna of the deep sea. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. 9+169 p. il. D. (Modern science ser., no. 6.) cl., $1. [261]

Since it has been found that animals can and do live even at the greatest depths of the ocean, scientists have been continually adding to the valuable literature of that subject; their knowledge given in detail is generally embraced in the reports of the scientific expeditions fitted out by our own and foreign governments, and in memoirs and notes scattered through the English and foreign scientific journals. This little book brings together in a small compass some of the more important facts and considerations that are included in this great mass of literature, and presents them in a form for popular reading.

Hobbes, J: Oliver, [pseud. for Mrs. Craigie.] A bundle of life. N. Y., J. Selwin Tait & Sons, 1894. c. 5+155 p. nar. D. (The pseudonym lib., no. 6.) cl., 50 c. [262]

Teresa Warcop, an English heiress, who is accredited with being rather plain in personal appearance, falls in love with Sidney Wiche, an aspirant for the hand of Lady Mallinger, a very young widow. Just after the latter accepts Wiche as her suitor a quarrel between the two rivals and an interview between Wiche and his betrothed causes some diversion, and brings about the unexpected ending of a decidedly unromantic love-story.

Hugo, Victor. Selections from Victor Hugo: prose and verse; ed. with introd and notes by F. M. Warren. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., [1894.] c. '93. 24+220 p. por. S. cl., 70 c. [263]

An introduction of twenty pages in English gives an excellent sketch of Hugo's life and works. The selections are in French.

Indiana. Supreme court. The saloon a nuisance: decision of the supreme court of Indiana, December 14, 1893; official copy. N. Y., The National Temp. Soc. and Pub. House, 1894. 16 p. S. pap., 5 c. [264]

James, C: Ashworth. Mining royalties: their practical operation and effect. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1893 [1894.] 2-277 p. sq. O. cl., $1.75. [265]

Based wholly upon the volumes of evidence published by the Royal Commission on Mining Royalties. Presents the precise issues raised and contested before the Commission. The constant recurrence of views and statement in newspapers and speeches which the Commission has clearly established to be wholly erroneous, it is thought, calls for such a book within the comprehension and purse limits of many debarred from the Blue-Books. Refers wholly to laws of the United Kingdom.

Jones, Rev. Jenkin Lloyd, comp. A chorus of faith as heard in the Parliament of Religions, held in Chicago, Sept. 10-27, 1893; with an introd. by Jenkin Lloyd Jones. Chic., The Unity Publishing Co., 1893 [1894.] c. '93. 3-333 p. D. cl., $1.25. [266]

This compilation contains one hundred and thirty-seven extracts from one hundred and fifteen different authors, all of them taken from the utterances of the main Parliament. It is a book with a purpose. The compilers have selected "such passages as indicate the essential unity of all religious faiths at their best, the fundamental harmony in human nature made apparent by the noblest utterances of its representatives." The extracts are all preceded by poems from Whittier, Emerson, Browning, and others.

Most of the story has "The Hague" as the stage for its characters. High life means both the upper social circles of the world with their ambitions, false aspirations, tarnished idols, etc., and the upward reachings of true souls for the greatest good they can accomplish. There is strong writing against priests and their methods. The author says: "From the religions of our inheriting, our imbibing, our creating—from all religions but of thine implanting—deliver us, Oh Lord." Worldliness and selfishness, true love of one's neighbor, and self-sacrifice are all represented by strong characters.

"No apology is needed for an edition of Thomas Paine's writings, but rather for the tardiness of its appearance. For although there have been laborious and useful collections of his most famous works, none of them can be fairly described as adequate. While Paine's American writings are historical documents, their value as such is not limited to the mere record or interpretation of events. They possess very great value for the students of political institutions and constitutional development."—Editor's Introduction.

Parker, Gay. La Belle Creole. Chic., E. A. Weeks & Co., [1894.] 6-339 p. D. (Melbourne ser., no. 14.) pap., 25 c. [294]

Episodes in the past lives of John Ross and Louis de Jarnette, exile them from home: meeting in the Barbadoes, they are astounded by their wonderful personal resemblance to each other, and finally on the strength of an apparent coincidence form a friendship which ends with the death of de Jarnette, when circumstances tempt Ross to personate his dead friend. The consequences of this act are both startling and sensational, especially the scene which he enacts in New Orleans with Lucille de Guarcia (La Belle Creole).

An important contribution to the literature of Biblical criticism by the author of "The people's Bible." It presents fair and brief statements of the various contentions of higher criticism, and answers them seriatim with the beliefs of the older school of Biblical learning. For comparison and emphasis, the opposing views are printed largely in parallel columns. The headings of the chapters are: The word of God; The permanent quantity; The origins; The living word; The word taught; Fundamentals; Notes and comments.

The story describes what a few months did in the lives of certain men and women. Much of this time was spent in Norway by these people of social position and refined artistic tastes. The swing of the pendulum is the fluctuation of opinion and feeling in a young author's heart and mind as to the true character of a girl who has jilted his dearest friend. The narrative ends with "a note of interrogation instead of a stop."

Christina Chard, a curious, contradictory character, comes into possession of a great sum of money. Her portrait is painted by the artist of the hour in London, which brings her into contact with the crowd of fashionable, gifted people who haunt studios. The story also introduces many schemes in which capitalists employ money. The idea of the story is credited to the artist George H. Boughton, to whom the book is dedicated.

Prothero, Rowland Edmund, and Bradley, G. Granville (Dean.) Life and correspondence of Arthur Penrhyn Stanley, late dean of Westminster, by Rowland E. Prothero; with the co-operation and sanction of G. G. Bradley, D.D. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. '93. 2 v., 26+536; 6+600 p. por. O. cl., $8. [302]

Since Dean Stanley's death in 1881, over twenty years ago, it has been a matter of surprise that no adequate biography had appeared of one who had held so prominent a part in the ecclesiastical literary and social history of more than a generation. The present work explains the delay; out of three literary executors appointed by Mr. Stanley, two died after having done a great deal of work on his papers; the third was too busy to take the matter then in hand. The Dean of Westminster, Stanley's old friend, then offered to edit the material, and begun the work. After some years spent on it, his health broke down, and it became necessary to find another biographer, and Mr. Prothero was chosen, and all the unfinished work of the previous writers was placed in his possession. The material that forms the basis of this work, comes mostly from Stanley himself. He was the most indefatigable of letter-writers, from his early days at Rugby, Oxford and Cambridge until the end of his life. Next in importance were the letters addressed to him, and communications from his friends, recalling traits and anecdotes, written after his death. The work contains a list of Stanley's publications, covering eight pages, which does not claim to be an exhaustive or a scientific bibliography.

Ram, Mrs. Abel. The Little Sisters of the Poor. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1894. 5+318 p. D. cl., $2. [304]

The life of Jeanne Jugan, a holy peasant woman, generally thought to have been the foundress of the "Little Sisters of the Poor," an account of which order serves as a frame to Jeanne's pathetic story. She was the first quétteuse, or collector of alms, and her name is forever connected with the order, as it was her small beginnings which laid its foundations, though she was not its real foundress. She was born in France in 1793. A history of the various houses of the order in many countries is given.

Rand, Silas Tertius, D.D. Legends of the Micmacs. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1894 [1893.] c. 29+452 p. por. O. (Wellesley philological publications.) cl., $3.50. [305]

Gathered by Dr. Rand during the forty years he spent as a missionary among the Micmac Indians of Nova Scotia; the stories were related to him in Micmac, by the native Indians, and then translated and written down by him in English. The collection is valuable to the philologist, the anthropologist, and the ethnologist. It is believed the legends show traces of the Northmen, as a closer study of the language of the Micmacs may reveal the impress of the early north invaders. Introductory are a sketch of the life of the Rev. Dr. Rand, a list of his works covering eight pages, showing his great industry as a linguist while among the Indians, and a paper on "The manners, customs, language, and literature of the Micmac Indians in Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island."

The one hundred and three sonnets and eleven lyrics with which Dante Gabriel Rossetti chose to build his 'House of life' are here set forth according to their obvious design. Those used in the volume of mdccclxx. are reproduced as they then appeared, not as they have appeared since in the volume of mdccclxxx. The deplorable circumstance is well known which led to the too sensitive withdrawal of one of the sequence and to the revision of others: a mistaken sacrifice of beauty to a mistakenly imposed ideal. The makers of this edition revert by choice to the poet's original plan of work. As 'The house of life' stood in Rossetti's mind, so it stands, once again, in its innocence and perfection."—Preface. The volume is embellished with three ornamental borders and 114 initial letters designed by B. G. Goodhue.

This book fulfils a want long felt for a work devoted exclusively to marine engineering and in which the subject was treated thoroughly. The authors say: "While we have been careful to make the book of special value to marine engineers, we have omitted nothing, so far as we know, that would be of use and importance to others having to do with ships and their machinery."

The author is a well-known clergyman of Philadelphia. "Once in May," he writes, "and again in August, in the year 1892, it fell to my lot to wander through the woods, valleys, and towns of Derbyshire. The pleasure I felt and the knowledge I gained on these occasions I have sought to suggest in these pages." The work is handsomely gotten up, being printed on linen paper with wide margins and uncut edges, and fully illustrated. An appendix contains some of the ballads popular in Derbyshire.

Superfluous woman (A.) N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1894.] c. 3+336 p. D. cl., $1. [321]

A study in heredity, in the form of a novel; thought to be by the author of "The heavenly twins." The heroine is a "professional beauty," who has been taught to think the highest happiness is found in a marriage of wealth and position. She rebels against the attempts of her aunt to marry her to Lord Heriot, the "greatest catch in Europe," a worn-out roué, the last of his line of degenerate ancestors, and suddenly disappears from London society, hiding herself in an isolated spot in the Scotch Highlands. Here she falls in love with a noble type of the Scotch peasant, whom her pride prevents her marrying. After a short struggle she returns to her old life and marries Lord Heriot. This marriage, with its dreadful consequences, is the author's opportunity for many plainly expressed physiological truths. The heroine is a painfully powerful character-study.

Presents the subject from the standpoint of the author's experience, observation, and study; it has been his aim to avoid dogmatism, and, to this end, he has carefully stated the grounds of his views and suggestions, the primary facts of mental and moral science being freely used; he has especially kept in mind the condition and needs of teachers of ungraded rural schools, although the work is addressed generally to the great body of American teachers. The chapters on "Moral instruction" and "Religion in the school" are rich in suggestions.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

FEBRUARY 3, 1894.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

CHARACTERISTICS OF MODERN ENGLISH LITERATURE.

UNDER the title "English Literature of the Victorian Age" Mr. Frederic Harrison contributes to the February Forum an excellent summary of the changes in style, tendency, and aims that have been wrought in English literature during the last fifty-seven years. Using the term Victorian Age as a convenient label for the period 1837-1894, and confining himself to a consideration of the literature produced in Great Britain during those years, he demonstrates with considerable effectiveness the characteristics that so widely differentiate the literature of this period from that of the preceding years. Taking the accession of Victoria in 1837 to be a purely arbitrary point, and, in itself, not a significant one, it is nevertheless interesting to note the remarkable contrast between the literature produced before and after that year. At that time nearly all the great writers of the past century—Scott, Byron, Shelley, Keats, Coleridge, Lamb, Sheridan, Hazlitt, Crabbe, and Cobbett—were dead; there still remained Wordsworth, Southey, Campbell, Moore, Jeffrey, Sidney Smith, De Quincey, Miss Edgeworth, Miss Mitford, and Leigh Hunt; but these had produced their best work. Writers belonging equally to the Victorian and Georgian ages were Landor, Bulwer, Disraeli, Hallam, and Milman. Within the period of the reign of Victoria is found, with a few trifling exceptions, the whole work of Tennyson, the Brownings, Thackeray, Dickens, the Brontës, George Eliot, the Kingsleys, Trollope, Spencer, Mill, Darwin, Ruskin, Grote, Macaulay, Freeman, Froude, Lecky, Milman, Green, Matthew Arnold, Symonds, Rossetti, Swinburne, Morris, and some younger writers still in their prime and promise.

A glance over these names and then at the names preceding them emphasizes at once the distinctive characteristic of the literature of the Victorian age. "This is the age of sociology," says Mr. Harrison. "Its central achievement has been the revelation of social law." It is as far removed from the Virgilian and Ciceronian style of the age of Pope and Addison, Gray and Johnson, as it is from the tempestuous tragedy and romance, mystery and legend that marked the days of Byron, Shelley, Scott, and Coleridge. The social earnestness of the time is felt throughout its literature. Carlyle's histories overflow with social and political rhapsody and invective; Dickens waged warfare against social abuses in nearly all his novels; George Eliot brought her genius to the analysis of human nature; Tennyson has woven theological controversy into lyric verse; Ruskin devotes his deepest earnestness to the preaching of social equality and the brotherhood of man; the most popular novels of the day deal with subtle questions of psychology and problems of social ethics. The central note of the literature of the Victorian age may well be described as "the dominant influence of sociology—enthusiasm for social truths as an instrument of social reform." Mr. Harrison sums up its characteristics briefly. It is "scientific, subjective, introspective, historical, archaeological; full of vitality, versatility, and diligence; intensely personal, defiant of all law, of standards, of convention; laborious, exact, but often indifferent to grace, symmetry or color; it is learned, critical, cultured; with all its ambition and its fine feeling, it is unsympathetic to the highest forms of the imagination, and quite alien to the drama of action." This change in the tone of literature he traces back to the death of Scott in 1832, the year of the Reform Act, and in this act, heralding the social and legislative revolution of the last sixty years, he finds the political and social cause of the great change.

Another notable point is the diversity of style that now prevails in literature; as a matter of fact there is no "style," no standard, no conventional type or good "model." It is an age of "go-as-you-please," every man speaking what he will in his own words, from the almost perfect prose of Thackeray, the flawless polish of "In Memoriam," to the original genius and extravagance of Carlyle, or the commonplace, ill-digested, nerveless style too frequently characteristic of modern scientific research.

Of later years there has been a rapid increase of the scientific and sociological spirit in literature. Dividing the period from the death of Scott in 1832 into two equal parts, we have two periods of thirty-one years each, and it is a noteworthy fact that the purely literary product of the first period (1832-1863) is superior to the purely literary product of the second period (1863-1894). The former gave us the best work of Tennyson, the Brownings, Carlyle, Thackeray, Dickens, Bulwer, the Brontës, George Eliot, Kingsley, Macaulay, Kinglake, Ruskin; the second gave, in the main, Darwin, Spencer, Huxley, John Morley, Matthew Arnold, Freeman, Bryce, Green, Symonds, Rossetti, Morris, Swinburne. This division of the literature of the age into two periods furnishes a remarkable demonstration of the change wrought during the later years. In the first period poetry, romance, the critical, imaginative, and pictorial power predominate; the second is dominated by philosophy, science, politics, and history.

It is the growth and present predominance of the practical, scientific, and social spirit that in Mr. Harrison's opinion has checked the highest imaginative and dramatic genius. He finds no poetry to place beside the "Prometheus" of Shelley, no drama to equal the "School for Scandal"; romance has been ousted by reality, the "subjective" has displaced the "objective." Especially he cites the "almost entire disappearance of the historical romance in spite of the immense extension of historical study and archæological revival;" and points out "Harold," "Esmond" and "Romola,"—all of them forty years old or more, and none of them unqualified successes—as the highest examples of historical romance produced during the age, and unapproached by later historical fiction. Strangely enough he makes no mention of "The Cloister and the Hearth," which certainly ranks with the three books cited; but that, too, is more than thirty years old and but strengthens his deductions.

The conclusion to which this survey of the literature of the Victorian age leads is not only interesting but seems thoroughly well founded. Briefly it is that "the predominance of sociology, the restless rapidity of modern life, and the omnipresence of material activity fully account for the special character of modern literature. Literature is no longer 'bookish'—but practical, social, propagandist. It is full of life—but it is a dispersive, analytic, erratic form of vitality. It has a most fastidious taste in form—but it often flings the critical spirit aside in its ardor to convince and to inspire. It is industrious, full of learning and research—but it regards its learning as an instrument of research, not as an end of thought. It has no 'standard,' no 'model,' no 'best writer'—and yet it has a curious faculty for reviving every known form and imitating any style. It is intensely historical, but so accurately historical that it is afraid to throw the least color of imagination around its history. It has consummate poetic feeling and copious poetic gifts—but it has now no single poet of the first rank. It has infinite romantic resources, and an army of skilful novelists—and yet it has no single writer living to be named beside the great romancers of the nineteenth century."

THE AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY TO LEAVE ITS OLD QUARTERS.

THE AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY, after so long occupying the site at the corner of Nassau and Spruce Streets, New York, will remove up-town some time in April, about which time the work of tearing down their present quarters will be begun.

"If our plans are carried out," said the Rev. Dr. William A. Rice, one of the secretaries of the Society, to a representative of the press, "nothing will be left of the present building on May 1. The cost of the new structure (which will be not less than fifteen stories high, divided into offices, with stores on the ground floor) will be probably between $500,000 and $600,000.

"The Society has felt for a long time that it was not getting the returns that it should from so valuable a property as this. I cannot say where we will move our book-store to. We are looking at property between Twentieth and Twenty-third Streets, in the neighborhood of Broadway. It is yet undetermined where we will have our manufacturing establishment, but it will go further up-town into a less expensive neighborhood. Our managers have been looking at property on the east side near Twentieth Street, I believe. We shall never bring our manufacturing back here again. Its removal will be permanent. But I would not say that our sales-rooms might not be located in our new building when it is finished. The present expectation is that our 'sky-scraper' will be built within a year ready for occupancy. In any case only a small part of the new structure will be used by the American Tract Society. The most of it will be for rent. The new building will occupy the whole of our present site, eighty feet in Nassau Street, and about one hundred and fifty-five feet in Spruce Street."

THE LAW AS TO CANCELLED ORDERS.

So much has been written and said on the cancellation of orders and the return of goods once purchased that the rights of both seller and buyer are becoming more clearly defined under the law. Both parties have certain rights, and the suits growing out of the infringement of these rights are having a good effect, at least in the way of defining precisely what one can or cannot do under the law. Many retail merchants have an idea that they can refuse to accept goods at any time after ordered. Such would not seem to be the case under the decision of the Supreme Court of Georgia, in the case of McCord vs. Laidley, where a firm bought a car-load of goods to be shipped and paid for on delivery. The seller shipped the car and forwarded a draft. The draft was presented before the car arrived, and payment refused, and the buying firm notified the seller that he had violated the contract by demanding payment before the delivery of the goods, and that they would not accept the goods when they arrived. When the car arrived it was tendered to the buyers and they refused it. It was then sold for what it would bring, which was much less than the contract price. The buyers were held by the court to be liable for the deficit. The decision is not only good law, but sound common sense, and would undoubtedly be cited as a precedent in all similar cases.

OBITUARY NOTES.

CONSTANCE FENIMORE WOOLSON, author of "The Happy Valley," "Anne," "East Angels," and other sketches, novels, and poems, came to her death in Venice on the 23d ult. by falling out of the window in the house where she was living. Miss Woolson was suffering with the grip, and was delirious when the accident occurred. She was born in Claremont, N. H., in 1848, and her mother was a niece of James Fenimore Cooper. She afterward lived in Cleveland, New York, and Florida. Upon the death of her mother in February, 1879, Miss Woolson went abroad, where she spent the rest of her life, returning to this country but once in the fifteen years, and then only for a short visit. Her life abroad was spent mainly in Venice, Rome, Sorrento, Germany, and Switzerland. She was buried in the Protestant cemetery in Rome, near Shelley's grave.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MISS MARY WAKEFIELD, a friend and neighbor of Mr. Ruskin, is preparing a collection of all of his scattered sayings about the art of music.

JULIAN RALPH, the clever journalist, has been annoyed for more than a year by an impostor who has been using his name in the South and West. So cleverly has his pseudo double managed the deception, that it has taken nearly two years to discover and expose him.

MRS. MARY (Montgomery Lamb) SINGLETON, who was married a couple of weeks ago to Sir Philip Currie, the British ambassador at Constantinople, it will be remembered, is the lady who has published a book or two of graceful verses under the pseudonym of "Violet Fane."

F. MARION CRAWFORD has nearly completed a new novel that is to be published by Macmillan & Co. late in the spring. The novel deals with American life, and there is a rumor that Mr. Crawford has introduced an American family whose fortunes he will follow in several novels as he did those of the "Saracinesca" in his Roman series. The novel is to be illustrated by Alfred Brennan.

THE appointment of Miss Louise Imogen Guiney, the literary woman and poet, as postmaster of Auburndale, Mass., came as almost a birthday gift to her, for it came within a few days of an anniversary. Miss Guiney is said to be an excellent musician as well as a charming poet, to be fluent in the French and Italian languages, a good Latin scholar, and highly versed in English literature.

THE late Miss Woolson is said to have left no unpublished manuscripts with the exception of one or two in the possession of Harper's Magazine. Her short stories were in great demand and rarely remained long in the publisher's hands before being printed. "A Transplanted Boy," in the February Harper's, was written two years ago, and is one of a series of sketches of Italian life, of which enough were finished to make a small volume.

SOME of Mr. Theodore Child's personal friends in New York and in Paris have desired to establish in some useful way a memorial to him; and for that purpose a fund now amounting to about 5700 karans, or say $710, has been entrusted to the American Presbyterian Mission in Tabriz, Persia, where Mr. Child was stricken with the cholera, and most kindly cared for. A letter from Dr. Mary E. Bradford, dated at Tabriz on Dec. 11, says: "The suggestion as to a hospital room or bed to be called by Mr. Child's name seems to meet with general approval. We hope the way may be open for us to have a hospital and see this carried out."

THE author of that most extraordinary book, "Keynotes" (published in this country by Roberts Bros.), whose feminine qualities were more than suspected, notwithstanding the masculine pseudonym, "George Egerton," is said to be Mrs. Clairmonte. Says one of her English reviewers: "The stories are full of Norway; the witchery of the north has got into the writer's blood. She has, too, one would say, come considerably under the influence of Norwegian modern writers, notably of Bjørnson. One is reminded again and again of 'The Heritage of the Kurts' in reading 'Under Northern Sky.' All the tales are wayward, incalculable, and, whoever may have influenced them, original. But passion in its narrower sense is not the motive of them all. Very charming is 'The Spell of the White Elf,' full of present-day allusions and of the present-day spirit; the tale of how a little child upset all the ways and habits of a modern household, and how the household rejoiced thereat."

"THE news that Mrs. Langtry is writing a novel, which comes over the cable with the regularity of the recurring seasons," says the New York Sun, "has lost something of its novelty, but it is true, nevertheless. The book was begun nearly four years ago, and several writers of distinction in London have tinkered at it in one way or another. At first Mrs. Langtry decided to have a secretary and dictate her memoirs to him, but after several unsuccessful trials she gave this plan up, and when she returned to London she tried the scheme of giving her general ideas to a journalist, and having him clothe them in attractive English, but after he had finished about one-third of the book she became so thoroughly dissatisfied with it that she burned it up. Then she started in on the work of writing it herself. Edmund Yates was called in from time to time in consultation. Sometimes she puts the manuscript away and does not touch it for months. Again she will write industriously for several weeks upon the work. Nearly all the London publishers have attempted to get hold of the book, but without success. Mrs. Langtry will publish, circulate, and advertise the volume herself."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

KEGAN PAUL, TRENCH & Co. will publish some time in March the first number of a quarterly magazine of bibliography. It will consist of a series of papers by writers of authority on various points of book-lore. The publishers will imitate Octave Uzanne's example in fixing beforehand that the magazine is to last for three years only, ending, no matter what its success, with the appearance of the twelfth number in December, 1896. Subscribers will thus know from the first when their set will be complete. The following articles will appear in early numbers: "English Illuminated mss.," by Maunde Thompson; "The Stationers at the Sign of the Trinity," by Gordon Duff; "The Books of Queen Christina of Sweden," by Charles Elton; "The Illustrated Books of Augsburg and Ulm," by William Morris; and "On Some Engravers of English Book-Plates," by W. J. Hardy. Among the other contributors to the magazine will be Austin Dobson, Dr. Copinger, Dr. Garneitt, Chancellor Christie, Messrs. Graves, Jenkinson, A. Lang, Madan, Fuller Maitland, Fairfax Murray, Russell Martineau, Pollard, W. B. Squire, Tedder, Uzanne, Warner, H. Wheatley, and Weale.

PROF. W. M. SLOAN, of Princeton College, who has been for several years past gathering material for a complete and exhaustive life of Napoleon Bonaparte, has almost finished the writing of the work. It will be published serially in The Century, beginning with the November number this year. This life of Napoleon will be profusely illustrated, the only difficulty in this regard being the enormous amount of material. Of portraits of the emperor alone there are more than enough to fill the book. Only the most important and most rare will be selected for the purpose.

STEAD'S Daily Paper, the unique plan of which was so much discussed, has been abandoned. The hundred and fifty thousand subscribers did not respond, and Mr. Stead simply says: "Therefore the public does not want it, and I shall not start it."

The Contributors' Magazine, published privately for the members of the Contributors' Club, of Chicago, has reached its third issue.

PERSONAL NOTES.

T. J. BRETT, who has for the past ten years represented A. C. McClurg & Co. on the road, severed his relations with that house at the beginning of the year. C. G. Acret, who has represented C. M. Barnes on the road for several years, has been appointed to fill the vacancy.

E. A. LAWSON, for some time manager of the book and stationery departments of Siegel, Cooper & Co., of Chicago, and before that buyer for C. M. Barnes, has severed his connection with the former firm to become an active partner in the firm of E. A. Weeks & Co.

T. PERCY SIDDALL, late with S. A. Maxwell & Co., and at one time with Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger, succeeds Mr. Lawson at Siegel, Cooper & Co's.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOSTON, MASS.—The Russell Publishing Company, of 196 Summer Street, has made an assignment to H. W. Brag. This company was organized in 1884, Dana Estes being president and P. J. Andrews treasurer. Since its incorporation the company has published Our Little Ones, and a year ago last July started another magazine called The Whole Family. Before this new publication was fairly established the troublous times of 1893 came on and continued so long that the company was at last forced to assign. A statement of assets and liabilities is now being prepared.

CONNERSVILLE, IND.—A book and stationery store has been started here by I. B. & Adam Young.

DEFIANCE, O.—Schrack & Ferguson, booksellers and stationers, have sold out.

DENVER, COLO.—E. R. Ball purchased the W. H. Lawrence & Co. book and stationery house which was recently sold at auction.

DENVER, COLO.—The Denver Book and Stationery Co. has been incorporated to deal in books and stationery; capital stock, $15,000.

DULUTH, MINN.—E. Norellus, bookseller, has sold out.

FITCHBURG, MASS.—James Donovan will shortly open a book and paper store.

FREDONIA, KAN.—Bogart & White, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

GRANVILLE, ALA.—A book and stationery store has been opened here by H. H. Mallett & Co.

LEWISBURG, PA.—D. P. Higgins will close out his book and stationery store either by private sale or auction.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Halloway & Smith, booksellers, have assigned.

MASILLON, OHIO.—The partnership of the Babney - Spalding Company, booksellers, 20 East Main Street, has been dissolved by mutual consent, Arthur E. Spalding retiring.

NEW YORK CITY.—The firm of Wm. F. Etherington, dealer in paper, etc., has become Etherington & Hapgood, and has removed to the "Times Building."

NEW YORK CITY.—Hurst & Co. have removed their office and sales-room to 135 Grand Street, directly opposite their old quarters. Their shipping will be done from their manufacturing department at 265 and 267 Cherry Street.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Manufacturers' Publishing Co., 150 Fifth Avenue, has become insolvent, and John R. Huff, cashier of the Methodist Book Concern, has been appointed temporary receiver to wind up the concern. The company succeeded to a part of the business formerly carried on by the Armstrong & Knauer Publishing Company. It published a directory of the manufacturers of the United States, classified according to trades, which was printed for them by the Methodist Book Concern, which is now the largest creditor of the company.

NEW YORK CITY.—Saulfield & Fitch, having made satisfactory arrangements with their creditors, have resumed business at their old quarters.

NEW YORK CITY.—Marcus Ward & Co., limited, will remove on February 1 to Sixth Avenue and Twentieth Street.

PITTSBURG, PA.—The large department store of Ffleshman & Co. was closed by the sheriff on the Saturday before Christmas. They had a well-stocked book and stationery department.

POMONA, CAL.—Mitchell & Pilling, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

ST. JOHN, N. B.—J. & A. McMillan, booksellers and stationers, have made an assignment.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—The business of Annie Fairbanks, bookseller, is in possession of the mortgagee.

TOLEDO, O.—F. R. Frey Co., booksellers, have failed.

TORONTO, CANADA.—The statement of the Rose Publishing Company shows liabilities of $25,632.03, and assets of $26,442.89, the assets being merchandise, $22,724.75; furniture, $87.85, and book accounts $3630.29.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

CATALOGUES OF NEW AND SECOND-HAND BOOKS.—Andrew Buxendie, 10 St. Giles St., Edinburgh, Miscellaneous. (No. 47, 1307 titles.)—E. F. Bonaventure, 45 W. 31st St., N. Y., Fine books. (New ser., No. 1, 138 titles.)—Wm. R. Hill, 5 E. Monroe St., Chicago, First editions extra illustrated, etc. (No. 2, 382 titles.)—Lucas & Co., 46 Gt. Russell St., London W. C., Oriental list. (V. 4, No. 12); also, Rough list of second-hand books on Asia, Africa, etc. (No. 5, 128 titles.)—Joel Munsell's Sons, Albany, N. Y., American historical and genealogical publications. (4 p. 8")—Bernard Quaritch, 15 Piccadilly, London, Manuscripts, arranged in chronological order and books illustrating the science of palæography. (No. 138, 244 titles); Manuscripts may be classed under various headings: as being literary texts before the invention of printing, as being artistically valuable for their illuminations, as documents for palæography, as the crude materials for history, or even as autographs. Of all of these there are examples in this catalogue, though Mr. Quaritch has preferred to arrange his mss. in strict chronological order, which of course cuts across other divisions. He has, however, prefixed a classified index according to subjects, and called attention in a preface to some of his chief treasures. He no longer owns the famous Talbot Prayer-Book—which has found a home in the United States—but he still has in his possession several early liturgical books of English manufacture, and also mss. of Wyclif, Chaucer, Gower, and the unique Towneley mysteries. Italian, French, and German art is magnificently represented; among these we may specially mention a superb vellum of the "Roman de la Rose," dated circa 1475. Greek and Latin classics are less conspicuous; for, to tell the truth, they are less valued by collectors. But the first lot of all is a Greek codex of the Gospels, of the tenth century, which was brought from Cyprus by Major Alessandro Cesnola; and there are several Latin Bibles of the twelfth to the fifteenth century.—Henry Stevens & Son, 39 Gt. Russell St., London, W. C., Second clearance list of Americana. (391 titles.)—D. Van Nostrand Company, 23 Murray St., N. Y., Works on chemistry, chemical technology, and physics. (56 p. 8")—Edgar A. Werner, 35 Chestnut St., Albany, N. Y., Miscellaneous. (No. 2, 1066 titles.)

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

F. W. HELMICK, 265 Sixth Avenue, N. Y., has published a song and chorus by Alberto Himan, entitled "The Girl Across the Way."

DELMONICO's veteran chef, Charles Ranhofer, will publish by subscription a cook-book, which he promises will contain 1200 octavo pages, embracing 3700 recipes, and embellished with 800 engravings.

THE CHAIN & HARDY COMPANY, Denver, Col., will publish at once "The Right of Appropriation," being the law of water for irrigation in the Western arid region. It will be uniform in size and price with Morrison's "Mining Rights."

THE SCHULTE PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, are reporting a boom on Art Young's clever parody on Dante's immortal work. "Hell Up to Date," notwithstanding its title, is well worth reading, and when once better known is bound to sell well.

GINN & Co. will publish in March a book entitled "Latin at Sight," by Prof. Edwin Post, of De Pauw University. They will publish in April "A Preparatory German Reader," with notes and vocabulary, prepared for beginners by Mr. A. N. Van Dael.

WILBUR B. KETCHAM, N. Y., the publisher of "Sanctified Spice, or, pungent seasonings from the pulpit," by Madison C. Peters, pastor of the Bloomingdale Reformed Church, has just brought out a new edition of this book which has met with such a ready sale that the price has been reduced from $1.50 to $1.

ANDREW D. MELLICK, JR., the author of the interesting and valuable "Story of an Old Farm," has lately grangerized a copy of his work, enlarging it to three handsome volumes. He has used for the purpose a notable collection of Colonial and Revolutionary mss., together with quantities of portraits and prints, old and new.

D. C. HEATH & Co. will issue at once their long-promised edition of Schiller's "Wilhelm Tell," with introduction and notes by Prof. R. W. Deering, of Western Reserve University. They have in press for immediate issue a "Short French Grammar," by C. H. Grandgent, director of modern language instruction in the public schools of Boston.

COPELAND & DAY, 69 Cornhill, Boston, who have just issued a charming edition of the unpurgated version of Rossetti's "House of Life," have in preparation an equally handsome edition of "The Imitation of Christ," to be issued in four books, unabridged with page-size and initial letters fac-similed from those in the original ms. preserved in the Royal Library of Brussels.

At the instance of Dr. William Seward Webb, the correspondence and journals of his grandfather, Samuel Blatchley Webb, an officer and prisoner of the Revolution, have been collected and edited by Worthington C. Ford, in three volumes, royal octavo. The work contains a number of finely engraved portraits. One hundred of the 350 sets printed are offered for sale to the public through Charles H. Burnett, 51 E. 44th St., New York City.

EDW. J. NIEUWLAND, Sr., 1962 Amsterdam Ave., New York City, has published a "Clam-selling Placard," which he commends to storekeepers who wish by "a practical, passive, peaceful, and economical medium to offer for sale, cheap, their just claims to overdue debts against those of their debtors who can pay them, and persist in not meeting their obligations promptly." The placard is 12 x 18½ inches in size, clearly printed, and retails for 25 cents.

MRS. ELIZABETH HILL BISSELL ROBERTS has made an admirable English translation of Victor Cherbuliez's "A Phidian Horse," which combines the essential characteristics of the novel and profound reflections upon art and philosophy, with a felicity possible only to French skill and penetration. Hand in hand go an earnest investigation of the methods and aims of the Greeks in art, and a romance of a beautiful marchioness, devoted to the study of the antique. The book may be had through John Wanamaker, of Philadelphia.

THE advertising poster is fast becoming a work of art. In Paris the colored cartoons of M. Jules Chéret, proclaiming the virtues of hair restoratives and the graces of concert-hall singers, are eagerly sought by collectors, rare sorts bringing prices varying from twenty-five to one hundred francs. The mania for collecting show-bills has reached this country, and Harper & Brothers are said to have received so many requests for the series of monthly colored posters of Harper's Magazine that no more sets are obtainable.

F. HENRY GREER, whose name has been connected with such works as "Men of Progress," "Men of Mark," "American Homes," etc., and with such concerns as The International Press Department of the London and Hartford Publishing Company of Jersey City, sometimes also known as the London, New York and Hartford Publishing Company, of 122 East 26th Street, New York, and elsewhere, is denounced by Senator Palmer, Theodore Havemeyer, and others, for attempting to obtain money under false pretences.

THE papers presented at the International Congress of Charities, Correction, and Philanthropy, held at Chicago, June 12-18, 1893, are now in preparation for publication at the Johns Hopkins Press. These papers, brought together and arranged by the committee on publication appointed by the congress, will appear in five octavo volumes of about five hundred pages each, and the series promises to be the most interesting and complete collection of information on vital questions of charitable, reformatory, and philanthropic work that has so far appeared in this country. The papers were presented by the leading thinkers and workers in these special fields in Europe and America, and embody the latest experiences and conclusions. The subjects covered in the volumes are: Charity organization; Sociology as a special topic in institutions of learning; The insane; Hospitals, dispensaries, and nursing; Neglected, abandoned, and dependent children; Crime and criminals; The treatment of feeble-minded children; The public treatment of pauperism. It is expected that the volumes on Hospital work, Charity organization, Sociological study, and Insanity will be published in January or soon after. Some of the volumes will contain two subjects. The edition is limited and volumes are sold singly or in sets.

HENRY CAREY BAIRD has issued three interesting pamphlets. One is a memorial of the centenary of the birth of Henry C. Carey, the first advocate of the policy of protection in America, and the founder of the present house of Henry Carey Baird & Co. It contains tributes to Carey's life and work by Robert Ellis Thompson, David H. Mason, James M. Swank, and others, reprinted from the periodicals in which they first appeared. The centennial anniversary of Carey's birth was December 15, 1893. He was born in Philadelphia, and succeeded his father, Mathew Carey, as head of the publishing house established by Mathew Carey in 1785, and still continued by his descendants. From 1836 until his death in 1879, Carey devoted himself to the study of political economy, and his writings were among the most important contributions to the literature of protection. The other pamphlets are devoted to the currency question, and are reprints of communications addressed by Henry Carey Baird to various periodicals on "The Silver Purchases of 1878-1893 as a Saving Fund for Labor Power," and "The United States Before the Passage of the Silver Bill of Feb. 28, 1878." This house has also just issued a very complete catalogue of books and pamphlets on social science, noticed elsewhere.

THE case of J. Ward Gamble vs. Hubbard Brothers of Philadelphia was decided in favor of the defendant. The story of the case came out in the defence. Mr. Hubbard alleged that Gamble came to him with what he claimed to be an exceedingly choice collection of matter written or spoken by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, which had been published without being copyrighted. Relying on these representations, Mr. Hubbard alleged, he agreed to publish it, and give Mr. Gamble his note for $1000. After some delay the book was taken up for work, and the true condition of affairs was discovered. Mr. Hubbard asserted that not only had the work been unskillfully prepared, to such a degree that other persons had to be employed to fix it up, entailing a large amount of work, but that it was devoid of the value represented, because it was found that much of the material had been cut out, pages together, from books which had been published and copyrighted. The notes in suit were given for the purchase of the manuscript, together with others, making up the $1000, but the others, it was stated, had been transferred to third persons, and have been paid. Mr. Hubbard alleged that had he continued with the publication he would have become liable to litigation for infringing on copyrights, and as he had, by reason of the falsity of the representations made, been put to expense and loss which exceeded the amount of the notes, he was not indebted to Mr. Gamble.

FOREIGN NOTES.

FROM the sales of the foreign rights of each of their new books it is said that Daudet and Zola receive each about $6000.

THE present London edition of Thomas Hardy's "Tess" is said to have reached a sale of 23,000 copies. A new collection of Hardy's "Wessex Tales" will be issued shortly.

VICTOR SCHÖELCHER'S "Life of Toussaint l'Ouverture" is being translated by Mr. Theodore Stanton of the Paris Galvani. Frederick Douglass has written an introduction for the book.

THE niece of Guy de Maupassant has inherited all his MS. and note-books. Last year the copyright royalties on the works of the dead novelist produced $8000. It is estimated that they will yield about $6000 annually.

As a souvenir for their friends, Elkin Mathews & John Lane, London, have printed a dainty little quarto pamphlet, containing an anonymous prose fancy on "Limited Editions," together with a sonnet entitled "Confessio Amantis," by Mr. R. Le Gallienne.

WILLIAM WATSON has entirely recovered from his recent attack of mental aberration, and is writing once more with all his accustomed grace and charm. His new poems, among which are some very powerful sonnets, will soon be published in the London papers, and have been already copyrighted in America.

WITH reference to the supposed new work by Charles Lamb, "Cupid's Revenge," a correspondent writes to the London Literary World, reminding it that a tale with that title, founded on the plot of Beaumont and Fletcher's play bearing the same name, is included in Bell and Daldy's edition of "Lamb's Essays," 1867.

ELLIOT STOCK, London, will publish directly the seventh volume of "Book Prices Current." This year's issue will contain particulars of auction sales that have taken place from December, 1892, to November last. In that time about 50,000 lots were disposed of, realizing a total amount of £66,470, which may be considered a fair average.

BELL & SONS have just issued in their Ex Libris Series a limited edition of Albert Dürer's "Little Passion," printed from stereotypes taken from the original wood-blocks, which are in the British Museum. An attempt has been made to reproduce as nearly as possible the second Nuremberg edition of 1511. Austin Dobson has written an introduction, and the volume is uniform with his edition of Holbein's "Dance of Death" in the same series. A photogravure reproduction of Dürer's portrait of himself forms the frontispiece.

At the December meeting of the London Bibliographical Society Mr. J. H. Isaacs read a paper "On a New Edition of Lowndes' Bibliographer's Manual." The speaker estimated that with the aid of the society it would be completed in six years, and include American books published before 1780. In the discussion which followed Messrs. Copinger (the president of the society), J. H. Slater, Jenkinson, A. Huth, B. Wheatley, Almack, and Baldock took part. The general opinion was that the work, while well worth doing, would require an even longer time than that estimated by Mr. Isaacs.

PRIOR to his last illness the late Henry Vizetelly had prepared the materials for a further series of his reminiscences. Mr. Vizetelly still had to tell the story of his career from the time of the Franco-German War to his retirement subsequent to the Zola prosecution. By his express desire this task will now be undertaken by his son, Ernest Vizetelly, who was his constant companion, not only in Paris during the siege and Commune, but also in Germany, Austria, Hungary, Spain, Portugal, etc. The new volume will contain a full account of Mr. Vizetelly's prosecution for publishing translations of Zola's novels, and in this connection many curious circumstances will for the first time be made public.

KEGAN PAUL, TRENCH & Co. will publish at once a work on "Early Editions, a biographical survey of the works of some popular modern authors," by J. H. Slater, editor of "Book Prices Current." The work deals with the writings of Robert Browning, Mrs. Browning, Thackeray, Dickens, Coventry Patmore, Richard Jefferies, R. L. Stevenson, Andrew Lang, A. C. Swinburne, Leigh Hunt, Douglas Jerrold, George Augustus Sala, and others, and regards only such books as, by reason of their scarcity, are now in demand at enhanced prices by the present-day collector. These will be fully described and appraised, with special reference to the protection of the collector from spurious editions and imperfect copies. A large-paper edition, limited to one hundred and fifty numbered and signed copies, is being prepared for subscribers, to be issued before the publication of the ordinary edition.

THE forthcoming volume of Henry Stevens'

"Fac-similes of Manuscripts in European Archives Relating to America, 1773-1783," covers but little more than two months of the year 1777, that critical period being productive of much correspondence at the court of France. The letters from Count de Vergennes to the Marquis d'Ossun and the Marquis de Noailles, French ambassadors in Madrid and London respectively, lay bare the policy of his court with an exactitude which no other historical papers afford. One document is a formal and elaborately worded reply from Spain to the memorial of the American deputies for support and assistance, given in the preceding volume of Mr. Stevens' "Fac-similes." Lord Stormont's letters are continued. Amongst others from Beaumarchais is one narrating, over a very shaky signature, the accident which befell him when returning from Passy with M. Grand, the banker, after hearing the news, brought from Congress by Mr. Austin, of the surrender of Burgoyne. There may also be noticed the reproduction of the seal used by Dr. Franklin in Paris (1778), and of one belonging to Arthur Lee (1773); that of the third commissioner, Silas Deane, has been given in previous volumes.

WE have received a pamphlet describing the festivities incident to the three hundredth anniversary in September, 1893, of the founding of the Josef Kösel Publishing House in Kempten, Bavaria. It seems almost incredible that a firm should exist three hundred years without any cessation whatever of its active business interests. The business was founded in 1593 by Erhard Blarer von Wartensee, an abbot-prince of Kempten, and until the beginning of this century was chiefly celebrated as a printing establishment, having its quarters in the royal residence at Kempten, and being run by foremen and overseers who, every year, were obliged to report to the reigning abbot-prince, and submit their accounts, which also covered the administration of a large paper-mill in Hegge, near Kempten. These overseers had a fixed salary, and were considered royal officers. One of them, Josef Kösel, after the secularization of the royal Abbey of Kempten in 1800, came into possession of the business in 1805. One of his heirs, Nikolaus Bail, inherited the business in 1825, and after his death in 1833 it came into the hands of his business manager, Johann Huber, of whom the present head, Ludwig Huber, is a direct descendant. His reign began in 1879, and since then the business has assumed much greater proportions. He has erected a magnificent building, and introduced all the latest improvements in presses and machinery. The specialties of the firm are Roman Catholic books of devotion, which it turns out in incredible quantities at fabulously low prices. The young son of the proprietor made the address of the day. The heads of the various branches of the business all greeted their chief with appropriate speeches. Mr. Frederick Pustet, of Regensburg, a brother-in-law of Mr. Huber, and senior of the house represented in this country, was present at the festival and contributed 1200 marks to a newly created pension fund for the employees of the Kösel establishment. A great dinner, attended by all the important citizens and representatives from many publishing houses, was the chief feature of the day. All the employees were also given a sumptuous repast.

MACMILLAN & CO.'S NEW BOOKS.

JUST PUBLISHED. PROF. J. NORMAN LOCKYER'S NEW AND IMPORTANT WORK.

THE DAWN OF ASTRONOMY:

A STUDY OF THE TEMPLE WORSHIP AND MYTHOLOGY OF THE ANCIENT EGYPTIANS.

With numerous illustrations and full-page plates. By J. NORMAN LOCKYER, F.R.S., author of "The Meteoritic Hypothesis," "The Chemistry of the Sun," etc. Royal 8vo, $5.00.

. In this work the author embodies the result of attempts he has recently made to ascertain "the early astronomical views of the Egyptians by a study of their temples, and the mythology connected with the various cults." Full of striking fact and suggestion in what is a new field of inquiry, it appeals alike to the student of astronomy, archæology, and mythology, as well as to readers taking only a general interest in these subjects.

* * At no time since the publication of this book, although edition after edition has come from the press, have the publishers been able to supply the demand for this remarkable volume. It is without question the great success of the year.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING CO., 31 East 17th St. (Union Square), New York.

TWO important handbooks for the Bookseller.

ORDER NOW:

ANNUAL CATALOGUES, 1893.

The Annual American Catalogue for 1893 contains:

- (1) Directory of American Publishers issuing books in 1893.
- (2) Full-title Record, with descriptive notes, in author-alphabet, of all books recorded in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, 1893.
- (3) Author-, title-, and subject-index to same in one alphabet.
- (4) Publishers' annual lists for 1893.

The edition is limited, and to secure copies orders should be sent at once. The price is $3.50 half leather; $3.00 in sheets.

The Annual Catalogue for 1886 and 1887 is now out of print. But few copies of the Annual Catalogue for 1888, 1889, 1890 and 1891 are on hand.

We also supply the English Catalogue for 1893, price $1.50, paper; the Annual American and English Catalogues, 1892, can be had in one volume, half leather, $5.00.

NEARLY READY:

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX, ...1893...

INCLUDING PERIODICALS, AMERICAN AND ENGLISH, ESSAYS, BOOK-CHAPTERS, ETC.,
SPECIAL BIBLIOGRAPHIES AND NECROLOGY OF AUTHORS.

EDITED BY W. I. FLETCHER and R. R. BOWKER,

With the co-operation of members of the American Library Association and of the Library Journal staff.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1893 complements the "Annual American Catalogue" of books published in 1893 by indexing (1) articles in periodicals published in 1892; (2) essays and book-chapters in composite books of 1892; (3) authors of periodical articles and essays; (4) special bibliographies of 1892; (5) authors deceased in 1892. The two volumes together make a complete record of the literary product of the year.

The new volume includes the features of the "Co-operative Index to Periodicals," originally a monthly supplement to the Library Journal, then extended into a quarterly in an enlarged form, and later issued as an annual volume.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1893 forms the second supplement both to the new five-yearly volume (1887-1891) of Poole's Index to Periodical Literature and to the new A. L. A. Index to essays and book-chapters of Mr. Fletcher.

The new volume will more than fulfil the opinion as to the Co-operative Index expressed in the following extract:

"To the literary worker its value can hardly be over-estimated; to the specialist in any branch of science or letters it is indispensable, since it places within his immediate reach many of the latest fruits of labor in the same field. To every one who desires to be well informed it furnishes the means of making the most effective use of his time."—Providence Press.

One vol., cloth, (uniform with "A. L. A. Index,") $3.50.

Early orders for the above are solicited.

* SPECIAL NOTICE *

Sale of the Valuable American Historical Library OF THE HON. FREDERICK BOURQUIN, OF CAMDEN, N. J.

CATALOGUE (PART I) NOW READY.

Embracing Histories of the States, Histories of Cities, Towns, and Counties, American Church History, American Revolutionary History, Works relating to Arnold and Andre, American Genealogies, Early American Bibles, Prayer and Hymn Books, Travels and Explorations in the United States, and Washingtoniana, and will be sold by STAN. V. HENKELS at the Book Auction Rooms of THOS. BIRCH'S SONS, 1110 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa., Wednesday and Thursday, February 14 and 15, 1894. Afternoons at 2:30 o'clock. Evenings at 8 o'clock.

Catalogues can be had of Francis P. Harper, 17 East 16th Street, New York, J. S. Bradley, Jr., No. 1 Pine Street, New York, or by addressing Stan. V. Henkels, 1110 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Note.—This library was formed by Mr. Bourquin during the last sixty-five years, and he enjoys to-day the distinction of being the last living pioneer collector. He did not devote his attention to collecting early printed books (although in his peregrinations he gathered together not a few early American imprints, some of which appear in this catalogue), but more generally to obtain the histories of the various States, Counties, Towns, etc., of this country, also material connected with the Revolutionary War, Wars of 1812, 1848, and the late Rebellion, American Travels and Explorations, Indian History, Biographies, Genealogies, the best work on Ornithology, etc., and we can truthfully say that this is really the best and most useful American Historical Library that has ever come under our observation, and will afford an opportunity to collectors and librarians to obtain many volumes that will seldom, if ever, be offered in this way again.

Part 2 of the Catalogue is now being prepared, and will include the Books Relating to the War of the Rebellion, War of 1812, Mexican War, Early Indian History, General American History, Ornithology, etc. Those desiring same will send address to Stan. V. Henkels.

Rare Autograph Letters and Historical Papers.

THE WELL-KNOWN COLLECTION OF THE LATE

COL. CHAS. C. JONES, OF AUGUSTA, GA.,

Will be sold by STAN. V. HENKELS, at the Book Auction Rooms of THOS. BIRCH'S SONS, Philadelphia, about the middle of April.

It was our intention to make this sale in February, but in preparing the material for catalogue we have become so impressed with the importance of the collection that we find we could not do justice to the estate by having the catalogue ready before April. Some idea of the value of the collection can be obtained when we mention a full set of the Signers to the Declaration of Independence, full set of the Members of the Constitutional Convention, nearly a full set of the Presidents and Members of the Continental Congress, full set of the Presidents and Vice-Presidents of the United States, full set of the Rulers and Governors of Georgia, many important letters of the Revolutionary Generals, Early and Revolutionary Broadides. Many of the above letters are of the utmost historical importance. Also an exceedingly interesting collection of Rare American Portraits, Views, Maps, etc., including several fine Ivory Miniatures of Revolutionary Characters.

Those desiring Catalogue will send name and address to Stan. V. Henkels, Philadelphia, Pa.

Rare Books

AND CHOICE EDITIONS OF THE STANDARD AUTHORS IN FINE BINDINGS,

Embracing a Full Set of the First Editions of the Novels and Tales of CHARLES DICKENS and
WM. M. THACKERAY,

THE LIBRARY OF A GENTLEMAN OF PHILADELPHIA,

Will be sold about the latter end of February by STAN. V. HENKELS.

Send name and address for Catalogue, and mention for what sale, to Stan. V. Henkels, Philadelphia, Pa.

TWO NOTEWORTHY BOOKS.

Nineteenth Thousand.

Authorized American Edition Reprinted from the 16th English Edition.

SHIPS THAT PASS IN THE NIGHT.

A Novel. By BEATRICE HARRADEN. 16mo, $1.00.

"Ships that pass in the night, and speak each other in passing,
Only a signal shewn, and a distant voice in the darkness;
So, on the ocean of life, we pass and speak one another,
Only a look and a voice, then darkness again and silence."

"Ships that pass in the night has made its success by purely legitimate methods. . . . The author has a story to tell, a theory to work out, a belief to impart, and that is all—except the important item that she is a good writer, keen and wise in observation and style, liberal and sympathetic in temperament. . . . I sat up half the night to finish the book."—JEANNETTE L. GILDER in the World.

Fourth Thousand.

THE RELIGION OF A LITERARY MAN.

By RICHARD LE GALLIENNE. 12mo, $1.00.

"Mr. Le Gallienne has produced a book well worth reading, particularly (so at least we should say) by those who are most disposed to differ with him. . . . The author treats of the hereafter with great courage, and says a good many things well worthy of the utmost attention. . . . The book is certainly a remarkable one, and we urge our readers not to trust to any second-hand account, but to make themselves acquainted with its contents by the ancient method of perusal."—London Speaker.

"Probably the sunniest book on religion ever published."—London Star.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS, New York and London.

issued November 13, will be mailed on application.

WORKED A YEAR.YOUR LAST CHANCE TO PROFIT BY IT.

The "Catalogue of all American Paper-Covered Books," on which work has been in progress for a year, is now about completed, and will within a month go into the printer's hands, and all who wish a copy and have not entered their name for it should do so at once. The edition is limited, as has been heretofore announced, and only those actually subscribed for now will be published.

This Catalogue will be as complete as it is possible to make such a book, and will embrace in exact alphabetical order every paper-covered book published and in print in America, as well as a great many imported into this country and kept in stock by American agencies of various English publishers. Each book will be entered in the Catalogue twice, under its full title and under the author's name, so you can find out all about any book if you know the title or who wrote it.

It will contain full and correct title, with author's name, name of publisher, name of "library" or "series" in which it is published, its serial number and the retail price of all obtainable paper-covered books, as stated above. Even if a book is published by several publishers, all editions will be given, so the most profitable or otherwise preferable can be ordered.

(An annual supplement will be published, giving for a few cents easy access to all later books.)

Price of the Catalogue, properly bound in flexible cloth, with patent index cut in the edges, $3.50.

The same, Interleaved edition, many blank pages for future entries, if you care to keep it up to date, $5.00.

DISCOVERY OF LAKES RUDOLF AND STEFANIE:

A Narrative of Count Samuel Teleki's Exploring and Hunting Expedition in Eastern Equatorial Africa in 1887 and 1888. By his companion, Lieutenant LUDWIG VON HÖHNEL. Translated by Nancy Bell (N. D'Anvers), author of "Heroes of African History," "Art Guide to History," etc., etc. With 179 original illustrations and 5 colored maps giving route of expedition, altitudes of camping-places, mountains, etc., nature of surrounding country, etc. 2 vols., 8vo, $12.00.

LEONIDAS POLK, Bishop and General.

By WILLIAM M. POLK, M.D., LL.D. With 4 maps in the text and 5 folders, 2 full-page illustrations, and 4 steel plates. In 2 vols., crown 8vo, cloth, gilt top, $4.00.

"Perhaps our Civil War had on neither side a more interesting and picturesque figure than Bishop Leonidas Polk, who throughout the greater part of the war was one of the Confederate military leaders. . . . The career of General Polk has found a worthy memorial in the biography by his son. Many interesting glimpses of the war and of war days are to be found in these volumes."—N. Y. Times.

Eight Lectures on the Early History and Origin of the Doctrine of Biblical Inspiration. By the Rev. W. SANDAY, M.A., D.D., LL.D., Dean Ireland's Professor of Exegesis, Fellow of Exeter College, Oxford. 8vo, $4.00.

The present publishing season has at least produced one really remarkable and valuable book in Dr. Sanday's Bampton Lectures. It is in substance an answer to the question, "What is the Bible and what are we to think of it?" . . . A really good book such as this, on such a subject, is sure to be read by theologians and the clergy. We trust it will be pressed upon the attention of students in theological colleges, for its position is one they should at least understand.

COPIES ONLY

remain, and the price, as per previous notice, is now raised to $20 in half morocco binding, and $17.50 in paper. The type is destroyed, and no more can be printed. When the supply on hand has been reduced to copies the price will be raised to $25 in half morocco and $20 in paper. Any library, bookseller, or collector who has not a copy should order before it is too late.

A few copies still remain of the Subject Volume of the American Catalogue for 1876, which we will supply for $12.50 in paper and $15 in half morocco. This is of especial value in libraries and book-stores which cannot now buy the Author Volume, as, except novels, juveniles, etc., it gives the same books, re-arranged by subjects. The price on this work also will presently be raised.

NOTES IN SEASON.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will soon issue a work entitled "Cartier to Frontenac," by Justin Winsor; "A Poet's Portfolio," by W. W. Story; and "In Exile, and other stories," by Mary Hallock Foote.

MACMILLAN & Co. announce a thorough revision and working over of William Winter's older biography, under the title of "The Life and Art of Joseph Jefferson;" also, "Social Evolution," by Benjamin Kidd.

THE BURROWS BROTHERS COMPANY, Cleveland, O., have in preparation a reprint of the Lincoln and Douglas debates. Only 750 copies will be printed from type on hand-made paper, at a net price of $2.50 to subscribers.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish this month the second volume of the Pasquier memoirs. The period treated of is the most eventful and dramatic in Napoleon's career—from 1812 to 1814, inclusive. They have in press a "Chess Pocket Manual," by G. H. D. Gossip, the English authority on the game. It is written for adepts as well as beginners.

HOWARD LOCKWOOD & Co. will be ready shortly to supply "The American Dictionary of Printing and Bookmaking" in one volume complete. This exhaustive and, typographically also, truly magnificent work, which has consumed years of labor, and required a large investment of capital, consists of six hundred pages, profusely illustrated, and comprises all that is known of the art from the earliest to the present time—technical, historical, and biographical. The price will be $12 a copy, delivered.

ROBERT CLARKE & Co. have published for the Filson Club the eighth of its publications, under the title of "The Centenary of Louisville." This historical essay by the president, Mr. Reuben T. Durrett, was read in 1880 before the Southern Historical Association, but was printed only in an abbreviated form. It is now expanded with notes and appendices, and forms a starting-point for the municipal history. There are portraits of the author, of La Salle, and of Gen. George Rogers Clark, the founder of the city.

THE CENTURY COMPANY will publish in April Oscar S. Straus' "Roger Williams, the Pioneer of Religious Liberty." It has occupied Mr. Straus' attention ever since his return from his post as minister to Turkey. He has collected from all sources, at home and abroad, historical data which would throw additional light on the life of Williams. Mr. Straus' first book, "The Origin of the Republican Form of Government," might be, in a measure, considered as an introduction to the "Roger Williams," since the latter work will not be alone of biographical value, but will show that the liberty of conscience which we enjoy in the United States is in no small measure due to Williams.

J. SELWIN TAIT & SONS will issue on February 21 "Sandow: his system of physical training and professional career," a study in the perfect type of the human form, compiled under the athlete's directions by Captain G. Mercer Adam. The imprint of the publishers is sufficient guarantee that this will not be a sensational volume on the exploits of a "strong man" in his contests for championship, but a scientific treatise on the plan and methods by which Sandow has developed himself from a slender, almost delicate boy into one of the strongest and most proportionately developed men of whom the modern world has heard. The volume deals scientifically though popularly with the physiology of bodily exercise, and describes a system which should be used to advantage in all our schools and colleges. The book will be illustrated with 100 half-tone pictures and 150 marginal line engravings, and will form a sumptuous and practical volume on athletics in general, while incidentally mentioning the most notable incidents in Sandow's life of training for mind and body.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Mr. Angell is president of the American Humane Education Society, the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Annual American catalogue, 1893: being the full titles, with descriptive notes, of all books recorded in The Publishers' Weekly, 1893, with author, title, and subject index, publishers' annual lists, and directory of publishers. [Fourth supplement to the American Catalogue, 1884-90.] N. Y., Office of The Publishers' Weekly, 1894. c. 18+216+146 p. O. hf. leath., $3.50. [345]

Contains 5134 titles arranged in alphabetical order, being 272 more titles than were embraced in any previous annual; nearly 3000 of these titles are annotated. The list of publishers is larger than in former volumes.

Ayres, Alfred, [pseud. for T: Embley Osmun.] The orthoëpist: a pronouncing manual, containing about four thousand five hundred words, including a considerable number of the names of foreign authors, artists, etc., that are often mispronounced. New rev. enl. ed. of 1894. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. '80, '94. 292 p. S. cl., $1. [346]

About one thousand new words have been added to this new edition of a work generally accepted as an authority by schools and readers.

Ballard, Tilghman E., and Emerson, E., eds. The annual on the law of real property; being a complete compendium of real estate law, embracing all current case law, carefully selected, thoroughly annot., and accurately epitomized, [etc.] V. 2, 1893. Crawfordsville, Ind., The Ballard Pub. Co., [1894] c. 851 p. O shp., $6.50. [347]

Baring-Gould, Sabine. Cheap Jack Zita. N. Y., J. Selwin Tait & Sons, 1894. c. '93. 2+402 p. il. D. cl., $1.25. [348]

The Isle of Ely, or Cambridgeshire Fens, the scene of this story, is north of the county of that name, cut off from the rest of England by the river Ouse. The life of this out-of-the-way spot is as peculiar as its men, the "fen-tigers" as they are called. "Zita" had travelled all her short life in a van with her father, a "Cheap Jack," who had sold "bargains" at all the fairs in England. Accident brings them to the fens, where the poor "Cheap Jack" dies. "Cheap Jack Zita," as the natives name the daughter, becomes part of the fen life, witnesses a murder, is loved by two men, and acts in trying emergencies as a brave, unselfish girl.

Barrett, Frank. The woman of the iron bracelets. N. Y., J. Selwin Tait & Sons, [1894.] c. '93. 5+433 p. D. cl., $1. [349]

A young girl who had been confined for years in a private asylum for nervous diseases, through the sinister designs of her guardian, escapes in an ingenious way; a young man who assists her in her flight is found dead in his hansom and the girl is arrested for murder; in being taken to London by the police with the "iron bracelets" on her wrists, the train collides with another and the girl is supposed to have lost her life, and her body burned. To clear up the mystery of these events, and to bring out the true story of the young girl, requires many chapters of details. Another story is entwined with that of the heroine, in which through the aid of hypnotism, a villain works many vile acts.

Black, W: The penance of John Logan, and two other tales. New [uniform] and rev. ed. N. Y., Harper, 1893 [1894.] 4+311 p. D. cl., 80 c. [350]

The other tales are "Romeo and Juliet, a tale of two young fools," and "A snow idyll."

Blunt, J. Y. Mason. Maxims for training remount horses for military purposes. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 2+32 p. sq. T. cl., 50 c. [351]

Compiled and condensed from various text and drill books in use in this and other countries; the aim has been to select and present in a concise form "the most essential points to be borne in mind by those engaged in transforming the remount horse as we receive him into the troop horse as he should be."

Botta, Mrs. Anne C. L. Memoirs of Anne C. L. Botta, written by her friends, with selections from her correspondence and from her writings in prose and poetry. N. Y., J. Selwin Tait & Sons, 1894. c. '93. 14+459 p. por. O. cl., $3.50. [352]

Opens with a biographical sketch by Mrs. S. M. C. Ewer, in which the principal events of Mrs. Botta's life are recorded. Following are many tributes to her memory in the form of letters written after her death from intimate friends to the editor, which recall her gifted personality through many interesting details and anecdotes. To these have been added selections from Mrs. Botta's own letters, some of her poems, and letters written to her by distinguished people. Mrs. Anne C. Lynch Botta died in New York City in 1891; for over a half a century she had been a conspicuous figure in N. Y. literary circles, drawing around her the great writers and famous people of all countries. She was distinguished as a teacher, author, and artist. A limited edition printed on Holland paper, gilt top, and untrimmed edges.

Briggs, Franklin H. Boys as they are made, and how to remake them: a paper read before the Unity Club, Rochester, N. Y. Syracuse, N. Y., C. W. Bardeen, 1894. 4+42 p. O. pap., 25 c. [353]

Burrill, Alex. M. A treatise on the law and practice of voluntary assignments for the benefit of creditors, adapted to the laws of the various states, with an appendix of forms; rev. and enl. by Ja. L. Bishop. 6th ed. rev. and enl. and an appendix of state statutes added by Ja. Avery Webb.

* In this list, the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk, and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

- N. Y., Baker, Voorhis & Co., 1894. c. '93. 63+755 p. O. shp. net, $6. [354]
- Carpenter, Mrs. W. Boyd. Fragments in baskets. N. Y., J. Selwin Tait & Sons, 1894. c. '93. 4-223 p. il. D. cl., $1. [355]
 "In words of fancy I have tried to gather some fragments of truth," so says the writer. She offers twelve imaginative sketches, each containing a lesson or message, under the titles of "The anchor of the soul," "The battle of the books," "Be still and know," "The light of love," "In ways that we know not," "Only a drop of water," "For the Master's use," "The sparrow and the cuckoo's egg," etc., etc.
- Carr, W: Wilkins. The judicial interpretation by the U. S. courts of the acts of Congress relating to the tariff. Phil., T. & J. W. Johnson & Co., 1894. c. 7+631 p. O. shp., $5.50. [356]
- Cherbuliez, Victor. A Phidian horse: art and archæology on the Acropolis; from the French by Elizabeth Hill Bissell Roberts. Phil., for sale by J: Wanamaker, 1893 [1894.] 331 p. il. sq. S. cl., $1. [357]
 By a thread of story the characters are transported to Athens; the book is an artistic fantasy upon Greek art and Greek thought, for which the frieze upon the Parthenon furnishes the keynote. It was first published in 1860, and was the foundation-stone of Cherbuliez's reputation as a novelist, who was always remarkable for accurate scholarship and vivid imagination.
- Cheyney, E: P. The mediæval manor; translation of a typical extent. Phil., American Acad. of Political and Social Science, [1894.] 75-91 p. O. (Publications of the society, no. 101.) pap., 15 c. [358]
 An "extent" is a description and estimate of the area and value of the manor, including a list of the tenants, with their holdings, rents, and services, compiled on the testimony of a sworn jury of inhabitants of the manor. It gives an insight into the life and organization of the mediæval manor, the normal, habitual life of the vast proportion of Englishmen during the Middle Ages, as indeed of other nations also in the same period.
- Cicero, Marcus Tullius. Lælius: a dialogue on friendship; ed. with notes, vocabulary, and biographical index by E. S. Schuckburgh. New ed. rev and enl., for use in American colleges, by H: Clark Johnson. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. c. '93. 216 p. S. (Elementary classics.) cl., 40 c. [359]
- Clark, A. Arnold. Beneath the dome: a novel. Chic., The Schulte Pub. Co., 1894. c. 361 p. por. O. cl., $1.25. [360]
 A story of social and political life, with the scene laid in Detroit; the corruption in the legislature of Michigan is strongly dwelt upon, and the unfairness of the Michigan state law under which men seeking work away from home may be cast into jail as vagrants is pointedly illustrated. Actual instances of corruption have been used by the author in his story. He believes that private ownership in land is at the root of all industrial troubles, and brings this idea out in his work. Mr. Clark was born in Michigan; this was his first novel; he died before it was published. It is said to embody many of the events of his own short but notable life.
- Cook, Albert S. A first book in old English: grammar, reader, notes, and vocabulary. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1894. c. 10+314 p. D. cl., $1.60. [361]
 For those who are beginning the study of our language, or who desire to acquaint themselves with a few specimens of our earliest literature.
- Cook, W: W. A treatise on stock and stockholders, bonds, mortgages, and general corporation law, as applicable to railroad, banking, insurance, manufacturing, [etc.,] and other private corporations. 3d ed. Chic., Callaghan & Co., 1894. c. 2 v., 207+894; 5+895-2068 p. O. shp., $12.50. [362]
- Cooke, Mordecai Cubitt. Romance of low life amongst plants, facts, and phenomena of cryptogamic vegetation. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., 1893 [1894.] 7+320 p. il. O. cl., $1.50. [363]
- Corwin, Arthur M., M.D. Outline of physical diagnosis of the thorax. Chic., W. T. Keener Co., 1893 [1894.] c. '93. 3+111 p. S. flex. cl., $1. [364] Presents in systematic form the gist of the science of physical diagnosis as applied to the thorax.
- Cowley, T: S. The law of strikes, lockouts, and labor organizations. Wash., D. C., W. H. Lowdermilk & Co., 1894. c. '93. 14+377 p. O. shp., $4. [365]
- Crosby, Howard, D.D. At the Lord's table: thoughts on communion and fellowship. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., 1894. c. 127 p. S. cl., 60 c. [366]
 Themes for meditations during the communion service.
- Curtis, G: W: Orations and addresses of George William Curtis; ed. by C. Eliot Norton. V. 2, Addresses and reports on the reform of the civil service of the United States. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 5+525 p. O. cl., $3.50. [367]
 The volume opens with an address on civil service reform, delivered in New York, October, 1889, which is followed by reports made to the President in 1871 and 1872, by the Civil Service Commission and the Advisory Board of Civil Service; then follow a number of addresses delivered in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Buffalo, on "The relation between morals and politics, illustrated by the civil service system," "Machine politics and the remedy," "The spoils system and the progress of civil service reform," "The reason and result of civil service reform," "Promises and performances," "Ten years of reform," and "Party and patronage;" to which is added a comprehensive index.
- Cutts, E: Lewes. History of early Christian art. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., 1893 [1894.] 16+368 p. il. pl. O. (Side-lights of church history.) cl., $2.50. [368]
- Davis, J: P. The Union Pacific railway: a study in railway politics, history, and economics. Chic., S. C. Griggs & Co., 1894. c. 3-247 p. maps, O. cl., $2. [369]
 The complete history of the Union Pacific Railway, beginning with its inception in 1832; shows how localism and sectionalism defeated Congressional action from 1845 to 1860; the action of Congress from 1861 to 1864, when the charter acts were signed by Lincoln; the building of the road, completed in 1869; the history of the Credit Mobilier; the action of the Treasury Department; the proceedings in the U. S. courts under the Thurman Act; and a discussion of the various plans proposed for the settlement of the question. Maps showing the various routes proposed and their terminals and official statistics accompany the work.
- Dawson, Sir J: W: Some salient points in the science of the earth. N. Y., Harper, 1894. 8+499 p. il. D. cl., $2. [370] Contains much that is new and much in correction and amplification of that which is old; is intended as a closing deliverance on some of the more important questions of geology. Chapters on "The starting-point," "World-making," "The history of the North Atlantic," "The dawn of life," "The growth of coal," "The oldest air-breathers," "The great ice age," "Man in nature," with others equally interesting and instructive. References are made at the close of each chapter to other works on the subject, for further reading.
- Demarest, Theo. F. C. The rise and growth of elevated railroad law. N. Y., Baker, Voorhis & Co., 1894. c. 11+278 p. O. shp., $3.50. [371]
- Denison, C:, M.D. Climates of the United States in colors. Popular ed. of Denison's charts, with additions. Chic., The W. T.

Keener Co., 1893 [1894.] c. 47 p. maps. O. (Denison ser.) cl., $1. [372]

Twelve charts and eleven tables, presented as a condensed and handy substitute for eleven bulky volumes of U. S. Signal Service Bureau's annual reports; they illustrate and give the percentages of cloudiness; descriptions of annual and seasonal weather data; predictions of weather, humidity statistics, etc.

Dodge, C: Wright. Introduction to elementary practical biology: a laboratory guide for high school and college students. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 23+422 p. D. cl., $1.80. [373]

"The guide consists essentially of questions on the gross and minute structure and on the physiology of a series of common animals and plants which are typical of their kind—questions which can be answered only by actual examination of the specimen or by performance of the experiment. Directions are given for the collection of specimens, for their preservation, and for preparing them for examination, also for performing simple physiological experiments."—Preface. A classified list of literature (15 pages) is given, which the student may consult after having finished the study of each organism: glossary and index. Author is professor of biology in the University of Rochester.

Dodgson, C: L., ["Lewis Carroll," pseud.] Sylvie and Bruno, concluded; il. by Harry Furniss. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 30+423 p. D. cl., $1.50. [374]

The sequel to Sylvie and Bruno, like the preceding story, is written in a style resembling "Alice's adventures in Wonderland," excepting that there are innovations in addition to the imaginative experiences of the two dream-children whose puns, quaint sayings, and strange adventures are quoted for the delight of young readers. Many subjects of deep and current interest to older readers are discussed.

Doyle, A. Conan. Memoirs of Sherlock Holmes. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. '93, '94. 5+281 p. il. D. cl., $1.50. [375]

An interesting series of detective stories, in which Sherlock Holmes is seen as a student of crime, who undertakes to unravel only such mysteries as have baffled the police or have otherwise proved inexplicable. Among the twelve stories are the following: "The adventure of the Beryl coronet," "Silver blaze," "The stock-broker's clerk," "The gloria Scott," "The crooked man," and "The Greek interpreter."

Emerson, Albert W. Composition and criticism: a manual for the aid of teachers and pupils in easy work; with one thousand composition subjects grouped according to the grade of the pupils. Syracuse, N. Y., C. W. Bardeen, 1893 [1894.] 2-82 p. S. bds., 40 c. [376]

Eschstruth, Nataly v., (Baroness.) Countess Dynar; or, Polish blood: a novel; from the German; tr. by Cora Louise Turner; il. by Ja. Fagan. N. Y., Rob. Bonner's Sons, 1894. c. '89, '94. 4-367 p. D. (Lodger lib., no. 102.) cl., $1.25; pap., 50 c. [377]

Count Gustav Adolph Dynar, living on the German side of the borderland between Germany and Poland, adopts under peculiar circumstances the son of a Polish refugee. In later years the Countess Dynar takes exception to her father's action and questions the right of the Pole to her family titles. On the action of Janek Proczna at this juncture is dependent the interest of a sensational love-story.

Federal reporter, v. 57; cases argued and determined in the circuit courts of appeals and circuit and district courts of the U. S. Permanent ed. Oct.-Dec., 1893, with tables of federal reporter cases published in v. 4, C. C. A. reports; 1, U. S. appeals reports. A table of statutes construed is given in the index. St. Paul, West Pub. Co., 1894. c. 32+1105 p. O. (National reporter system, U. S. ser.) shp., $5. [378]

Fortier, Alcée. Louisiana studies: literature, customs, and dialects; history and education. New Orleans, La., F. F. Han-

Pt. 2, Customs and superstitions in Louisiana; The Creole dialect; The Academics of Louisiana and their dialect; The Isles of Louisiana and their dialect. Pt. 3, War-times (1861-1865). A brief history of education in Louisiana. These papers are all the fruit of original research; many have been issued in literary and scientific journals.

Gabriel, C: H., and Naylor, Rev. I., eds. Songs of the Pentecost for the forward gospel movement, international and interdenominational, adapted to all Christian gatherings, especially to aggressive revival work, Epworth League and Christian Endeavor conventions, and for social worship in the church. N. Y., G. Hughes & Co., 64 Bible House, [1894.] c. unp. D. cl., 30 c. [380]

Gould, A. C., ["Ralph Greenwood," pseud.] Modern American pistols and revolvers. New rev. ed. Bost., Bradlee Whidden, [1894.] c. '88, '94. 6+222 p. por. il. O. cl., $1.50. [381]

All the modern American pistols and revolvers are described and illustrated; there are also reports of tests of pistols and revolvers at all ranges, by the author and by the Ordnance Board of the government; sights used for the various kinds of shooting; ammunition for pistols and revolvers and their merits; directions for making ammunition; records of the performances with pistols and revolvers; diagrams of famous scores; portraits of the most famous American pistol and revolver shots, rules followed by shooting clubs, the U. S. Army, the U. S. Navy, and the National Guard.

Haldeman, Rev. I. M. Theosophy or Christianity, which? a contrast; with an introd. by T. De Witt Talmage. N. Y., Croscup Co., 114 Fifth Ave., [1894.] c. '93. 2-52 p. S. cl., 40 c. [382]

The substance of this little book was given in a sermon by the pastor of the First Baptist Church, New York City. It is an examination and a condemnation of theosophy.

Halévy, Ludovic. Parisian points of view; tr. by Edith V. B. Matthews; an introd. by Ja. Brander Matthews. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 15+195 p. por. D. (Odd number ser.) cl., $1. [383]

Nine short stories reflecting Parisian life, namely: "Only a waltz," "The dancing-master," "The circus charger," "Blacky," "The most beautiful woman in Paris," "The story of a ball-dress," "The insurgent," "The Chinese ambassador," and "In the express."

Hammond, Joseph. English nonconformity and Christ's Christianity. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., 1893 [1894.] 16+268 p. 12, cl., $2. [384]

Harraden, Beatrice. Ships that pass in the night. Authorized American ed. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. 7+235 p. S. cl., $1. [385]

The story takes place at Petershof, a winter resort for consumptives, in the Swiss mountains. The chief characters are Robert Allitsen, a rich young Englishman whose days are numbered, and Bernardine Holme, an intellectual young English girl, who has broken down under a strain of work in teaching, writing, etc. Their story is a simple, every-day one, the novelty being in the telling, and in the many shrewd and philosophical remarks of the writer, betraying a deep study of life and human nature. The apt title is taken from Longfellow—"Ships that pass in a night, and speak each other in passing," etc.

Hektoen, Ludvig, M.D. The technique of post-mortem examination. Chic., The W. T. Keener Co., 1894. c. '93. 8+172 p. il. O. cl., net, $2. [386]

"The subject of post-mortem examination has been considered with especial reference to the technique . . . prepared particularly for the guidance of the medical students who frequent the demonstrations in pathologic anatomy given by the author at the Cook County Hospital in Chicago."—Preface.

Herbert, G. Life of George Herbert of Bemerton. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., 1893 [1894.] 328 p. por. 8°, cl., $2. [387]

Hill, W. The first stages of the tariff policy of the United States. Balt., Md., American Economic Assoc., 1893 [1894.] c. 4-162 p. O. (Publications of the society, v. 8, no. 6.) pap., $1. [388]

Gives a history of colonial tariffs, of tariff legislation in the early days, and the opinions of statesmen of those times concerning a tariff.

Holmes, G. K. The peons of the south. Phil., American Acad. of Political and Social Science, [1894.] 65-74 p. O. (Publications of the society, no. 100.) pap., 15 c. [389]

The master of the cotton farmer is the merchant, to whom his crop is pledged often before the seed is put into the ground. The author urges upon the small cotton planter more economy in living and in methods of work, advises the planting of less cotton and the raising of his own supplies. His indebtedness for these makes him a slave to the merchant, and forces him to answer his demand for "more cotton," often to his own detriment.

Kettle, Rosa Mackenzie. Rose, shamrock, and thistle: a story of two border towers. [N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons,] 1893 [1894.] 286 p. D. cl., $2. [394]

An English rose and her lover, a soldierly Scotch thistle, have been parted for years, owing to prejudices among the parvies on both sides, the old inhabitants of the Border Towers. A gay young cousin, the Irish shamrock, drifts into the English home and proves a charm that rights old wrongs, makes sad lives bright, brings order into the chaos of the motherless household, and sets in their true perspective the special virtues of English, Scotch, and Irish character.

Rev. Isaac Errett was born in the city of New York, Jan. 2, 1830, and died in Cincinnati, Dec. 19, 1888. Few ministers in the west were more widely known or more warmly loved. He was a fine type of a self-made American. His story is most interestingly told in all its simple details. Many selections from his sermons and writings are included.

The scene of the novel opens in Chicago and afterwards shifts to a pretty little town about a hundred miles away. Joyce Mabie, the heroine, is brought under the influence of a socialistic idealist, and thinks she owes in his work for humanity the object which she requires to fill her own life. She writes an article on "The necessity of organized labor against capital," which has the effect of causing the "hands" of her lover's factory, who are out on a strike, to promptly fire the works and burn them to the ground. Her story after this is entirely connected with that of Paul Rodman, her lover.

Murray, D. Christie. In direst peril: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. '93. 3+303 p. D. cl., $1.25. [405]

After thirty-eight years of happy wedded life the husband writes the story of how he won his wife in the stormy days of 1847, when Garibaldi and Cavour were fighting the last war for Italian independence. The wife had never seen her father who, since her birth, had been a political prisoner for twenty years. The hero rescued the father and to frustrate a treacherous plot was obliged to steal £40,000 of his wife's money, which had fallen into the wrong hands. An exciting tale, in strict accordance with history.

The leading purpose in the preparation of this address was a discussion of the relations of the university library to university education. Mr. Poole wished to show "that the study of bibliography and of the scientific methods of using books should have an assured place in the university curriculum; that a wise and professional bibliographer should be a member of the faculty and have a part in training all the students; that the library should be his class-room, and that all who go forth into the world as graduates should have such an intelligent and practical knowledge of books as will aid them in their studies through life. . . ."

Exercises prepared for classes in high schools and other institutions of similar grade; they indicate in a general way the nature of the work that, in the judgment of the writer, should be undertaken with young people who are just beginning the systematic study of common forms of plant-life. They were suggested by frequent inquiries of teachers regarding the preparation in botany now required for admission to the University of Michigan, in which the author is professor of botany.

Strong, Ja. C. Wah-kee-nah and her people: the curious customs, traditions, and legends of the North American Indians. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1893 [1894.] c. 13+275 p. por. D. cl., $1.25. [422]

General Strong began to live among the Indians at the Pacific coast in 1850, and learned one of their languages, and for six years travelled with and among them, thus becoming thoroughly familiar with their folk-lore, habits, and home-life. The volume opens with a brief account of the relations of the white races with the Indians, which is not flattering to the former's claims to a superior civilization. The writer distinguishes between the various tribes along the northern parts of the continent, giving their history, characteristics, etc., the most attractive being the Mandans, whose traditions and appearance show that they are probably descendants of the Welsh voyager, Prince Madoc. The story of the Indian maiden "Wah-kee-nah" is very beautiful and romantic.

Wash., D. C., Government Print. Office, 1893 [1894.] 3-101 p. O. pap., n. p. [423]
Written by the author, who is professor of geology at the University of Vienna, Austria, vice-president of the Imperial Academy of Science, and member of the Austrian Parliament in the spring of 1892, when the deliberations concerning the introduction of the gold standard in Austria-Hungary began. It is an argument against an exclusive gold standard; bimetallicism is advocated as a transition measure; silver is the standard of the future.

Taft, L. R. Greenhouse construction: a complete manual on the building, heating, ventilating, and arrangement of greenhouses, and the construction of hotbeds, frames, and plant-pits. N. Y., Orange Judd Co., 1894. c. '93. 8+219 p. il. D. cl., $1.50. [424]
The immense quantities of vegetables and flowers now grown under glass for the winter markets of the large cities has given an impulse to the building of forcing houses and beds, and many changes and improvements have been made in their original construction, for the purpose of securing more sunlight, better heating, and closer adaptation to plant needs. These are fully described and illustrated in this timely volume.

Uncle Charley, (pseud.) The little old man: a story. Rochester, N. Y., C. W. Bardeen, [1894.] c. '93. 8-31 p. S. cl., 50 c. [428]

Nesby Kelly, the little heroine, is sent to her room as punishment for an act of disobedience, while thinking deeply of the illiberality of mamma in general, and her own in particular, she falls asleep and has a dream, which amusingly and also instructively delineates what would happen to a little girl who should have her own way in all things.

These two volumes supplement each other. The first one contains the directions to the pupils for performing his experiments, which are sufficient to prevent that aimless work so common among young experimenters, and yet not so full as to interfere with the inductive method. Each experiment is intended to illustrate some one truth, which is further enforced by the exercises. The second volume, the "Text-book," is quite similar to the ordinary text-book. It tells how the experiments should result. It gives the pupil a correct form of statement for the conclusions and laws which he has learned in a practical way. The two books are to be accompanied by a simple cheap apparatus for each pupil. Author is professor in Teachers' College, New York City.

Woolson, Constance Fenimore. Horace Chase: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 2+419 p. D. cl., $1.25. [432]

Asheville, North Carolina, and St. Augustine, Florida, as they were twenty years ago serve as the background to this novel. The motive is the marriage of Ruth Franklin, a young southern girl, to Horace Chase, a rich northerner, much her senior; in spite of his tenderness and care, she awakens one day to the knowledge that she does not love him. Her infatuation for another man is the destroying element in their domestic life. The Franklin family and their friends are cleverly and humorously presented. The power of northern energy and capital is incidentally shown.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

CLARK RUSSELL, JR. (son of the novelist), will shortly publish a novel, which, like his father's work, will deal with adventure at sea.

QUILLER-COUCH has just completed a short serial which will be published at an early date in one of the illustrated monthlies, and to which he has given the title of "The Bishop of Eucalyptus."

A MEMORIAL to Phillips Brooks will soon be placed in Westminster Abbey in the form of a beautiful mosaic representing the charge of the Saviour to Peter, "Feed My Sheep." Underneath will be a small tablet. The memorial will cost about £125, all of which has been subscribed. One of the subscribers was the late George W. Childs, of Philadelphia.

MISS JANOTHA, who was a great favorite of Lord Tennyson, and is no less of a favorite in royal circles, has finished an important work on Chopin, which will be published in London during the spring. The authoress has included some valuable lectures by an eminent Polish professor on the true interpretation of Chopin's works; but of greater importance will be the master's own "Method of Methods" for the piano, which has never before been published.

HENRY SAVAGE LANDOR, the author of the important work on the hairy Ainu recently published by the Murrays, is a grandson of the famous Walter Savage Landor. His father is Mr. Charles Savage Landor, a virtuoso living in Florence, where he has picked up a unique collection of Florentine antiquities and cinque cento pictures. His mother was an Italian.
Mr. Landor keeps up the family connection with Florence by having been born there. He was also educated in its university as an engineer. He can speak six or seven languages.

"A TALL, sea-bronzed man, wearing a slouch hat, often tied on with a handkerchief, and wrapped in a big cloak, walking with shuffling gait, hobnobbing with the beachmen, among whom he had his favorites, recipients of his bounty in boats and gear—everybody knew old Fitz by sight, and many called him 'dotty.'" For this portrait of Edward Fitzgerald, the author of the immortal paraphrase of the "Rubaiyât" of Omar Khayyâm, we are indebted to Mr.
Edward Clodd, who gathered it from the sailor-folk of Woodbridge, Lowestoft, and Aldeburgh, and has inserted it in an interesting sketch of the poet in The English Illustrated Magazine for February.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

FEBRUARY 10, 1894.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

CONDITION OF THE BOOK TRADE IN FRANCE.

AND now from France, too, where they are supposed to manage things much better than elsewhere, comes the news of an impending book crisis. Publishers and booksellers throughout France are nearly, and in some cases actually quite idle, with very little prospect of an immediate betterment of the condition. Strangely enough the difficulties are said to be mainly due to a collapse of fiction—a "krach du roman." For years French novels were turned out in feverish haste, and in numbers out of all proportion; and now the demand, as was inevitable, has collapsed abruptly and without warning. Mr. Albert Cim and others who have given the situation of authorship and publication in France careful attention claim that there are hardly six novelists who can count on receiving for their works a sum equal to or above 10,000 fr., or $2000. Writers like Zola and Daudet of course still take the lead in the exceptions to this rule, but the fact nevertheless seems to be that the earnings of the average writer of fiction are sinking with appalling rapidity.

M. Cim lately examined the books of a leading French publisher, and found that two-thirds of the accounts opened for works of fiction, verse, travel, domestic economy, and military science showed losses. From the same firm a successful novelist has received during five years for his author's rights about 16,000 fr., or a little over $600 yearly. The publisher has had only 5000 fr. profit for the five years. Here we have another confirmation of the statement, so often questioned by the thoughtless or oratorical author, that publishers do take risks and suffer losses oftener than they get credit for. It is true, notwithstanding contrary argument, that in many respects the publishing business, wherever it may be followed, is still one of speculation. However well his plans may be laid, or however well he may think to secure himself, a trifle sometimes overlooked may upset his carefully deliberated intentions, and may bankrupt that one venture at least. But M. Cim's statement needs no comment—it tells its own tale eloquently enough.

The cause of the crisis in the book trade, according to M. Cim, is three-fold. In the first place, people borrow books from friends, like a rich lady whom M. Cim describes, who finds means to read everything which appears without spending a sou. Secondly, young people often only cursorily peruse the newspapers nowadays, and do not read novels at all, their time being taken up fully by sports. In the third place, the writers themselves are taunted with being their own worst enemies. "Everybody wants to write. Lady scribes are on the increase, and, as Emile de Girardin said long ago: 'Feminine competition with men inevitably lowers profits.' Finally, it is pointed out that the overproduction and the economical exigencies of publishers have led to the issuing of hastily printed volumes full of errors and inaccuracies.

We fear that, however well grounded these explanations of causes may be, there is very little remedy for them. Borrowers and "the poor" we shall very likely always have with us, and the only consolation there may be is that where there are borrowers there must also be lenders—some of whom must be buyers. As for the second point, it is undoubtedly a fact that the newspapers are supplying many with reading-matter; but then the consolation here is that they are also creating readers, and so bookbuyers. The newspaper, as well as the public and circulating library, is not an enemy of the book trade, but one of its most valuable allies, in that it creates and educates the ultimate constituency of the latter. As for the third point, we doubt whether that could be defended. Ours is a writing age, and "woman's in it" with the man. She has come to fight for recognition in the field of literature, and "man to man" has succeeded fairly well; why then waste hard language over the inevitable? Besides, we are quite content to leave it with the public to winnow the talented from the incompetent writers—in time both will find their proper level, whatever adventitious means may have been called into requisition to temporarily elevate the latter.

It will be gratifying news to many that owing to the pressure brought to bear on them by representatives of the Commercial Travellers' Club a number of railroad companies are showing a disposition to concede the question of an increased allowance of baggage. Indeed, the prospects are that the question will be speedily and satisfactorily settled.

GEORGE W. CHILDS.

THE death of George W. Childs removes one more of the few remaining men who are able to tell the history of the American book trade as eye-witnesses in the days when Irving, Longfellow, Poe, Hawthorne, and Lowell were creating American literature. Mr. Childs suffered from a stroke of paralysis on January 18, and died on February 3 at his residence in Philadelphia, where his name is a household word and where he has for years been identified with the Public Ledger, of which he became proprietor in 1864.

G. W. CHILDS.

Reprinted with permission from the New York Sun.

George William Childs was born in Baltimore, May 12, 1829. He left school at the early age of twelve and became an errand-boy, then drifted into the United States Navy and spent fifteen months at Norfolk, Va. But the boy's tastes were commercial, and he lost interest in his work and returned to school again for a few months. When about fourteen he went to Philadelphia and entered the employ of P. Thomson, who kept a book-store at the corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, and there began his career as an errand-boy and clerk at $3 a week in the city where at his death he ranked among the wealthiest as well as most respected citizens. Mr. Childs early acquired a knowledge of the value of rare books and made himself invaluable to his employer by his knack at getting bargains at the evening book auctions then held in Philadelphia. When only eighteen he was sent by Mr. Thomson as representative to the book trade sales held every six months in New York and Boston. In this manner Mr. Childs formed his acquaintance with the leading publishers of that day—the Harpers, Appletons, Ticknor & Fields, Little & Brown, G. P. Putnam—many of whom were his life-long friends. About this time Mr. Childs had saved money enough to start a small book-shop (or, to be more correct, he started selling fruit and candies, and then added books and newspapers, the latter gradually absorbing all his attention), which he did in the old Public Ledger building, a location which fired his ambition and shaped his plan to one day be owner of that well-established newspaper. At the age of twenty-one (encouraged and backed by his life-long friend, A. J. Drexel), he entered into partnership with his father-in-law as a book publisher under the firm-name of R. E. Peterson & Co., which was later changed to Childs & Peterson. The firm hit upon some phenomenally successful books, partly owing to the timely material and in great measure to Mr. Childs' fine art in advertising—a method of pushing sales in which he always had unwavering faith. Dr. Kane, who had just returned from his heroic search for Franklin, had decided to write the story of his undertaking for scientists only, but at Mr. Childs' suggestion he wrote up his "Arctic Explorations" in a popular vein, and the book achieved so great a success that Dr. Kane was paid $70,000 on the copyright. Of "Parson Brownlow's Book," 50,000 were sold in advance of publication, and the sale of "Peterson's Familiar Science" ran up to a quarter of a million copies. Loosing's "History of the Civil War" and Bouvier's "Law Dictionary" also proved mines of wealth to the partners. Childs & Peterson also began the publication of Dr. Allibone's "Dictionary of British and American Authors," in which they invested $60,000. While this was under way Mr. Childs, in 1860, dissolved his partnership with Mr. Peterson and formed a new partnership with the late J. B. Lippincott, which, however, only lasted for a year.

Mr. Childs retired after the first volume of Allibone was issued, and the remaining two were published by J. B. Lippincott, whose firm has since added two supplementary volumes to this most important compilation. Mr. Childs is also identified with educational work for the publishing trade. He bought the American Publishers' Circular and Literary Gazette in 1863, which was incorporated with F. Leypoldt's Weekly Trade Circular in 1872, which in turn was re-christened THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY in 1873.

After his purchase of the Public Ledger in 1864, Mr. Childs devoted his best energies to it for many years with ever-increasing financial reward. Mr. Childs spent his money freely but with excellent judgment and with a strong leaning in his bequests to the interests of authors, publishers, printers, etc. In 1868 he and A. J. Drexel gave $10,000 to the International Typographical Union. From this nucleus grew the fund for the home for aged and invalid printers at Colorado Springs which was finished in 1892. To increase the fund the printers throughout the United States set 1000 cms once a year for its benefit. Those east of the Mississippi did this on Mr. Childs' birthday in May, those west of the great river on Mr. Drexel's birthday in September. Mr. Childs supplied the memorial windows to George Herbert and William Cowper in Westminster Abbey, one to Milton in St. Margaret's, Westminster, a memorial window to Moore in the church at Browham, contributed liberally towards the monument for Leigh Hunt in Kensal Green Cemetery, and erected a fountain to Shakespeare in Stratford-on-Avon. In this country he built a monument to Edgar Allan Poe, and had given orders to build one for Richard A. Proctor, whose body was recently removed to Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Among the latest of his public gifts was the fund for the erection of the "Prayer-Book Cross," near San Francisco, to mark the spot where Sir Francis Drake landed, and where the religious services in the English language were first held on the western shores of America. Mr. Childs was a firm advocate of co-operation between employer and employee, and always paid liberal wages to his workmen.

ALEXANDER AGAR—IN MEMORIAM.

AT a special meeting of the trustees of the Stationers' Board of Trade, held last month, the following resolutions were presented and unanimously adopted:

In the death of Alexander Agar the trade recognizes that one of its most prominent and useful members has been called away. Of alert mind and positive convictions, he was always ready to support his judgment by hard work, and contributed largely to the success of this organization, both in counsel and action.

Mr. Agar's personal record in business was signalized by industry, integrity, and success. No man ever lost a dollar through him. His manners were unusually engaging, attracting many personal friends. All such soon became familiar with the native simplicity of his character. He was almost childlike in his confidences, exhibiting warm affection for those who could sympathize with him.

But this amiable disposition did not in the least impair his strength for affairs. Mr. Agar was an earnest student of the laws of trade, quick to discover the tendencies of the times, and shrewd in his observations and deductions. It may be true that in later life the progress of some insidious disease imparted an unduly melancholy tinge to his predictions; yet it must at least be acknowledged that at the present time we have no occasion to plume ourselves that we were wiser than he. Widespread disaster and suffering reveal a condition of things even worse than he foresaw.

May his apprehensive spirit find rest, and may his friends, who will sadly miss him, be consoled by the thought that no more alarms or forebodings will disturb his soul.

We shall long remember Mr. Agar's handsome and youthful person; his frank, ingenuous address; his views, profound and consistent, often entertaining, and always commanding respect.

THE MS. OF THE BOOK OF THE AUTHORS' CLUB.

THE original manuscripts of "Liber Scripturum: the Book of the Authors' Club," have just come from the bindery, and are on exhibition at Tiffany's, Union Square. Every one of the 109 manuscripts has been inlaid, and the set bound up in three superb volumes, each 15½ inches high and 3 inches thick. The covering is crushed levant morocco, old red, with gilt edges. A glance at the contents is interesting and suggestive. It appears that the committee did not want uniformity, but requested each contributor to use such paper, ink, etc., as he is accustomed to use when writing for the press. The manuscripts are to be sold, in one lot, to the highest bidder.

REMOVAL OF THE ALDINE CLUB.

AT a meeting held on the 6th inst. at its club-house, at 20 Lafayette Place, the Aldine Club decided to remove to 75 Fifth Avenue. The removal will be made on March 1. The new club-house is a brown-stone dwelling two doors north of Fifteenth Street, on the east side of the avenue. Its new club-house, like the old, will be the scene of entertainments, of which "Story-Tellers' Nights" will continue to be the most characteristic.

BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION.

THE AUTHORS' READING.

THE second entertainment for the benefit of the reserve fund of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association, held at the Carnegie Music Hall on the 6th inst., was an unqualified success. The large hall was well filled from parquet to gallery with a fashionable and decidedly appreciative audience.

After an organ prelude by W. A. Corey, Mr. Richard Watson Gilder, who had kindly consented to act as presiding officer, advanced and in a few happy words introduced Gen. Lew Wallace, who read with much expression and clearness of diction that dramatic incident from "The Prince of India." "Sergius to the Lion." Mr. Gilder, when the reader had finished, introduced himself as the only reader of the evening who really needed an introduction and who had none to perform the office for him. He then read the "Reminiscence of the Funeral of Sherman," and followed it up with "A Poem About New York."

When Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, the author of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," came on the stage she was greeted by the strains of the old but ever-inspiring "As We Go Marching On" (played by the organist, Mr. Corey) and thunders of applause from the audience. Mr. Gilder made a few introductory remarks, and then Mrs. Howe read "A Dream on the Hearthstone." Upon its conclusion she said she would read something which she would not call a poem, but which was a thought put into verse. She had been looking at a clothes-line with clothes upon it one day and the thought had come to her that it was like a rosary. She then read, in a peculiarly touching and happy manner, "A Thought for Washing Day," which embodied her idea. "After the War," a war-time poem, was also read.

At this point Mr. Gilder made a pleasing diversion by inviting the audience in the gallery to come down into the lower tiers and orchestra and fill the seats that were unoccupied. After a short intermission George W. Cable read in his inimitable manner a delightfully humorous rendering of his "The School Examination at Grande Pointe," which received well-deserved applause. He was followed by John Kendrick Bangs, who read from unpublished manuscript two "Inventions of the Idiot" (a character well known to the readers of "Coffee and Repartee" in Harper's Bazar), entitled "A Poetry Clearing House" and "Social Expansion," full of "hits" and humor that kept his audience in an unbroken chuckle.

Paul du Chaillu and Wallace Bruce, who were down for readings, were unable to appear, the former because he had attended the funeral of his old friend George W. Childs, and was considerably unnerved, and the latter on account of illness.

The entertainment was closed by the reading of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" by Mrs. Howe.

It is estimated that the entertainment will contribute something like $1000 to the reserve fund. The programme prepared by W. J. Kelly called forth considerable comment and praise on account of its tasteful and artistic get-up. Indeed, the committee of arrangement—C. A. Burckhardt, Jos. F. Vogeli, John A. Holden, and W. J. Kelly—are to be congratulated.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

A NEW book trade journal has just been published by C. F. Müller, of Leipzig, under the title of Allgemeine Buchhändlerzeitung. This differs from the Börsenblatt in that it contains critical opinions and comments on literature of all kinds, as well as theatrical and art news. The editor is Emil Thomas.

THE New York Sun will publish in its issue for the 11th an important and interesting article by Herbert Spencer, giving his recollections of the late Professor Tyndall. The article is important, because it is the first that Mr. Spencer has ever contributed to a newspaper. Mr. Spencer was a long-time friend of Professor Tyndall, and his reminiscences of that distinguished man of science cannot fail to be of great interest and value, as well to those who are ignorant of his labors as to those acquainted with them.

Yellow Book is the title of a new literary and artistic quarterly magazine to be issued by Elkin Mathews and John Lane, of London. The first number is promised for April 15. It is to exactly resemble in its outward form a French novel, with a yellow and black cover designed by Aubrey Beardsley, who is to act as the art editor of the review. Its contents are to be made up of 320 pages of fiction, poetry, and criticism, but will differ from all existing reviews in that topics of the hour will be rigidly eschewed, the idea being to make the Yellow Book a volume which shall be as welcome to the book-shelves ten years hence as to-day. With this object in view, the editor, Henry Harland ("Sidney Luska"), will admit only such critical articles as deal with questions of permanent interest, while an attempt will be made to render the fiction the very best of its kind. The illustrations, which will be numerous, will not be an accompaniment to the letter-press, but will be works of art of entirely distinct value, and will stand by themselves as separate contributions to the number. The whole thing will certainly be an entirely original idea, and as such should receive encouragement and welcome.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOSTON, MASS.—Louis D. Brandeis, assignee for D. Lothrop Company, issued the following notice under date of January 30:

"A meeting of the creditors of the D. Lothrop Co. will be held at 364 Washington St., Room 4, Boston, on February 13, at 2 P. M. The committee appointed by the creditors at the last meeting will make its report."

"If this report is accepted by the creditors a dividend of about 50% will be payable on February 15, 1894, to all creditors who shall have assented to the assignment before that date."

"Such creditors shall also be entitled to the benefit of the transfer dated January 26, 1894, by the firm of D. Lothrop Co. to Mortimer B. Mason, chairman of the committee of creditors. By this instrument, James E. Lothrop, John C. Lothrop, and Mrs. Daniel Lothrop, in effect, consent that the payment to themselves of any dividend on their claims against the corporation, for money loaned, aggregating $106,000, shall be postponed until the other creditors who shall assent to the assignment have been paid in full. The instrument also transfers, for the benefit of such assenting creditors, valuable property belonging to the late firm of D. Lothrop Co., which does not form a part of the corporation's assets."

"All creditors who desire to avail themselves of the benefit of the assignment, and have not already done so, are requested to forward their assent thereto immediately, together with a statement of the amount of their claim."

BUFFALO, N. Y.—The stock of the Hawks book-store has been sold to Alfred L. Jenks.

CINCINNATI, O.—The Western Methodist Book Concern will erect a $40,000 building on Fourth Street.

DES MOINES, IA.—At the meeting of the creditors of Redhead, Norton & Lathrop Co. held in New York on January 26 H. T. Granger, who appeared for the debtors, made the following statement: Assets, $65,983.66, and liabilities, $97,440.36. Of the former there were in the hands of the bank or Mrs. Redhead: Wholesale accounts, $24,000; old city ledger, $77.10; old wholesale ledger, $258.40; old wall-paper ledger, $1200; Bicycle Company's stock, $1800; Whiting contract notes, $405. Of the latter there were preferred: Mrs. Redhead, $6741.62; Des Moines National Bank, $24,865.72; Taxes, $1500.95; E. P. McElwain, E. W. Carlton, for labor account, $73.55. Mr. Granger said that he was authorized to offer 20 per cent. cash. This caused some discussion, and the meeting finally agreed to accept 25 per cent. cash on secured notes. The meeting then adjourned to the 2d inst., at which time Mr. Granger appeared before the gathering and said that he could not meet the proposition and was only authorized to offer 25 per cent., 20 per cent. cash and 5 per cent. in the company's twelve months' note, unsecured. This the creditors declined to accept, but recommended the acceptance of an offer of 33 1/4 per cent., 20 per cent. cash and 13 1/4 per cent. in unsecured twelve months' notes, if it should be made.

GALESBURG, MICH.—I. N. Carson has purchased the book-store of E. A. Hawley.

GARDINER, ME.—Ed Buzzell has opened a book and stationery store at this place.

NEW YORK CITY.—The American Book Company has agreed to take the seven lower stories in the new building to be erected by the University of the City of New York, on the site of their old house on East Washington Square, with the understanding that no sign shall appear on the building. The three upper floors will be retained for university purposes. Work on the new building will be begun next May.

NEW YORK CITY.—Croscup & Co., successors to Richmond, Croscup & Co. have removed their publishing business to more commodious quarters at 114 Fifth Avenue.

NEW YORK CITY.—John E. Potter & Co., of Philadelphia, have opened a New York branch at 59 Fifth Avenue (the William Beverley Harrison building), and will from that office supply all New York orders.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Saalfeld Publishing Co. has been incorporated to publish books, sheet-music and music-books. Capital, $150,000, and directors: Richard A. Saalfeld, Aaron B. Cohn, and Albert R. Pecare, New York City.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—The St. Paul Book and Stationery Company has succeeded to the business of the late D. D. Merrill Co. The active members of the new firm are Daniel D. Merrill, Clarence H. Slocum, and Joseph H. Beck.

TEMPLE, TEX.—J. D. Roberts has purchased the J. W. Lee book and stationery store and will continue the business.

TIFFIN, O.—August Distelherst, bookseller, has assigned to George E. Schmitt. Assets, $3500; liabilities, $6000.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

C. E. HOPKINS is now with Koch, Sons & Co.

BLISS, SANDS & FOSTER, London, will publish at once Mrs. Macquoid's new novel, "In an Orchard," which has been revised and considerably enlarged since it appeared in serial form.

THE COMMONWEALTH PUBLISHING CO. (Charles P. Somerby), 28 Lafayette Place, have in press a new edition of "Bible Myths, and their parallels in other religions," which has been out of print for some time.

MR. J. FRED CLAUS, who for eighteen years was with Thomas Whittaker, has severed his connection with that house, owing to illness, and goes to Los Angeles, Cal., in search of health. He has the good wishes for recovery of his many friends in the trade.

SAMPSON LOW, MARSTON & Co. will publish before the end of this month "Glimpses of the French Revolution," by J. G. Alger, a resident in Paris, who has already written more than once about this period of history and the part played by Englishmen in France.

THE autobiographical sketch which Francis Parkman some years ago confided to Dr. George Ellis forms the most important paper in the forthcoming collections of the Massachusetts Historical Society. This sketch gives a graphic description of the difficulties under which Mr. Parkman carried through his historical work, and it has been made complete by the addition of portions of a second and later sketch prepared by the historian and given to Mr. Martin Brimmer.

WHAT we believe is the first authoritative statement about Mrs. Humphry Ward's new book appears in the current issue of the London Literary World: "The current reports about Mrs. Humphry Ward's new novel are unauthorized and incorrect. The book is in no sense a study of Socialism, though the background and atmosphere of the story are largely supplied by some of the social questions of the period which now come so practically home to each one of us. It is the history of a woman, and will be called by her name. It is expected that the new novel will have finally left the author's hands by the middle of February, and that it will be simultaneously published in England and America about the first week in April."

THE GROlier CLUB will publish this month a fac-simile of "The Laws and Acts of the General Assembly of the Province of New York," as published by William Bradford in 1694. This work will contain an exact fac-simile of the original edition, which is one of the rarest of the books printed in the middle colonies during the 17th century. A carefully written historical introduction, by Robert Ludlow Fowler, supplies much needed information as to the sources from which the colonial law-makers drew their authority, as well as the connection between this early body of law and subsequent legislation. Charles R. Hildeburn has prepared for this edition a bibliographical note of much importance, which fully describes all known copies of the original edition.

SWAN SONNENSCHN & Co. will publish immediately, in their Dilettante Series, a volume on the life and writings of Oliver Wendell Holmes, by Walter Jerrold. The book treats of the many-sided "Autocrat" under no fewer than five aspects. It must be remembered that Dr. Holmes has become famous as something more than poet and essayist. It is now considerable over half a century since he carried off three out of four medals offered at Boston for essays on medical subjects, so that, although the fame of the man of letters has overshadowed the fame of the man of science, the latter cannot properly be ignored in treating of Holmes' work, more especially as we find his scientific training and knowledge influencing his writing on well-nigh every page. Mr. Jerrold treats his subject "as Man" (a biographical sketch), "as Poet," "as Novelist," "as Autocrat," and "as Man of Science."

OBITUARY NOTES.

EDMOND FREMY, the French chemist and author of a number of monographs on chemistry and kindred subjects, died in Paris on the 3d inst., aged eighty years.

FREDERICK M. SOMERS, founder of the San Francisco Argonaut, Current Literature, and Short Stories, died in Southampton, Eng., on the 2d inst., aged forty-three years.

GEORGE CHAMPLIN MASON, author of Newport and Its Environs, "Newport Illustrated," "The Application of Art to Manufactures," "George Ready," "Newport and Its Cottages," "The Old House Altered," "The Life and Works of Gilbert Stuart," and "Reminiscences of Newport," died in Philadelphia on the 1st inst., aged seventy-four years.

REV. HENRY STAFFORD OSBORN, author of "Scientific Metallurgy of Iron and Steel in the United States," "The New Descriptive Geography of Palestine," "Manual of Bible Geography," "The Useful Minerals and Mining Architecture," "Biblical History and Geography," and others, died in New York City on the 2d inst., aged seventy-one years.

DR. THEODOR BILLROTH, one of the most eminent surgeons of this century, died in Abkazia, a well-known Austrian winter resort, on the 6th inst., at the age of 65. Among his best-known treatises are those entitled "Surgical Letters from the Field Hospitals at Weissenburg and Mannheim," "On the Transportation of the Wounded," "On the Learning and Teaching of Medicine at German Universities," "Surgical Clinique," and "Handbook of General and Special Surgery."

JOHN WILKINSON, of the firm of Messrs. Sotheby, Wilkinson & Hodge, died in the third week of January, at the ripe age of 91. He was born in Yorkshire, the second son of the Rev. J. Wilkinson, of Huggate, and went to London in 1821, where he was eventually taken into the house of Sotheby & Co. as chief accountant, and in 1842 was made a partner. During the next forty years he continued to wield the hammer, and in 1849 he sold the Stowe library and collection of engravings. His active career as an auctioneer may be said to have concluded about the time of the famous Beckford and Hamilton sales in 1832-4, the selling of which he shared with his partner, Mr. Hodge, increasing age compelling him gradually to give up selling. He died at his residence in Harley Gardens, Kensington, and was buried January 20 in the Brompton Cemetery.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith. Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

VOL. XLV., No. 7.

NEW YORK, February 17, 1894.

WHOLE No. 1151

D. APPLETON & CO.'S NEW BOOKS.

The Fauna of the Deep Sea.

By SYDNEY J. HICKSON, M.A., Fellow of Downing College, Cambridge. A new volume in the Modern Science Series, edited by Sir John Lubbock, Bart. With 23 illustrations. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

"Our present-day knowledge of the physical conditions of the bottom of the deep sea and the animals that dwell there is by no means inconsiderable. . . . It is the object of this little book to bring together in a small compass some of the more important facts and considerations, and to present them in such a form that they may be of interest to those who do not possess a specialist's knowledge of genera and species."—From the Preface.

Benefits Forgot.

By WOLCOTT BALESTIER, author of "Reffey," "A Common Story," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

This is the story which attracted such wide-spread attention during its recent publication in the Century. It is a novel of American life, combining a command of incident and movement with a rare power of analysis and observation.

Science and Christian Tradition.

By THOMAS H. HUXLEY. The fifth volume of the author's Collected Essays. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

CONTENTS: Prologue.—Scientific and Pseudo-Scientific Realism.—Science and Pseudo-Science.—An Episcopal Trilogy.—The Value of Witness to the Miraculous.—Possibilities and Impossibilities.—Agnosticism.—Agnosticism: A Rejoinder.—Agnosticism and Christianity.—The Keepers of the Herd of Swine.—Illustrations of Mr. Gladstone's Controversial Methods.

The Mentor:

A Little Book for the Guidance of such Men and Boys as would Appear to Advantage in the Society of Persons of the Better Sort. By ALFRED AYRES, author of "The Orthoëpist," "The Verbalist," etc. New and revised edition. 18mo, cloth, $1.00.

A Ward in Chancery.

By Mrs. ALEXANDER, author of "The Wooing o't," "For His Sake," etc. No. 134, Town and Country Library. 12mo, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

The author of "The Wooing o't" needs no introduction to American readers. In her next book she offers a most sympathetic study of a woman's character, with a picture of an unconventional hero, the whole forming a story of sustained interest and merit.

OTHER RECENT ISSUES IN NEW BOOKS FOR THE SPRING SEASON.

They Met in Heaven. By GEORGE HEPPWORTH, author of "Hiram Golf's Religion." 16mo, 216 pages, cloth, 75 cents.

"This is a tender and helpful study in religious experiences. . . . To many Dr. Hepworth's method may be a hand stretched out from heaven. To all it will be a book of pure, gentle, and persuasive Christian inspiration."—Independent.

Hiram Golf's Religion; or, The "Shoemaker by the Grace of God." By GEORGE H. HEPPWORTH. 8th thousand. 16mo, 134 pages, cloth, 75 cents.

"Plain talks of a shoemaker and a parson. They are in dialect; the style is both quaint and strong. A book that gives the reader something to think about. . . . The sterling, homely common sense of the book is commanding wide attention."—N. Y. Evangelist.

Stephen Remarx. The Story of a Venture in Ethics. By JAMES ADDERLEY. 12mo, 150 pages, cloth, 75 cents.

"The book is suggestive and pathetic."—The Critic.
"Is worth reading, not only by all who profess and call themselves Christians, but by all who take any interest in the social questions of the day."—Churchman.

Pax and Carlino. A Story. By ERNST BECKMAN. Illustrated. 16mo, 196 pages, cloth, $1.00.

"Is it a true story? That is the question which will be almost sure to come to the lips of children who read about Carlino's strange adventures. To this I may answer both yes and know."—From Preface.

"An ideal story for children. Carlino and his dog are life-like pictures, and the Swedish uncle is better than a fairy god-mother. The illustrations are excellent, and a more entertaining book for boys and girls would be hard to find."—N. Y. Observer.

The Close of St. Christopher's. A Story for Girls. By EMMA MARSHALL. Illustrated. 12mo, 346 pages, cloth, $1.50.

"This favorite author, who describes girl-life with so much freshness and fidelity, will add to her reputation by 'The Close of St. Christopher's.' There is a quiet, steady-growing interest throughout the book which girls will appreciate."—London Bookseller.

MACMILLAN & Co. have just issued the second volume of Murray's "New English Dictionary," which finishes the letter C; "The Economic Geology of the United States," with brief mention of foreign mineral products, by R. S. Tarr, of Cornell University; "The Study of the Biology of Ferns by the Collodion Method," by George F. Atkinson, also of Cornell; and "A History of Mathematics," by Florian Cajori, professor of physics in Colorado College. They have in preparation "Social Evolution," by Benjamin Kidd; and Dr. C. Ellis Stevens' "Sources of the Constitution of the United States."

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have prepared their usual supply of pretty souvenirs for the Easter season. Although almost every idea and every style of presenting it would seem to have been exhausted in former years, this year's cards and booklets again show the originality of thought and the delicacy of execution with which the Dutton imprint is identified. From the writings of Phillips Brooks have been prepared "The Easter Flower," "Easter Angels," and "An Easter Carol." The musical verse of Frances Ridley Havergal has furnished the text of "A Joyful Easter-Tide," "An Easter Token," "An Easter Wish," and "An Easter Message." From John Keble has been selected "Sweet Easter-Tide," and from George Herbert "Easter Peace." About two dozen more pretty novelties are ready, and there is also one of the finest collections of Easter cards ever shown by the house. They will also publish at once "The Life Here and Hereafter," an Easter sermon by the late Phillips Brooks.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish on the 24th Dr. Justin Winsor's new work, entitled "Cartier to Frontenac: a study of geographical discovery in the interior of North America in its historical relations, 1534-1700," an important chapter of the geographical history of the age of American explorations, with full cartographical illustrations from contemporary sources; a cheaper edition of "William Lloyd Garrison, 1805-1879, the story of his life told by his children," till recently published by The Century Company; "A Poet's Portfolio—later readings," by William Wetmore Story, a little book like the author's "He and She"—a collection of lyrics strung on the silver thread of an entertaining conversation between a lady and a gentleman; "In Exile, and other stories," by Mary Hallock Foote; "John Larkin Lincoln, 1817-1891," containing a memorial address by Prof. Geo. P. Fisher, and extracts from the diary and letters, and also twenty-one papers chosen from the writings of Prof. Lincoln, who was for nearly fifty years one of the most eminent professors in Brown University; and "The Sir Roger de Coverley Papers," in the Riverside Literature Series. They will also publish immediately in the Salem edition of Hawthorne's works "The Blithedale Romance," with an introduction by George Parsons Lathrop.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help therunto."—LORD BACON.

POETS AND PUBLISHERS.

RICHARD LE GALLIENNE contributes to The Speaker a witty essay on the relations of poets and publishers, in which, curiously enough, he holds a brief for the latter, who are, he considers, "in the main a very much abused race." Taking Dr. Johnson's definition of booksellers as "the patrons of literature," and Anatole France's characterization of the publisher as "a kind of minister of belles-lettres," Mr. Le Gallienne thinks that, fairly dealt with, the history of publishing would show a much nearer living up to these definitions on the part of publishers than the poets and their sentimental sympathizers are inclined to admit. "We hear a great deal," he says, "of Milton getting £5 for 'Paradise Lost,' and the Tonsons riding in their carriage, but seldom of Cottle adventuring £40 on the 'Lyrical Ballads,' or the Jacksons giving two untried boys £10—or, according to some accounts £20—for 'Poems by Two Brothers.'"

"To open the case for the bookseller or the publisher," Mr. Le Gallienne says, "The poet, to start with, bases his familiar complaints on a wilful disregard of the relation which poetry bears to average humanity. You often hear him express indignant surprise that the sale of butchers' meat should be a more lucrative business than the sale of poetry. But surely to do this is to manifest a most absurd disregard for the facts of life. Wordsworth says that 'we live by admiration, joy, and love.' So doubtless we do; but we live far more by butchers' meat and Burton ales. Poetry is but a preparation of opium distilled by a minority for a minority. The poet may test the case by the relative amounts he pays his butcher and his bookseller. So far as I know, he pays as little for his poetry as possible, and never buys a volume by a brother-sinner till he has vainly tried six different ways to get a presentation copy. The poet seems incapable of mastering the rudimentary truth that ethereals must be based on materials. 'No song, no supper' is the old saw. It is equally true reversed—no supper no song. The empty-stomach theory of creation is a cruel fallacy, though undoubtedly hunger has sometimes been the spur which the clear and doth raise.

"The conditions of existence compel the publisher to be a tradesman on the same material basis as any other. Ideally, a poem, like any other beautiful thing, is beyond price; but, practically, its value depends on the number of individuals who can be prevailed upon to purchase it. An unprinted poem is a spiritual thing, but a printed poem is subject to the laws of matter. In the heaven of the poet's imagination there are no printers and paper-makers, no binders, no discounts to the trade and thirteen to the dealer, but on earth, where alone, so far as we know, books exist, these terrestrial beings and conditions are of paramount importance, and cannot be ignored. It may be perfectly true that a certain poem is so fine that, in a properly constituted cosmogony, it ought to support you to the end of your days; but is the publisher to blame that, in spite of its manifest genius, he can sell no more than five hundred copies?"

Mr. Le Gallienne also demonstrates that poets make their money more easily than most of their fellows, as for "a half hour's beggarly work" they receive as much as "many a city clerk receives for six days' hard work, eight hours in the dreary day, with perhaps a family to keep and a contract to pay;" and moreover, they have the option of going about with a feeling of vast superiority to the rest of the world, in virtue of their rhyming gift. He touches also upon the arrogance of the poet. "It is one of the most foolish and distasteful of his faults, and one which unfortunately the world has conspired from time immemorial to confirm. He has been too long the spoiled child; too long allowed to think that anything becomes him; too long allowed to ride rough-shod over the neck of the average man.

"Mrs. Browning, in 'Aurora Leigh,' while celebrating the poet, sneers at 'your common men' who 'lay telegraphs, gauge railroads, reign, reap, dine.' But why? All these—with, perhaps, the exception of reigning—are very proper and necessary things to be done, and any one of them, done in the true spirit of work, is every bit as dignifying as the writing of poetry, and often, I am afraid, a great deal more so. This scorn of the common man is but another instance of the poet's ignorance of the facts of life and the relations of things. The hysterical bitterness with which certain sections of modern people of taste are constantly girding at the bourgeois—which, indeed, as Omar Khayyam says, heeds 'as the sea's self should heed a pebble-cast'—is one of the most melancholy of recent literary phenomena. It was not so the great masters treated the common man—nor any full-blooded age. But the torch of taste has for the moment fallen into the hands of little men, anæmic and atrabilious—men with neither laughter nor pity in their hearts."

His conclusion is rather sweeping. "We live," he says, "in an age of every man his own priest and his own lawyer. At a pinch we can very well be every man his own poet. If the whole supercilious crew of modern men of letters, artists, and critics were wiped off the earth to-morrow, the world would be hardly conscious of the loss. Nay, if even the whole artistic accumulation of the past were to be suddenly swallowed, it would be little worse off. For the world is more beautiful and wonderful than anything that has ever been written about it, and the most glorious picture is not so beautiful as the face of a spring morning."

HISTORY OF THE WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION.

EX-SENATOR PALMER, of Michigan, president of the World's Fair Commission; Prof. O. V. Tousley, a commissioner from Minnesota, who has been selected as the historian of the commission; John Boyd Thacher, of Albany, chairman of the executive committee on awards, and Benjamin F. Butterworth, of Ohio, who was for a time the secretary of the commission, held a conference at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York, last week, and discussed the work to be done in preparing and publishing a history of the fair.

It was decided to prepare an introduction or preface to the history, which will deal with the events which led up to the establishment of the fair and the acts of Congress authorizing it, and will include a review of the industrial and educational advantages resulting from it and the general interest taken in the fair throughout the civilized world.

This is to be followed by the report of President Palmer, which will contain a history of the opening ceremonies, and deal largely with the exhibitions made by the United States and foreign nations. The report of the secretary will include synopses of the legislation of the commission, the work of the board of control and the executive committee, and a full financial statement.

The report of the council of administration will cover the erection of the buildings and the manner in which the fair was conducted in all its details. There will also be separate reports of the board of lady managers, the Chicago directory, the committee on awards and the director-general. The latter will include a report from the heads of each of the thirteen departments into which the exhibition was divided.

The report of the executive committee on awards will be made by John Boyd Thacher, the chairman. The preparation of the reports of the congresses held during the fair has been entrusted to Mr. Butterworth.

Prof. Tousley thinks that nearly a year will be consumed in the preparation of the history. It will probably consist of thirty octavo volumes of five or six hundred pages each. Director-General George R. Davis is now in Florida preparing his report.

There has already been considerable work done in preparing reports and compiling statistical and other matter, and the work will be advanced as rapidly as possible. It is thought that the report of the executive committee on awards will occupy fifteen volumes of the history. Between 26,000 and 27,000 medals will be awarded.

When the history is complete it will be submitted to President Cleveland, and will be printed under the direction of Congress.

THE OFFICIAL HISTORY OF THE WAR OF THE REBELLION.

THE most extensive literary work ever undertaken in this country is the military history now being produced by the government of the United States, under the title of "War of the Rebellion, a Compilation of the Official Records of the Union and Confederate Armies." It is probably the largest history ever published in the world. It was begun just twenty years ago, and will be practically finished at the end of the next fiscal year.

The whole work when completed will embrace 120 huge royal octavo volumes of 1000 pages each, and a gigantic atlas, and the ultimate cost will be something like $2,500,000 for the 11,000 copies printed.

Up to this date eighty-nine serial volumes have been published, and about $1,800,000 has been spent in all branches of the work, or about $20,000 per volume. The printing and binding alone cost $10,000 per volume, while the previous preparation of each volume for the printer's hands cost an equal sum of $10,000.

The distribution of the printed volumes as they come out is conducted on an unusual plan, in accordance with a law of the Forty-seventh Congress, passed in 1882. Of the 11,000 copies ordered to be printed, 1000 are set aside for the various executive departments; 1000 are reserved for distribution by the Secretary of War among army officers and contributors to the work; 8300 copies are being sent to such libraries, posts, organizations, and individuals as were designed to receive them by Senators, Representatives, and delegates of the Forty-seventh Congress, and the 700 copies over are for sale at the War Department (with a possible 500 more, owing to the death of original beneficiaries), at 10 per cent. above the bare cost of printing, the proceeds to be turned into the Treasury. The books can be had at the Department by purchase at from 50 to 85 cents per volume, if bound in black cloth, and $1 extra per volume if bound in half turkey. None can be had free on application. The 89 serial parts already published can be had for $56.10 in cloth. The atlas, when complete, will cost $12, or 40 cents a part, there being 30 parts.

COMMUNICATIONS.

POSTAL-CARDS FOR FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.

32 GAY ST., BATH, ENG., Feb. 2, 1894.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: In reply to advertisements in your journal we have received a number of post-cards which, according to new regulation of your postal authorities, are larger than are allowed for foreign correspondence. They have been surcharged six cents in all cases. These cards are for use in the United States only. A warning note to your readers may save them disappointments. They must use the foreign cards or smaller ones. B. & J. F. MEEHAN.

[The largest sized United States postal-cards, if sent to countries of the Postal Union, will hereafter be subject to letter postage. If a less amount is prepaid, such cards will be liable to double the amount of the deficiency. It appears that this card is larger than the maximum-sized cards, which are exchangeable between the Postal Union countries. Such cards can, however, still be delivered in Mexico and Canada as heretofore. In those countries our own postal regulations are in force. It would be safer, however, in every case to use the international postal-card.—ED. P. W.]

FOR THE RIGHTS OF THE PUBLISHER OR THE BENEFIT OF THE STUDENT: WHICH SHALL IT BE?

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: A dissatisfied publisher in this city, a subscriber to your journal, has just called my attention to an editorial paragraph in your columns, December 16, as follows:

"While it may not be within the province of a book trade journal to criticise any of the features of the proposed tariff bill, nevertheless, as one interested in education and the advancement of learning, we cannot help expressing a regret that the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives did not recognize the wisdom of extending more generally the privilege of importing English books published within twenty years from the date of importation. This duty, especially since the passage of the international copyright law, has little or no justification, because English books copyrighted in this country are already protected; and as for the revenue from those not so protected that seems insignificant when compared with the benefit that might be derived by students who are now often deterred from buying such books because of the needless difficulties placed in their way. It is to be hoped that when the question comes up for debate our law-makers will consider the matter in favor of a worthy if not abundantly large portion of the community."

Not one word is here found touching the effects upon the American book trade of the free importation of English books, or of the passage of the Wilson Tariff Bill. To me it seems that "the province of a book trade journal" is or ought first to be to look after the interests of the book trade of its own country. THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is, on the contrary, persistently looking after the so-called "rights" of foreign authors, and "the benefit that might be derived by students" from the policy in any copyright or tariff act, without regard to their effects on the book trade of the United States. We hear too much of the rights of authors and the benefits to be had by students from this or that policy. A journal claiming to represent the American book trade should be first, last, and all the time American.

The idea that taxation is necessary to the very existence of society, and that no productive industry in a country can escape it, seems to be wholly overlooked and ignored by those theorists, like yourself, who would benefit students and others while sacrificing the fundamental rights of domestic producers. It being utterly impossible to produce in this country a book, a part of the cost of which is not taxes, the student has no right to the free importation of books from abroad. In a word, the policy which you advocate is highly unjust, because it would discriminate against the American publisher. As for the student himself, and for the state, it may be said with entire truth that many of these foreign books, which you would allow him the privilege of importing free, would teach him doctrines which are utterly antagonistic to the best interests of American society, such free importation, in that case, thus being against public policy. The fact is this country, through the medium of the college, is being honeycombed and our civilization is being threatened with destruction, by reason of the absorbing of foreign ideas, especially English, and of an economic character. Rather would I put a prohibitory tariff on books containing such ideas than set those books free of duty.

Conceived in the brain of a student, a professor, and a president of a college, the Wilson Tariff Bill stands out as an embodiment of all the bad teachings of the college during the past hundred years! It is a menace to every branch of American industry, and at this moment causing a destructive panic of the book trade itself, not by reason of the legislation on books, but by reason of its threatened destruction of American productive industries generally. Will you not, therefore, cease to ask that the book trade and its products shall be more directly brought under the blighting influences of this infamous act, but will you not rather raise your voice in favor of its destruction to the end that the trade of which you are an organ may experience a revival, which it can while Prof. Wilson threatens new and greater miseries to the American people than those under which they are now being crushed? In such an organ, it seems to me you can do no better.

HENRY CAREY BAIRD

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5, 1894.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

THE FALK PHOTOGRAPH-COPYRIGHT CASE UPHELD.

THE United States Circuit Court of Appeals Judges Wallace and Lacombe, handed down their decision on the 10th inst. in the case of Springer Lithographing Company, plaintiff in error, against Benjamin J. Falk, defendant in error, in which the decision of the lower court was affirmed with costs. The action was brought by Mr. Falk, to recover damages from the lithographing company for having lithographed and printed a copyrighted photograph. The court found for Mr. Falk in the full amount, $5,000. The opinion is by Judge Lacombe, and he holds that to be an infringement of the photograph the lithograph need not be an exact copy, as the law holds that a substantial copy of the distinctive ideas and characteristic features of the original photograph constitutes such infringement.

OBITUARY NOTES.

ROBERT M. BALLANTYNE, the prolific and popular writer of books for boys, died in Rome on the 8th inst. Mr. Ballantyne was born in Edinburgh in 1825. His first book, issued in 1841, was a record of personal experiences during his years' residence (from 1841 to 1847) in the territories of the Hudson Bay Company. In 1848 he took to literature as a profession, making it his aim as far as possible to write from personal experience and introducing interesting facts and descriptions. His first tales were founded on his experiences in the backwoods of Rupert's Land among the fur-traders and red Indians. "Lighthouse" was written after a short residence in the Bell Rock Lighthouse; "Erling Bold," after a visit to Norway; and "The Savage and the Cape," after a visit to the Cape of Good Hope. In January, 1887, he had written and published seventy-four volumes, of which sixty-seven were distinct tales.

MAXIME DU CAMP, the historian of the French Commune and author of a number of works on art, travel, etc., died in Paris on the 10th inst., aged 72 years.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MME. SARAH GRAND's forthcoming book is to be entitled "Our Manhood Lives. It is not a novel but a collection of short stories.

AN enthusiastic German has erected a monument to Helne in the wilds of Central Africa, placing thereon a suitable poetic inscription.

MR. CRAWFORD's new story is to be entitled "Katherine Lauterdale," and will concern itself with the affairs of the Lauterdales, a rich New York family. Three stories, each however complete in itself, will be devoted to the Lauterdales.

ARCHIBALD GUNTER's next novel will be called "A Princess of Paris," and it is to be followed by one entitled "The King's Stockbroker." Both stories have to do with the period of French history when paper money and speculation in organized companies were first introduced.

MME. NAHIDA RENNY, a talented German Jewess, has just published a work entitled "Culture Studies in Judaism." Mme. Renny, who is an accomplished Hebrew scholar, is deeply versed in Jewish history; she is the authoress of "The Jewish Woman," and has lectured on "Woman and the Talmud."

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOSTON, MASS.—An adjourned meeting of the creditors of the D. Lothrop Company was held on the 12th inst. A report of the committee appointed by the creditors at the last meeting to investigate was handed in and read. The Lothrop family, to whom about $106,000 of the $250,000 liabilities is due for money loaned, have transferred their shares of whatever dividends are declared for the purpose of securing the notes indorsed by them for money advanced by the banks. The effect of this action is to reduce the liabilities, which must be immediately met, from $250,000 to $144,000, and to hasten the settlement of the firm's affairs. It is intended to form a new corporation as soon as practicable, which will assume the family liabilities and carry on the business.

COLUMBIA, MO.—W. E. Harshe has started in the book, stationery, and fancy-goods business here.

LONDON, ONT.—E. A. Taylor, for many years the leading bookseller in London, died in Toronto, Ont., recently. He was widely and favorably known to the trade in Canada and the United States.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Godey Publishing Co. has made an assignment. The company, which is a New Jersey corporation, will be at once reorganized under New York State laws, so that the business will be continued without interruption.

NEW YORK CITY.—Lovell, Coryell & Company have participated in the general up-town move of the New York publishing houses. The local and visiting trade will henceforth find them located in the Cammeyer building, at the corner of Sixth Avenue and 20th Street, in connection with the parent house, the United States Book Co. Here a spacious and well-equipped warehouse will enable Lovell, Coryell & Co. to carry not only samples, but full lines of stock of their whole list of publications, as well as to have the offices of the company and its affiliated houses and the shipping and other departments all under one roof.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Merriam Company, formerly the Price-McGill Co., of St. Louis, has purchased the jobbing business of the firm of Saalfeld & Fitch, and will continue the same for the present at the old quarters of the latter at the Bible House. The personnel of the company in New York will consist of R. H. Merriam, the president; Arthur H. Saalfeld, who will act as vice-president and general manager of the jobbing business, and Jared How, who officiates as secretary. As already noted, The Merriam Company contemplated establishing an Eastern agency, and this seems to have been accomplished in combining their publishing with the jobbing business already established by Mr. Saalfeld. As soon as suitable quarters can be found on Fifth Avenue, or in a street near it, somewhere below Twenty-third Street, The Merriam Company will remove, the present quarters being not only much too small, but too far removed from the centre of the regular trade.

NEW YORK CITY.—Henry Miller, the bookseller, has removed to larger quarters at 122 Nassau Street. Before leaving his old quarters at No. 65 Nassau Street, which had been occupied as a book-store under different owners for more than 75 years and is now making room for a larger building, Mr. Miller gave what might be called a farewell party to some of his friends. Although the clerks were busy putting the books into cases for removal, enough room was cleared to permit of the opening of several cases of wine, and "good-by" was drank to the old place in foaming beakers.

NEW YORK CITY.—The New York News Company is now in its new quarters, at No. 25 City Hall Place. The building is a new structure, 25 x 85 feet, and is six stories high, with large basement. In the basement are the machinery, electric motors, etc. The store floor is devoted to books, and on the second story are the offices. The stationery department occupies the third floor, the express and foreign packing departments the fourth floor, the mail department the fifth floor, and the sixth floor is the stock-room.

MARION, IND.—Bailey & Glecker, stationers and booksellers, have failed.

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—Joel White & Woodruff, booksellers, have associated with them in business Mr. Ed. C. Fowler.

SCRANTON, PA.—Executions amounting to over $25,000 were issued against Claud B. Pratt, bookseller and stationer, on January 20. Five judgments were filed and executions were immediately issued on each and placed in the hands of the sheriff. The largest, according to the American Stationer, is a note to Mary E. Pratt, for $13,514.72; the next to Z. B. Phillips, for $7270; the next to W. W. Phillips, for $3000. There are two to Charles H. Welles, trustee, one for $1028.42 and another for $450.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—The book-store of C. C. Howorth was recently damaged by fire.

TORONTO, ONT.—The Williamson Book Company has arraigned with its creditors, and is now doing business on King Street, near the old stand.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

RAND, McNALLY & Co. announce a volume of the essays and sketches contributed by Mme. Modjeska to various magazines and reviews.

J. SELWIN TAIR & SONS have in preparation a volume of short stories by Mrs. Gertrude Atherton, to be entitled "Before the Gringo Came."

D. APPLETON & Co., who were the original publishers of Gen. Sherman's memoirs, have again obtained from Charles L. Webster & Co. the control of the work.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS market in this country an English translation of Arthur Lévy's "Napoleon Intime" under the title of "The Private Life of Napoleon."

HARVEY FISK & SONS, bankers, New York City, have compiled a bond-book, being both a catalogue and a history of all bonds dealt in in this part of the country, which is said to be about as complete as anything of that kind that has ever been published.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY will issue directly a "Comic History of the United States," by Bill Nye; also a new fresh-air book by Dr. C. C. Abbott, entitled "Travels in a Tree Top," also the same author's handbook of American birds—"The Birds About Us."

GINN & Co. have in press in their International Modern Language Series Freytag's "Doktor Luther," four chapters of the author's "Bilder aus der deutschen Vergangenheit," which deal with the life and activity of the great reformer, first issued in a separate volume on the occasion of the Luther celebration in 1883. This has been edited and furnished with an introduction and notes by Frank P. Goodrich, instructor of German in Yale University.

AMBLARD & MEYER BROTHERS will publish at once a new book by Paul Bourget, entitled "Un Saint," which will be followed shortly by a new volume of Marcel Prévost, both additions to the Collection Lemerre. The latter, entitled "Nouvelles Lettres de Femmes," will be followed in June by another of this popular writer's stories, to be called "Les Deux Vierges." François Coppée's "Henriette;" Daniel Lesueur's "Haine d'Amour," and Daudet's "Soutien de Famille," are also in preparation.

A CORRESPONDENT writes to the Critic from Athens: "I have found at a book-stall here a copy of 'Leaves of Grass,' edition of 1867. It is a presentation copy from Walt Whitman; but the name of the person to whom he gave it has been torn out. Perhaps the book has been lost or stolen. If so I shall be glad to return it to its original owner, asking only that I may be assured that it goes to the person to whom it belongs. I hope that there is only one of him. A letter addressed American Legation, Athens, Greece, will reach me."

WILLIAM BEVERLEY HARISON has just issued eight numbers of "Harison's Vertical Penmanship." The numbers are put up in pads, enabling the teacher to permit a number of copy-sheets for practice before proceeding to the next step. Mr. Harison announces for early publication an "Essay on Physiology of Penmanship," by Dr. Javal (French Academy of Medicine). This essay is based largely upon the report of the commission appointed to examine into the cause of asymmetry, near-sightedness, etc., in public schools. This little volume will be published as the second volume of the Pocket Pedagogical Library.

LOVELL, CORYELL & Co. have made arrangements for an active publishing season. They will bring out new editions of many of the most popular books in their long list of novels, and will from time to time add new works to the list. Among the notable writings promised are uniform editions of the works of Conan Doyle and Barrie; several of the works of Manville Fenn and Herman Melville; Cobban's "A Soldier and a Gentleman;" William Norris' "His Grace;" and "Countess Radna," a quite new story from the gifted novelist; and "Flying Visits: the English parliament on wheels," by Harry Furniss, the talented illustrator of Punch.

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish under the title of "Christus Imperator: the universal empire of Christianity in the light of evolution," a series of sermons delivered by the following: Rev. C. W. Stubbs, rector of Wavertree; the Very Rev. G. W. Kitchen, D.D., dean of Winchester; Rev. R. E. Bartlett, Bampton Lecturer at Oxford, 1888; Rev. J. Llewellyn Davies, D.D., vicar of Kirby Lonsdale, and chaplain to the Queen; Rev. W. H. Freemantle, D.D., canon of Canterbury; Rev. S. A. Barnett, M.A., canon of Bristol, and other well-known divines. A volume entitled "A Corner of Cathay," by Adele M. Fielde, will be issued in September by Macmillan & Co. Miss Fielde has lived in China for twenty years, and was long an inmate of a native household. The book will be illustrated in an interesting manner.

THE second volume of Moncure D. Conway's collected edition of Tom Paine's works, which will probably appear in the spring, will comprise most of Paine's writings in England between the time of his arrival, September 3, 1787, and his departure for France five years later. The "Rights of Man" will be preceded by a document which has never appeared in English, but was translated from the manuscript by Condorcet for the Chronique du Mois (Paris) of May, June, and July, 1792. It was written a year before its translation in reply to questions addressed to Paine concerning some fundamental provisions of the constitution submitted by the National Assembly, and in it the writer states that he is engaged on a work relating to those subjects. This work was part 2 of "Rights of Man" (published February 17, 1792), several passages of which are anticipated in substance in the manuscript written nearly nine months before.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. will publish early in March a work by Edward Porritt, of London, on the various departments of the municipal and national life of England. It bears the comprehensive title of "The Englishman at Home: his responsibilities and privileges," and explains in a simple and popular style every detail of the political system of England: municipal administration, poor-laws, justice, taxes, Parliament, education, the National Church and non-conformity, civil service, the army and navy, labor legislation and the daily press. The book is not only interesting but valuable to every reader who wishes to understand the difference between English and American customs. Mr. Porritt was for a time connected with American journalism, but has been for some years the London editor of a prominent Manchester newspaper, a position which gives peculiar insight into English politics and affairs. He is at present residing in Farmington, Conn.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just ready a new volume of short stories by Thomas Hardy, entitled "Life's Little Ironies." They include "The Son's Veto," "For Conscience' Sake," "On the Western Circuit," "The Fiddler of the Reels," "The Superstitious Man's Story," "Absent-mindedness in a Parish Choir," and "Netty Sargent's Copyhold," with which the volume closes. They have also just added to Harper's Young People Series "The Mystery of Abel Forefinger," by William Drysdale, a boys' story of a cruise among the West Indies. Its heroes are two American youths who become lost in a Nassau jungle, fall into the hands of Cuban bandits, have a ride on a runaway car down a Mexican mountain, encounter a St. Kitts hurricane, explore Robinson Crusoe's island, and have other delightfully thrilling adventures on sea and land. Brander Matthews has collected his "Studies of the Stage" into a volume shortly to be published in the Harper's American Essayists Series. Among the nine subjects treated are "The Dramatization of Novels," "The Dramatic Outlook in America," "The Old Comedies," "A Plea for Farce," and "The Players," the club which Edwin Booth founded for followers of art, literature, and the drama.

COPELAND & DAY, 69 Cornhill, Boston, will shortly put their imprint on an edition of Oscar Wilde's one-act tragedy of "Salome," translated by the author from his original French version, with illustrations by Aubrey Beardsley, on a volume of poems by Francis Thompson, the young North-of-England man, who having come down to London first earned a precarious living by doing drudgeries of all kinds until his genius was discovered, and such men as Browning and Coventry Patmore gave him their aid and encouragement; also on a volume of verse by Miss Katherine Tynan, and on the third edition of Le Gallienne's poems. Their first American book will be "Vagabondia," a book of poems by Bliss Carman and Richard Hovey, in which it will be left to readers to trace the separate verses to their author, for they will not be signed. Messrs. Copeland & Day have an æsthetic little office in Cornhill, and announce that they hope to need very large, not very limited editions of their publications. In fact, the press generally seems to be somewhat confused concerning the intentions of this firm, and so has given the impression that they are planning the publication of limited editions of sumptuous books merely to gratify personal taste in this direction regardless of pecuniary profit. On the contrary, they intend to get out books as they should be manufactured in times when paper, type, and binding have reached almost perfection in as large editions as may be called for, and they firmly believe that their efforts will meet a demand already existing, and sure to grow if good intrinsic matter in good external shape is well supplied.

FOREIGN NOTES.

J. SALISBURY, 48 Fleet Lane, London, has just issued "A Glossary of Words and Phrases Used in Southeast Worcestershire, together with some of the sayings, customs, etc., common in that district," by Jesse Salisbury.

B. F. STEVENS, of London, has just published "Christopher Columbus: his own book of privileges, 1502." It is a fac-simile, in folio, of the famous Codex in the archives of the Paris Foreign Office, with translation and historical introduction by Henry Harrisse, the American authority on Columbus. This introduction, which contains a curious chapter on the plans, partially carried out, of Napoleon I., to concentrate in Paris the archives of the whole of Europe, has also been printed separately in folio, with plates. There are only twenty copies of this rare volume, and these are to be distributed privately.

M. SPIRGATIS, Leipzig, has just issued the sixth instalment of Karl Dziatzko's Sammlung Bibliothekswissenschaftlicher Arbeiten, under the title "Beiträge zur Theorie und Praxis des Buch und Bibliothekswesens" (Contributions to the Theory and Practice of Books and Library Systems). The nine chapters composing the pamphlet treat of the researches in German printing of the 15th century, describe a journey through the larger libraries of Italy, give a description of the Latin books of the 15th century in the library of the University of Göttingen, discuss the libraries of German universities, their means and their needs, and offer various researches on special volumes of early printing.

H. LE SOUDIER has sent us two editions of the "Annual Catalogue of the Newspapers, Reviews, and Periodical Publications Published at Paris" ("Annuaire des journaux, revues et publications périodiques publiés à Paris"), one with only retail, the other with retail and trade prices. This annual gives the complete titles in alphabetical order, the name of editor, the size, number of pages, the date of origin, the price of single numbers, the rate of subscription for Paris, the Departments, the Postal Union and other countries, the address of the subscription agencies and much other practical information. The periodicals also appear in short title under subject headings. The Annual includes a table of postal tariff for France and other countries. M. Le Soudier has also published the seventh annual map, showing the divisions and locations of the troops of the French army, and giving an index to every army corps and a list of the generals and superior officers in command. The French title reads "Carte de la Repartition et de l'Emplacement des Troupes de l'Armée Française pour l'Année 1894."

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

C. N. CASPAR, 437 E. Water St., Milwaukee, Wis., has just ready the fourth edition of his exceedingly valuable "Practical Catalogue of Law-Books," arranged by subjects, with a complete index to authors, embracing the latest editions of all standard text-books, treatises, reports, digests, etc., which are at present in vogue. (100 p. 16°, pap., 25c.; with key to publishers and interleaved, flex. (price on application).)

THE N. Y. ENGRAVING AND PRINTING CO., 320 Pearl St., N. Y., have issued in a neat pamphlet specimens of magazine and book illustrations, engraved on copper by their enamel half-tone process. (40 p. 8°.)

E. STEIGER & Co., 25 Park Place, New York, have sent us twelve parts of a Monthly Bulletin of New German Publications covering January to December, 1893. The bulletin is arranged alphabetically under subjects. (16°, 20 c. a year.)

TWO important handbooks for the Bookseller.

ORDER NOW:

ANNUAL CATALOGUES, 1893.

The Annual American Catalogue for 1893 contains:

- (1) Directory of American Publishers issuing books in 1893.
- (2) Full-title Record, with descriptive notes, in author-alphabet, of all books recorded in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, 1893.
- (3) Author-, title-, and subject-index to same in one alphabet.
- (4) Publishers' annual lists for 1893.

The edition is limited, and to secure copies orders should be sent at once. The price is $3.50 half leather; $3.00 in sheets.

The Annual Catalogue for 1886 and 1887 is now out of print. But few copies of the Annual Catalogue for 1888, 1889, 1890 and 1891 are on hand.

We also supply the English Catalogue for 1893, price $1.50, paper; the Annual American and English Catalogues, 1892, can be had in one volume, half leather, $5.00.

NEARLY READY:

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX, ...1893...

INCLUDING PERIODICALS, AMERICAN AND ENGLISH, ESSAYS, BOOK-CHAPTERS, ETC.,
SPECIAL BIBLIOGRAPHIES AND NECROLOGY OF AUTHORS.

EDITED BY W. I. FLETCHER and R. R. BOWKER,

With the co-operation of members of the American Library Association and of the Library Journal staff.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1893 complements the "Annual American Catalogue" of books published in 1893 by indexing (1) articles in periodicals published in 1892; (2) essays and book-chapters in composite books of 1892; (3) authors of periodical articles and essays; (4) special bibliographies of 1892; (5) authors deceased in 1892. The two volumes together make a complete record of the literary product of the year.

The new volume includes the features of the "Co-operative Index to Periodicals," originally a monthly supplement to the Library Journal, then extended into a quarterly in an enlarged form, and later issued as an annual volume.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1893 forms the second supplement both to the new five-yearly volume (1887-1891) of Poole's Index to Periodical Literature and to the new A. L. A. Index to essays and book-chapters of Mr. Fletcher.

The new volume will more than fulfil the opinion as to the Co-operative Index expressed in the following extract:

"To the literary worker its value can hardly be over-estimated; to the specialist in any branch of science or letters it is indispensable, since it places within his immediate reach many of the latest fruits of labor in the same field. To every one who desires to be well informed it furnishes the means of making the most effective use of his time."—Providence Press.

One vol., cloth, (uniform with "A. L. A. Index,") $3.50.

Early orders for the above are solicited.

WILL PUBLISH SATURDAY, FEB. 24:

Cartier to Frontenac.

A Study of Geographical Discovery in the interior of North America in its historical relations, 1534-1700; with full cartographical illustrations from contemporary sources. By JUSTIN WINSOR, author of "Columbus," editor of "Narrative and Critical History of America." 8vo, gilt top, $4.00.

Mr. Winsor here gives an important chapter of the geographical history of the age of American explorations. He narrates the story of the attempts of the French to go into the interior of North America, and shows how by degrees they approximated to an accurate understanding of the problem to be solved.

William Lloyd Garrison, 1805-1879.

The Story of His Life Told by His Children. Illustrated with over 40 portraits, views, etc. 4 vols., 8vo, gilt top, $8.00, net.

This important work (till recently published by the Century Company) has been reduced in price from $12.00 to $8.00, a remarkably low price for what is unquestionably one of the handsomest works of biography ever offered to the public.

A Poet's Portfolio: Later Readings.

By WILLIAM WETMORE STORY, author of "He and She," "Roba di Roma," "Fiammetta," etc. 18mo, parchment paper, $1.00.

This is a little book like Mr. Story's "He and She"—a collection of lyrics strung on the silver thread of an entertaining conversation between a lady and a gentleman.

In Exile, and Other Stories.

By MARY HALLOCK FOOTE, author of "The Chosen Valley," "The Led-Horse Claim," "John Bodewin's Testimony," and "The Last Assembly Ball," etc. 16mo, $1.25.

A volume of excellent short stories including, in addition to the title story, Friend Barton's "Concern," The Story of The Alcázar, A Cloud on the Mountains, The Rapture of Hetty, and The Watchman. Those who have had the good fortune to know Mrs. Foote's novels will understand how fresh and vigorous these short stories must be.

The Blithedale Romance.

By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE. With an introduction by George Parsons Lathrop. Salem Edition, uniform in style and price with the volumes already published in this edition, which has proved exceedingly popular. Printed from clear type on good paper, with a vignette on the title-page, and tastefully bound in red and gold with a white cloth back and a paper jacket. 30 cents.

The books previously included in the Salem Edition are Hawthorne's

The Scarlet Letter,

Mosses from an Old Manse,

The House of the Seven Gables, The Snow Image,

Twice-Told Tales,

A Wonder-Book.

Ships that Pass in the Night.

A NOVEL.

By BEATRICE HARRADEN.

AUTHORIZED AMERICAN EDITION. TWENTY-SECOND THOUSAND.

Cloth, 16mo, $1.00; Popular Edition, Paper, 50 cents.

"There is a wealth of philosophy, humor and pathos in this little tale; and it is told so simply that one feels as if he were a part of it, somehow. So truly are the human heart-strings struck that he must be beyond redemption whose inner self does not vibrate in sympathy, many times, as the pages are turned. There is an abundance of sound sense, and innumerable quotable passages, and not a dull page. Many a more pretentious volume seeks in vain for such an encomium. New thoughts are suggested because old thoughts are so truly phrased; and new motives and higher aims are inspired by this little book because it gets right down to the human entities and reveals the chords of life as they are, some time or other, in every life. 'Ships that Pass in the Night' is one book in ten thousand; you should read it."—Boston Times.

"'Ships that Pass in the Night' has made its success by purely legitimate methods. . . . The author has a story to tell, a theory to work out, a belief to impart, and that is all—except the important item that she is a good writer, keen and wise in observation and style, liberal and sympathetic in temperament. . . . I sat up half the night to finish the book."—JEANNETTE L. GILDER, in the World.

"A most suggestive little volume, which, touching upon many of its historical and literary ideas, ranges widely over the field of Irish patriotic sentiment. It is a most convenient means of obtaining a rapid insight into the sentimental side of the Irish demand. With the material side Englishmen are familiar enough. . . . No one who desires to realize the Irish question can afford to neglect this little book."—The Speaker.

Taken from his larger work by Lieut.-Col. Alfred Pearson, who, Mr. Symonds thought, thoroughly appreciated the intention of the larger work and reproduced its essence without any important omissions. With portrait. 12mo, $1.75.

Life and Works of Alexander Anderson, the First American Wood Engraver.

By FREDERIC M. BURR, M.A. With three portraits of Dr. Anderson, and numerous illustrations by himself. To which are added copious extracts from Dr. Anderson's diary for the years 1795-1798.

The edition is printed from TYPE on extra heavy super-finished paper, and is limited to 725 numbered and signed copies. Royal 8vo, half russla, gilt top, $4.00.

Special Edition de Luxe limited to 25 numbered and signed copies. Printed on Crane's parchment vellum paper, and bound in parchment, antique style, stamped with gold (in a box), $12.50.

Only Seven copies of Special Edition unsold.

"Mr. Burr has most conscientiously given us the life and work of our first engraver. . . . The character of the man is cleverly portrayed in the incidents narrated—a plan far preferable to any description based upon the author's own deductions. . . . Mr. Burr has chosen a good topic and has handled it well."—Public Opinion, Washington, D. C.

"The illustrations chosen for this volume are many in number and generally are interesting. They impress us again and again with the superior excellence of Anderson's work."—New York Times.

"The biography is that of a really remarkable man, and is published very handsomely."—Phila. Press.

THREE NOTABLE STORIES.

The Story of Margredel.

By a NEW WRITER. Being the Fireside History of a Fifeshire Family. Copyrighted American edition. Uniform with "Ships that Pass in the Night." 12mo, cloth, $1.00. (Ready March 3.)

It is safe to predict that "The Story of Margredel" will arouse great interest in regard to the identity of its unknown author, and many discussions will take place on the question whether it is the work of a woman or that of a man.

The story will absorb the attention of the reader until the end, but he will desire to wander back again over its pages for the pleasure of re-reading the many charming bits of philosophy and character sketches. The Baillie is excellently portrayed, and the generous nature of the times is admirably represented by the member of the Crocodile Club, who with the full authority of the club, translated "Dramatis Persona" as "a dram for each person."

Ships that Pass in the Night.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE INTERNATIONAL NEWS CO. has just issued in The Authors' Library "The Surrender of Margaret Bellarmine," by Adeline Sergeant.

WM. L. ALLISON CO., 54 Warren St., New York, have just issued neat editions in one and two volumes of Eugene Sue's "The Wandering Jew," and of Victor Hugo's "Les Misérables." The one-volume edition contains ten full-page illustrations, the two-volume edition contains thirty-two illustrations, and also may be had in half-calf binding.

D. APPLETON & CO. will publish at once "Benefits Forgot," the striking novel of American life, by Wolcott Balestier, that has attracted so much attention during its publication in the Century Magazine. They will publish at the same time in their Town and Country Library a new novel by Mrs. Alexander, entitled "A Ward in Chancery."

MACMILLAN & CO. will publish early in the spring the second volume of the revised edition of Bryce's "American Commonwealth;" a new edition, in two volumes, of Craik's "Life of Swift;" a new edition of "The Letters of Edward Fitzgerald;" Mrs. Green's "Town Life in the Fifteenth Century;" the first volume of Palgrave's "Dictionary of Political Economy;" and three new volumes of the Dryburgh Edition of Scott's Waverley Novels. The volumes by Dickens which Macmillan & Co. will add to their recent partial edition of Dickens are: "Little Dorritt," "Bleak House," "Christmas Stories," "Hard Times," "Uncommercial Traveller," "Great Expectations," "Tale of Two Cities," "Our Mutual Friend," and "Edwin Drood, and other stories." They have also in preparation two works of Marion Crawford about Constantinople, of which part has already appeared in magazine form.

HARPER & BROTHERS have nearly ready a work on "The Jewish Question and the Mission of the Jews," by an anonymous author, who, it is said, has made a careful and peculiarly complete study of the Jew as a type, an influence, and a "problem" of increasing importance in the history of civilization. "The Wee Ones of Japan," a study of the Japanese child in babyhood and just beyond, by Mae St. John Bramhall, with illustrations by C. D. Weldon; "For Honor and Life," a military tale of the 18th century, by William Weston; and "The Expert Waitress," by Anne Frances Springsteed, a series of papers intended rather as a working model than as a set of arbitrary rules, treating of such subjects as the duties of a waitress at various meals, the care of the dining-room and pantry, the proper ways of caring for silver, lamps, etc., and many other important household details. They will publish at once "Our English Cousins," by Richard Harding Davis. The volume will contain the sketches of London life, and the descriptions of A General Election, Undergraduate Life at Oxford, and Three English Race Meetings, which have appeared in Harper's Magazine during the past year.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

JUDGE PRYOR, of the Court of Common Pleas, on the 20th inst., permitted Nellie Bishop Herrick, the author, to assume her pen-name, "Helen Leavenworth Herrick," instead of her present name.

MISS OLIVE SCHREINER, the author of "The Story of an African Farm," is engaged to be married to Mr. Cron Wright, the son of a well-known South African farmer and member of the Cape Parliament. It is said, by the way, that more than 70,000 copies of "The African Farm" have been sold.

R. L. STEVENSON, according to the New York Tribune, is engaged upon three Scotch stories—so he writes from Samoa to Mr. Barrie. To this statement Mr. Stevenson added another, to the effect that he had been elected "a member of a society, which he called a temperance society, founded with two objects—the first, the inculcation of temperance principles, and the second, to encourage the exportation of Scotch whiskey."

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); (Q. 4to: under 30 cm.): O. (8vo: 25 cm.): D. (12mo: 20 cm.): S. (16mo: 17½ cm.): T. (24mo: 15 cm.): Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.): Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Betts, C. Wyllys. American colonial history illustrated by contemporary medals; ed. with notes by W: T. R. Marvin and Lyman Haynes Low. N. Y., Scott Stamp and Coin Co., Ltd., 18 E. 23d St., 1894. c. 8+332 p. por. il. O. cl., $3. [526]

The volume describes 625 medals, illustrated by nearly 200 engravings of their obverse and reverse designs. Translations of the legends are uniformly given, with explanations of the abbreviations, whenever decipherable. The chapters treat of the medals belonging to the periods of discovery; of colonization; of intercolonial wars; those of the period from the Peace of Paris to the Revolution; those of the Revolutionary period itself; and finally of those relating to the acknowledgment of the independence of the United States. Separate chapters are also given to the numerous pieces commemorating the exploits of Admiral Vernon, and to the Proclamation pieces of Ferdinand VI. and Charles III. of Spain, the pieces satirizing John Law and his Mississippi scheme; those relating to the conflicts between the Kings of France and England in the New World, and to battles and treaties affecting their colonies on this side of the ocean, etc.

Burr, F: M. Life and works of Alexander Anderson. M.D., the first American wood-engraver; il. with three portraits of Dr. Anderson, and over thirty engravings by himself. N. Y., Burr Bros., [C: T. Dillingham,] 1893 [1894.] c. '93. 3-210 p. O. hf. rus., $4. [Edition limited to 725 copies.] [530]

Dr. Anderson was born in New York, of Scotch parentage, April 21, 1775, and died in Jersey City in 1870. He began his art labors at the early age of twelve, and worked with untiring industry until his ninety-third year. Mr. Burr, in writing this sketch, had the unrestricted use of Dr. Anderson's diary, now preserved in manuscript in the Phoenix Collection of Columbia Library. Extracts are given relative to the visitation of yellow fever in New York in 1795, with other interesting details. The illustrations, nearly forty in number, have been selected as showing his progress in the art from his earliest wood-cuts for "The looking-glass of the mind," to his own portrait, engraved in his best style in his eighty-first year.

An allegory demonstrating the soul's immortality. The hero, after death has closed his eyes on earth, awakens in spirit in the "Home of Psyche, the abode of perfected life;" here he is called "Assurance," and is comforted and instructed by his soul's affinity, "Clareese of the Pleiades," their long conversations in which "Meon of Orion," "Ristus of Sirius," "Ariel," "Christ," and "Benedictus" take part, depict the powers and activities of the soul in its pure psychic state, show the purpose of man's dual nature, and the divine necessity of earthly suffering, trials, and death. Celestial voyages to Sirius, Orion, the Pleiades, and the sad sphere of "Plutone," are described.

The introduction discusses Jeffrey's fame, Jeffrey the critic, the Edinburgh Review, the earlier reviews, and the new literary form. The selections are from reviews, chiefly of the works of Jeffrey's contemporaries; they illustrate his style and methods as a critic and his most characteristic opinions; and offer examples of what was in its day deemed the best literary criticism.

Jerome, Jerome K. John Ingerfield, and other stories. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1894. 4+424 p. por. il. S. cl., 75 c. [555]

John Ingerfield is a serious tale of old London, a story of indifference turned into love from devotion to a common cause of mercy. "The woman of Sæter" is a gruesome study of the growth of madness exhibited in letters from the madman. "Variety Patter" relates to a well-known lady of the music-hall; and "The Lease of the Cross Keys" is a humorous tale of mistaken identity, in which a bishop of the English Church and a dissipated journalist are the leading characters.

Joceline, Elizabeth. The mother's legacy to her unborn child; reprinted from the sixth impression, [1672;] with introd. by Lord Bishop of Rochester. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 114 p. 12°, buckram, $1.25. [556]

Kent, Winnifred. Sell not thyself: a novel. Chic., Laird & Lee, [1894.] 207 p. il. D. (Pastime ser.) pap., 25 c. [557]

Stella Dinsmore, a young woman of limited means, who has a cherished project, sees a possibility of attaining her desire, by using the advertising columns of a Boston daily. A matrimonial alliance, which is purely a business transaction, is the result. After this daring experiment, the heroine is chiefly interesting on account of her way of dealing with many questions of interest to women.

- The author aims to show that Christ was not the son of God, and that the Bible is not the word of God; he believes that the entire Christian system may be swept away, and yet a pure religion and profound veneration for God remain. The New Testament is subjected to a rigorous criticism in the light of contemporary and modern writers. He believes that a false standard of right and wrong has been deducted from the Bible. "We shall best," he says, "win a heaven in the life to come, by making a heaven of the life we are in. The enigmas of this life are all that is given us to solve here."

- Shuey, Mrs. Lillian. David of Juniper Gulch a story of the Placer regions of California. Chic., Laird & Lee, 1894. c. 2-418 p. il. (Library of choice fiction.) pap., 50 c. [574]
- Notwithstanding the title, David of Juniper Gulch a sturdy young miner—plays but a small part. The story of the life, experiences, and heart-history of a young girl brought up in a little California mining town, Hulda Hardy's sweet and noble nature is admirably developed, and though her great sacrifice made for the sake of a girl friend, comes near wrecking her life, clouds clear at last, and the conclusion is eminently satisfactory. The descriptions of California life and Hulda's experiences as "school ma'am" in the mountain regions are fresh and interesting.

Zangwill, I. The King of Schnorrers: grotesques and fantasies. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. c. 8+400 p. il. D. cl., $1.50. [588
Stories both tragic and comic. The opening and longest story which gives title to the volume "The King of the Schnorrers" embodies some of the floating traditions of the Jewish Schnorrer, who is as unique among beggars as Israel among nations. The close of the eighteenth century is the background of this fantastic Anglo-Jewish narrative. The vagaries of this king of the beggars are most laughable. Some of the titles of the other fifteen stories are: The semi-sentimental dragon; A tragic comedy of creeds; An odd life; Cheating the gallows; A rose of the Ghetto; Flutterduck, a Ghetto grotesque, etc., etc.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

FEBRUARY 24, 1894.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help therunto."—LORD BACON.

A PROPOSED "AMERICAN CATALOGUE OF BOOKS, 1800-1876."

WITHIN the last few months plans have been outlined and arrangements made for the compilation of a new volume of the American Catalogue, to include books published prior to 1876, and the work as projected is shortly to be brought to the attention of the book trade and others interested in American bibliography. It is intended to make this volume a precursor of the General American Catalogue, the plan of which was outlined in the preface to "The American Catalogue" volume of 1884-90. The first step towards the preparation of such a general catalogue is necessarily the collation and collocation of the titles of books not included in the existing series of "The American Catalogue" volumes. The first volume of "The American Catalogue" recorded such books as were in print and for sale in 1876; but the materials of American bibliography before that date are scattered through a number of volumes, all of them imperfect even for their respective periods, and many of them rare and practically inaccessible. It is therefore proposed to compile a volume of "The American Catalogue" which shall combine the material found in the several volumes of Roorbach and Kelly, Stevens' "Bibliography of American Books in the British Museum," Trübner's "Bibliographical Guide to American Literature," and in other directions, which would be not only valuable in itself but a most important step toward the preparation of a general catalogue of books published during the nineteenth century. Some experimental work has already been done in this direction, and the result has shown that the imperfections in these early bibliographies are much greater than had been supposed, as the number of books in each volume which are not to be found in the corresponding alphabet of the other works is very considerable. If reasonable promise of support for the enterprise can be obtained, the preparation of the catalogue will be put at once into the hands of competent compilers, on a plan already worked out, and the material will be finally edited into an author alphabet, and thereafter—if financial support justifies—into title and subject alphabets. A supplementary part will be appended, giving the publications of societies, of U. S. Government publications, and State publications up to the dates of the supplements in the later volumes of "The American Catalogue," which would, indeed, cover these fields practically from the beginning, as the publications of the years previous to 1800 are so few as to be easily included.

The work will be issued in $2 parts, and it is understood that subscribers are not to be bound to an extent beyond $10, within which limit the completion of the author alphabet at least is guaranteed, and the supplementary part can probably be finished and furnished, if not the title and subject alphabets also. It is desired that only one instalment of $2 per copy should be collected in advance; further instalments will not be asked for earlier than the latter part of this year. Under these circumstances the subscription would hardly prove burdensome to any. It is hoped, therefore, that the proposed publication of a work so important to American bibliography may meet with recognition and encouragement, and that prompt and adequate support may insure the carrying out of the enterprise.

BRITISH SUPPORT OF LITERATURE.

From the London Publishers' Circular.

MR. CHATTO, of the well-known firm of Chatto & Windus, assuming that the annual turnover of publishers is five millions sterling, adds £750,000 as retail booksellers' profits, and £500,000 spent on second-hand books, with the result that he estimates the "nation's book bill" at £0.250,000—"a trifle compared to some of our other national bills." Mr. Sonnenschein, while admitting the very great difficulty of getting at the true figures in such an estimate, is less sanguine than Mr. Chatto. He assumes that we spend £1,800,000 on new literature, a similar amount on "not new literature," and one million overturn in second-hand books—"a total of £4,600,000." It will be noticed that there is a difference of over a million and a half sterling between the two calculations, although Mr. Sonnenschein is careful to explain that his figures are probably below the actual amount. Taking Mr. Chatto's figures, therefore, as approximately correct, will the British nation be surprised at the generous support it gives to literature? One hundred and forty millions on drink—six millions on books!

THE LIGNEROLLES LIBRARY.

From the London Athenæum.

THE sale of the first portion of the library of that zealous and eccentric collector, the Comte de Lignerolles, took place in the first week of February, in Paris. Among the noticeable treasures a copy of the "Imitation" (the 1663 edition of the translation of Beull; Prior of Saint-Val, bound with the arms and cipher of Henriette de France, and containing an autograph letter of hers to Mazarin) fetched 6000 fr. A copy of the Abbé de Choisy's translation (1692), which had belonged to Madame de Malinténon, and bore her arms, fetched 3110 fr. Phillip de Mornay's famous treatise on the Eucharist, the copy (Rochelle, 1598) given by the author to his daughter Martha, brought 1700 fr. The first edition of the "Horloge de Sapience," with sixteen miniatures, sold for 4520 fr. A Psalter printed in Officina Simonis Colinael, in a binding of the seventeenth century, went for 2500 fr. The "Office de la Semaine Sainte," presented to the Princesse de Lamballe by Louis XVI. and Marie Antoinette, and containing autograph inscriptions by them and the future Duchesse d'Angoulême, brought 30,000 fr. The "Homélies du Bréviaire," Baudouin's translation (1640), went for 10,000 fr. "Les Simulacres et Historiettes faces de la Mort," Lyons, 1538, in a splendid binding of Trautz-Bauzonnet, fetched 8500 fr. Charles de Bouvelles's geometry, "Livre singulier et utile," the copy of François I (1542), brought 5160 fr.; and the original edition of Fontenelle's "Pluralité of Worlds," 2110 fr. The "Grande Danse Macabre," published by Estienne Groulleau about 1550, fetched 1120 fr. A vellum manuscript of the fifteenth century, ornamented with twenty-two miniatures, secured 11,000 fr.; a Horæ of the close of the same century, also on vellum, 10,500 fr.; another vellum Horæ of the same century, the binding of which had the arms of Philip V. of Spain, went for 8350 fr. A vellum manuscript of Prayers of 1649, adorned with nine miniatures by Du Guernier, 6920 fr. A vellum ms. of the "Chevalier délié," belonging to the end of the fifteenth century and containing several miniatures, 4730 fr. One (on vellum, of the eighteenth century) of the "Cérémonial des Vestures," that had belonged to Elizabeth Armand du Plessis Prieore at Paris of the Benedictines of the Presentation, 3750 fr. A vellum ms. of the fifteenth century of "Le Débat de la Noire et de la Tannée," 3205 fr. A ms. calendar of the end of the fifteenth century, adorned with miniatures, brought 3000 fr. The total sum realized in six days was 330 575 fr. The sale of the second part will begin at the Hôtel Drouot on March 7.

OBITUARY NOTES.

BERNARD CALLAGHAN, the founder of the well-known law publishing firm of Callaghan & Co. of Chicago, died at his home on the 29th ult., aged 72 years. Mr. Callaghan was born in Roslea, Fermanagh county, Ireland, in 1822. Leaving his father's farm at about twenty-two years of age, a poor young man, he engaged in the lumber business near Halifax, N. S. In the fall of 1843 he removed to St. John, N. B., still engaging in lumber operations. In the same year (1843) he removed to Boston, and for four years engaged in various enterprises, acting as night-watchman and day employee in the same store. Such a strain could only be endured by a man of strong constitution and determined will, both of which he possessed. In 1852 he entered the employ of Little, Brown & Co., law and miscellaneous book publishers, where he served faithfully for thirteen years, leaving their employ in the spring of 1864. In company with a fellow-clerk he went to Chicago, and embarked in a modest law business at 126 Clark Street, under the firm name of Callaghan & Cutler. Later the firm became Callaghan & Cockcroft, and later still Callaghan & Co., moving to 80 Dearborn Street in 1871. The great fire of that year destroyed everything they owned. Starting again with nothing but pluck and determination, in a basement on Washburn Avenue, by honest dealing and close attention to business they earned the facetious name of "Call-again," and every dollar owed at the time of the fire was paid, and the firm were again ahead. In December, 1872, they moved to 161 Clark Street, where they remained until 1883, when they moved to their present location, 114 East Monroe Street. The qualities of character possessed by Mr. Callaghan have placed the house among the largest of its kind in the United States. Mr. Callaghan retired from the firm in 1891, leaving the control to his son and the other members of the firm.

JOSEPH KEPPLER, the cartoonist and founder of Puck, died at his home in New York City on the 19th inst., aged 56 years. His death was due to nervous disorder brought on by overwork, especially during the last summer at Chicago, where he had charge of the World's Fair Puck. Mr. Keppler was born in Vienna on February 1, 1838. He showed artistic talent when young, and was sent to an academy of design. He also attempted a theatrical career with but indifferent success. In 1868 he came to this country, and about 1873 he established a comic weekly, first entitled Die L'hone, but whose name was afterwards changed to Puck in St. Louis. The venture failed. Soon after Mr. Keppler came to New York City and entered the employ of Frank Leslie. In 1877, with Adolph Schwarzmann he established Puck, which for the first three months was issued only in German. As a cartoonist Mr. Keppler showed great power, and his name has been closely associated with the growth of the art in America. He was one of the first to introduce colored cartoons. He leaves a widow, a son, and two daughters. His son, who is about twenty-three years old, also draws cartoons, which he signs "Keppler, jr."

JOHN G. BROUGHTON died on the 14th inst., at his home in Bloomfield, N. J., of pneumonia, in his 59th year. For many years he was the senior member of the firm of Broughton & Wyman, publishers of Sunday-school books in the Bible House in New York City.

THE death is announced of Madame Blaze de Bury, the widow of A. H. Blaze, and herself a contributor to the Revue de Paris and the Revue des Deux Mondes, and the writer of a volume of travels in Germany and Austria during the revolutionary troubles of 1848-49.

WILLIAM W. WILLIAMS, president and founder of the Williams Pub. Co., the subscription-book publishing house of Cleveland, O., died on the 19th inst., after an illness of several weeks.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOSTON, MASS.—A dividend of 37½ per cent. has been declared payable to all the creditors of Winkley, Dresser & Co., who have proved their claims against the estate.

CHICAGO, ILL.—C. M. Barnes Co., of Chicago, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $25,000 to conduct a stationery business. The incorporators are A. L. Shephard, William Foster, and E. C. Fetch.

CHICAGO, ILL.—J. Dullaghan & Co. is a new firm established to deal in Catholic books and church books, with a capital stock of $20,000.

FREMONT, NEB.—The stock of Myron Y. Colman, bookseller, has been burned out.

NEW YORK CITY.—At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Stationers' Board of Trade on the 13th inst., Patrick Farrelly, of the American News Company, was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Alexander Agar, when A. J. C. Foye was elected to succeed Mr. Agar as treasurer. The following new members were elected: E. W. Scarborough, Van Cleve-Andrews Publishing Company, Branch 3, American Type-founders Company, and Ward, Lock & Bowden, Limited, all of New York.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Baker & Taylor Co. are now in regular running order in their new quarters, at No. 5 and 7 East Sixteenth Street, between Broadway and Fifth Avenue, in the very heart, almost, of the book trade, as it is now located in New York. They occupy a space over twice as large as any they have heretofore had, using the entire store and basement and the first loft of the Geraldine Building. Its well-lighted spaces afford exceptional opportunities for the storage display and examination of goods, while freight and passenger elevators provide ample facilities for making easy and rapid circuit of the whole establishment.

NEW YORK CITY.—Becker Brothers, designers of artistic bindings, and engravers, have removed to 26 East 13th Street.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Cassell Publishing Co., of New York, recently organized, met in Elizabeth February 6, and elected the following officers for the year: President, William L. Mershon; vice-president, Frank Seaman; treasurer, Edwin A. Archer; secretary, John T. Ryan. Sydney F. Walker was elected, with the above-mentioned officers, as a director.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Jenness Miller Company, of New York, has been incorporated to print a monthly magazine, etc., capital $10,000, and directors, Wm. Green, Brooklyn; Annie Jenness Miller and Edward J. McDonnell, New York City.

NEW YORK CITY.—Judgment was entered on the 15th inst. against the United States Book Company in favor of the Caxton Bookbinding Co. on notes made in October and November, 1892.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—It is reported that John Wanamaker has sold his business to Nathan Strauss, who is to continue it under the firm-name of The John Wanamaker Company. Nathan Strauss, according to the same rumor, is also said to have purchased the interest of Mr. Cooper in the business of Siegel, Cooper & Co., of Chicago. We give the report only for what it is worth, having been unable to verify the facts.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

WILLIAM HEINEMANN, London, will publish at once a volume of short stories, by the author of "The Heavenly Twins," to be entitled "Our Manifold Lives."

ELLIOT STOCK will issue at once a new book by R. C. Hope, entitled "Medieval Music: an historical sketch with musical illustrations," giving an excellent historical and artistic survey.

"DODO," it is said, is going into its thirteenth edition in England. Its author has just finished a new novel, but cannot decide upon its title, having under consideration four remarkably clever ones.

GINN & Co. will publish in May "A Book of Elizabethan Lyrics," selected and edited with introduction, notes, and indices, by F. E. Schelling, professor in the University of Pennsylvania.

THE Deutsche Verlags Anstalt of Stuttgart has issued an illustrated German translation of Wallace's "Ben-Hur." The same illustrations will be used in a Dutch translation, to be issued by D. Bolle, of Rotterdam.

ELKIN MATHEWS & JOHN LANE have just issued a volume of verse by Grant Allen, entitled "The Lower Slopes," with a title-page designed by J. Illingworth Kay. Most of the poems were written a good while ago.

THE BURROWS BROTHERS Co., Cleveland, O., call our attention to the fact that the price of their forthcoming edition of the Lincoln and Douglas Debates is to be $3.50 net, not $2.50, as stated in our issue of the 10th inst.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. will publish an account of the recent expedition to the Antarctic regions on board a Dundee whaler, written and illustrated by W. G. Burn Murdoch. Scientific notes are contributed by the naturalists of the expedition.

WM. BLACKWOOD & SONS have in preparation a volume on "English Literature Under the Georges," which the late Prof. Minto had prepared shortly before his death. The volume is being revised by Prof. Knight, of St. Andrews, and will shortly be published.

THE London correspondent of the New York Times reports that the first edition of 5000 copies of Thomas Hardy's new book was more than subscribed for in the London trade alone, so that binding was held back till another 5000 were got ready, and the whole edition of 10,000 will be issued at once.

H. SOTHERAN & Co. will publish shortly as a supplement to Hain's "Repertorium Bibliographicum," the "Corrections and Additions" on which Dr. Copinger has been for a long time engaged. The whole work will consist of four parts, each containing an instalment both of the additional entries and of the corrections and collations.

GEORGE ALLEN will publish next month "Verona, and other lectures," by John Ruskin. The lectures were delivered at the Royal Institution and London Institution at various periods between the years 1870 and 1883. The work will be illustrated by a colored frontispiece and several photogravure plates from drawings by the author.

THE AMERICAN ACADEMY OF POLITICAL AND SOCIAL SCIENCE will publish March 1 a volume

lation from the German of Professor Gustav Cohn's "History of Political Economy." The work has been translated by Dr. Jos. A. Hill, and has never before appeared in English. It is prefaced by an introduction by Prof. Edmund J. James, Ph. D.

PROF. G. B. WILDER, of Cornell University Ithaca, N. Y., has published a monograph, entitled "Physiology Practicum," giving "explicit directions for examining portions of the cat, and the heart, eye, and brain of the sheep as an aid in the study of elementary physiology." The work consists of seventy-seven pages of text and twenty-seven plates unbound and enclosed in a portfolio.

THE W. L. RICHARDSON CO., 73 Hanover Street, Boston, desire to call the attention of the trade to the fact that the price of the new and enlarged edition of George W. Hale's "Police and Prison Cyclopædia" is $4, not $2.50 as recorded in the "Annual Catalogue" for 1893. The new edition contains over three times as much matter as the first edition, which easily accounts for the raise in price.

COPPLAND & DAY act as the American publishers of the limited edition of "Eight Illustrations to Shakespeare's Tempest," by Walter Crane. Each proof, on thin paper, is mounted and provided with a mat for framing and a fly-leaf with title, and the whole is enclosed in a box simulating a book. The engravings are by Duncan C. Dallas, in what is known as "Dallas type," and are certified to by Mr. Crane as "very faithful and successful."

It is understood that the "History of the United States Navy," upon which Edgar Stanton Maclay has been engaged for the last nine years, is now nearing completion. It is a curious fact that no complete history of the navy has been published since Fenimore Cooper's time, and Mr. Maclay's elaborate work will meet a demand which has grown stronger since the public became interested in the building up of our new navy. Mr. Maclay's history, which will be published by D. Appleton & Co., comes down to 1893.

THE chief feature in the thirty-first issue of "The Statesman's Year Book," to be published immediately by Macmillan & Co., will be an entirely new treatment of the great navies of the world, contributed by John Leyland. All the sections relating to fleets in the several countries have been re-cast on a uniform plan, so as to permit a comparative view. Statements are given of ships in course of construction, and of those that have only been ordered to be laid down, and also detailed descriptions of the principal types of vessels.

ALMOST five hundred years after Chaucer ceased to write, the first complete edition of his works in prose and verse is to be issued. Prof. Skeat has devoted to it the labor of several years, and his first volume, containing a life of Chaucer, a list of his works, the "Romaunt of the Rose," and the "Minor Poems," with full introductions and notes, will appear before long. The work will be completed in six volumes. The Oxford Chaucer will be published by the Clarendon Press, and will match the standard edition of "Piers the Plowman," by the same editor.

THE French Academy began work upon the first letter of its famous "Dictionnaire Historique de la Langue Française" a little less than fifty years ago. A few weeks since it finished the exacting A. A few years ago M. Renan told his countrymen that the Academy would be completing its great work about twelve hundred years from that time; and M. Bergerat made this comment on Renan's satirical statement: "The real truth is far more cruel. M. Renan talks of only twelve centuries as being enough for the purpose, in order to keep up our spirits." An illustration of the exhaustive work by which the great lexicon has profited is to be seen in the fact that the word "Académie," which occupies fifty lines in the "Dictionnaire de l'Usage" fills ten of the double-column pages of the "Dictionnaire Historique."—N. Y. Tribune.

TIFFANY & Co., of New York City, have recently published an exquisitely printed and bound brochure, containing a biographical description of Charles L. Tiffany in particular, and of the firm of Tiffany & Co. in general, prepared by George Frederic Heydt. The fortunes of the founder and of his firm are traced from the birth of the former in Killingly, Conn., in 1812, and of the latter as Tiffany & Young, in New York, in 1837, down to the World's Columbian Exposition. It is probably little remembered now that the well-known jewellers and gold and silver smiths began as dealers in stationery and fancy-goods solely, pitching their tent one door above A. T. Stewart's modest dry-goods establishment at 229 Broadway, at the corner of Warren Street. Nine views of the different stores occupied, and exhibits made by the firm, and two portraits of Mr. Charles L. Tiffany, one a steel plate, accompany the text.

THE AMERICAN FOLK-LORE SOCIETY is about to undertake an extensive scheme of publication, under the general title of Memoirs of the American Folk-Lore Society. The first volume of this series, to be published in March, will be "Folk-Tales of Angola," by Heli Chatelain, late U. S. Commercial Agent in Loanda, West Africa. The work, which, together with an explanatory introduction, will give in original text and literal translation the oral literature of the West African coast, will be the first published representation of the ideas, emotions, and moral sentiments of races from which has been derived a great part of the negro population of the Southern States, and will therefore have an important bearing on American history. Among other works intended to continue the series are collections of the French Creole tales of Louisiana, and of the current superstitions still found in great mass among the English-speaking population. The publications proposed will constitute an important addition to Americana; but the complete execution of the plan will depend on adequate support from the American public. For this purpose, the number of members of the society should be increased by at least five hundred. Persons interested in the work of the society will be received as members, the annual fee being three dollars, giving the right to a copy of the organ of the society, the Journal of American Folk-Lore (quarterly). A subscription of ten dollars to the Publication Fund will include the membership fee, and entitle the subscriber to all the publications of the society, including the Memoirs, of which it is proposed to issue several numbers annually. Persons wishing to become members, or subscribe to the Publication Fund, may address the Permanent Secretary, W. W. Newell, Cambridge, Mass.
